any avowedly illustrated periodical ever published in this country-more, even, than were given in Douglas Jerrold's Illustrated Magazine. For example, Hoppin supplies four to a ballad by Bayard Taylor, called "The Quaker Widow." Mr. Marble's second paper, "To the Red River and Beyond," has nine-teen original illustrations. "The Home and Grave of Byron," has three. "King's Mountain; a ballad of the Carolinas," by W. Gilmore Simms, has two. "Steroscopic Slides" consists of two whole-page designs, by Frank Bellew, and there are two full-length Fashion figures. Here are 81 original designs." In adfigures. Here are 81 original designs. In adlition, the Harpers are enabled to draw, in advance, upon books which they have the press. One of these, Mr. Atkinson's orthcoming "Travels in the Regions of the Upper and Lower Amoor, and the Russian Acquisitions on the Confines of India and China," supplies thirteen engravings, and Burton's "Lake Regions of Central Africa" an equal number. There, also, are five woodcuts accompanying Thackeray's third Lecture pon "The Four Georges." Here, then, are 61 in all. Those from Mr. Atkinson's book. from drawings by the author, are even better than those which embellished his "Oriental and Western Siberia." Some of these, covering only half a page of the Magazine, are wonderfully effective. "The Red Sand," and A Sand Storm" are especially good, but a itttle sketch of the "Mirage in the Desert" is one of the most Turneresque gems we ever

PETERSON'S LADIRE MAGAZINE This periodical is also early in the field. Its itispiece is an illustration of a famous Gerherself to the Knight Huldibran. It is finely ngraved, in line and stipple, from a picture by P. Wyburd. There are other engravings illustrating fashion, dress, crochet, &c., as well as music. Also some good poems and a variety of short steries. Of the two (To be ontinued) novels, Mr. F. Lee Benedict's Redman's Run" is very readable. As for 'The Ruling Passion," by Mrs. Anna S. Stephens, we cordially say that (To be concluded) would be a satisfactory affix. The descriptions of ladies' fashions in Peterson are written in good, plain English, without a single foreign word or phrase, and we take this to be a great merit in a magazine intended for gene-

-Mr. 77. A. Dunlop, a well-known teacher of book-keeping and penmanship, in New Orleans, died on Tuesday week, in the third story of a house in that city. He had long been suffering from consumption. He seems to have died quite alone, and in his room was found the following paper, prepared in view of his death : "I was born in Belfact, Ireland, 12th Angust, 1805. Came to New Orleans in January, 1832.
"I wish to be buried in a plain coffin, and in the carth, not in a tomb, in the Freemen's or Cypress Grove Cometery. No funeral notices.
