JENKING ON THE PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION-HOW THE LADIES WERE DRESSED. The President was in full evening dress, but wore no gloves. None of the gentlemon present did. That, I have been assured, is a point of import-ance. The Prince appeared in black, with no de-oorsitors, excepting the ribbin and diamond star of the Order of the Gatter. The Duke of Newcas-tils, I thick, had no decorations. Earl St. Ger-mains wors the ribbon of the Bath. The foreign ministers were in plain oldthes--s sufficient indica-tion that the reception was not looked upon in any way as an affair of State. All wore their orders, excepting the Austian minister, Hulssmann, and Lord Lyons. Now, with timid pen and quivering nerves, to the laddes. Miss Lano first.
