THE ITALIAN HERO.—Garibaldi is a strange map. At Melazzo, after the fight, he took off his dirty shirt, washed it in the brook hard by. an! hung it up on the bushes, ate he hunch of bread, fruit, and wate, smoked his eiger bare-backed, and, wrapped in thought, sat apparently contemplating the drying of he sarment. When his shirt was dry, he went on board the Tukeri, living in the bay, and personally directed her fre upon the fortreas and retiring masses.
