THE AMALGAMATION OF LANGUAGES.—There is a growing tendency in this is go to appropriate the most expressive words of other languages, and after a while to incorporate them into our own; thus the word Cephalic, which is from the Greek, signifying "for the head," is now becoming popularized in connection with Mr. Spalding's great headache remedy, but it will soon be used in a more general way, and the word Cephalic will become as common as Electrotype and many others whose distinction as foreign words has been worn away by common usage, until they seem "native and to the manor born."

Headaches may be classified under two names, viz: Symptomatic and idopathio. Symptomatic Headache is exceedingly common, and is the procursor of a great variety of diseases, among which are Apo plexy, Gout, Rheumatism, and all febrile diseases. In its nervous form it is sympathetic of diseases of the stomach, constituting sick headache, of hepatic disease constituting bilious headache, of worms, constituting attended with headaches, as well as renal and uterine affections. Diseases of the heart are very freguently attended with headaches; anemia and plethora are also affections which frequently occasion headaches. Idiopathic headache is also very common, being usually distinguished by the name of were headaches, sometimes coming on suddonly in a state of apparating and physical energies, and in other meatances it comes on slowly, heralded by depression of spirits or accribity of temper. In most instances the pain is in the front of the head, over one or both eyes, and sometimes provoking vomitting; under this class may also be named Neuralizia.

There is a whisper that Years Powers have got TURKEY.

A somewhat droll exemplification of the maxim "When ignorance is bits 'tis folly to be wise," has occurred at Constantinople. The Djéridé Havadis, a Turkish paper published in Stamboul, with a laudable desire to impart a little useful information to its readers, gave a description of the process by which loaf sugar was produced. It was therein asserted that blood was used in the refining of the sugar. This is an sbomination to the Mahomedans, and the Ulemas at once took alarm; meetings were convened, and the subject was solemnly discussed in all its bearings. There was, I presume, some hesitation on the part of true believers to put much faith in a statement that red blood would perform a prominent part in the production of white sugar, and there consequently seemed to be a chance of the subject dropping. The joke was too good to be allowed to die a natural death in this way, and so the sceptics were further; informed that bones formed an important ingredient in the composition of white sugar. From bones to human bones the transition was easy; and the color agreeing in this instance, it has been decided in a solemn conclave of the wise men of the East that whits sugar is a pollution, and must no longer be used by the faithful. The appearance of Pekin is disappointing. The great width of the atreets makes the houses look small and mean, but the wood carving in front of most of them is most wonderful in the quantity and minuteness of its detail. Many of these carvings are gilt, and in a long street of these shops the effect is good. In dry weather the streets are four inches deep in dust; in wet, a foot deep in mud. There is a raised road in the middle of the street, on which two carts can easily drive abreast; on either side of this road there is a lower one of about the same breadth. The wall of the Imperial City, which cocupies the centre of Pekin, is high and handsome, but not intended for defence; the top has the yellow tile; inside this wall are the palaces of the Imperial family. The Emperor's Palace, or the Interdicted City, as it is called, is in the centre of this city, and surrounded by the same kind of wall.
