We are reliably informed at first as a temporary expedient, but it proved a permanent curse.
There is now not the slightest reason for Pennsylvania's taking the back track, and an theorizing a crettion to what was abolished in 1828, to the general satisfaction of the people. Gold is received from California in a steady stream, and, in addition to this, it is coming in from Europe by every steamer. As their speeches are not published, it is impossible to divine their reasons for it. Small notes, issued by the Pennsylvania banks, will not drive out of cir. t culation the few shinplasters which come into better than they are; and it is a rule in cur-rency that the worse kind of currency drives Lus from other States, because they will be better than they are; and it is a rule in cur-rency that the worse kind of currency drives the better out of circulation, as all men pre-fer paying away the worst money in their possession, and hoarding up the best.
