Our understanding of State Rights is a far different one... When the General Government ceases to protect the interests of all the States, and discriminates in favor of one to the exclusion of another member of the Confederacy, then it is well to fall back upon our reserved franchises, and to assert our independence at every hazard.

The Madness of the Rebels. Scenes are constantly transpiring in the rebellious States which would disgrace any country and any age, and which indicate no only the lack of patriotism which is too plainly evident, but a reckless shamelessness, a degree of abandoned and villainous dishonesty. cruelty, and absolute barbarism, for which the modern history of civilized nations furnishes no parallel. The inflamed and excited mobs which, in many places, assume complete control, act more like demons than civilized beings, and the most merciless savages who have assailed the unprotected settlements of our frontiers would prove to them useful in structors in precepts of humanity, of which they are evidently either regardless or ignorant. It cannot be possible that such depraved wretches will long be enabled to set at defiance the anthority of a nation which, when aroused, is as powerful to restrain and punish as it is mild and forbearing in its disposition.

A Dastardly Outrage upon the American Flag.
