whom Sallust reports as "profusus sui, ali. eni appitens,"—profuse of his own, covetous an instance of this, in which he escaped being plundered, and probably murdered. In his "Memoirs" will be found some mention of a manufacturer of conjuring tricks, commonly known as Father Bouiol, whom ha describes as perfectly acquainted with his trade, and upon intimate terms with every conjuror of note. At one time, the first conjurors and amateurs used to visit Father Roujol's little shop, each of the profession desirous of proving his superiority over the rest, showing his best tricks and utmost skill. It appears from revelations in Houdin's new book, that Father Roujol was, if not a great scoundrel, on intimate terms with some who were. He teld me one day, Houdin says, of a certain Elias Hausheer, whom he had met at a café. "This man," he said, "is possessed of great talent; but, frem a few words that escaped him, I fancy that his skill serves him less to amuse the public than to correct the accidents of fortune when playing."

Houdin paid a visit to Elias Hausheer, and, by way of diverting that personage, put into his pocket one of the mechanical snuff-boxes, made principally in Geneva, which are very saw, quarter of a century ago, cost $500. The price may have been reduced since then. To optward view, it was a snuff-box, of larger size than ordinary, but not unwieldy. On the lid was inserted an oval medallion, on which was snamelled a miniature portrait or a bouquet of the sugging tricks.

CAMP WAYNE, West Chester, Pa., May 8, 1861. Camp: Wayne, recently established here by Governor Curtin, is now rapidly getting into order. CAMP DENNISON, near Lancaster, Pa.

May 7, 1851.

I wish to call attention, through your paper, to some of the red tape impositions imposed upon the two regiments of Ohio volunteers in camp at this place.

It is our misfortune to be under a colonel of the regiment whose leading conception of duty is to treat the men under him as real machines rather than as nominal ones, as usually considered. We have never yet drawn full rations of all articles allowed by "army regulations," and to-day, to cap the climax, the bread, for both supper and dinner, was given out at noon, without notice to camp to find ourselves breadless for supper. Finding none could be had from our quartermaster, we promptly determined to buy for ourselves; when, lo! Colonel McCook blankly refused to pass any one, officer or private, from the camp, although we were favored by officers of every grade below him.

The consequence of this overbearing red-tapeism was hungry nights to many a man who, as citiin company with Mr. Russell, the correspondent of We have never yet drawn full rations of all artiwas hungry nights to many a man who, as citizens, socially stood above him

We are under the rigor of military law, and we make the passes of the sountry te help us.

CALL FOR ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND MEN.

GENERAL ORDER-No. 17.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, ADJUTANT GENE-RAL'S OFFICE, COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 6, 1861 The twenty days' limit for the dispersion of rebels now in arms against the United States has expired. Whether the struggle for vindication of the imperilled Union shall be brief or protracted, the result is certain. The desirates of all nations are interwoven with that of America, and the ising is made up. Ohio will meet the crisis firmly, and fulfil her part. The more decided her action, the sconer will peace succeed war and loyalty supplant sooner will peace succeed war and loyarty supplement treason.

To give force and system to her action, the following general order is promulgated:

1. The militia is divided into the "active army of operations" and the "militia of the reserve". The nine regiments now encamped (additional tethe thirteen mustered into the United States service) and such other regiments as the General Assembly shall authorize, will be mustered into the State service, and placed under strict discipline for immediate service. for immediate service.

Lieut. Col Bucklugham, First Assistant Adju-tant General, is detailed from this Department for that service.

If. The enrolled militia, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, exceeds 300,000 men. This force is divided into the First, Second, and Third force is divided into the First, Second, and Third Reserve Corps.

The able-bodied force of other ages, retired from service, but fully competent to meet any demand that the exigencies of the Union may require, exceeds 200,000 men, and will constitute the Fourth and Fifth Reserve Corps.

The First Reserve Corps will be organized forthwith, and be subject to immediate transfer into the "active army of operations." Applications, however, for the erganization of militis of the reserve will not be limited to this quots, but the companies composing it will receive the post of honor and the first assignment to active duty in case the country requires their services.

The only exception will be in favor of companies now under drill, which have failed to receive an assignment in the twenty-two regiments now in assignment in the twenty-two regiments now in assignment in the twenty-two regiments now in camp.

III. The Militia of the Reserve will be organized as follows. I. Competent military men, or responsible citizens, will apply to this department for an order to raise a company, not exceeding 100 able-bodied men. 2 A form of enlistment will be mailed, if the application be approved. 3. The roll will be returned to this office, an election will be ordered, and the officers will be commissioned.

4 Tha roll must embrace citizens of the same township, as that they can readily associate them. township, so that they can readily associate them-selves, and promptly respond to any order from ge-neral headquarters. 5. Whenever a company in transferred into the active army of operations, new transferred into the active army of operations, new commissions will issue, giving due precedence to the grade of the prior commission, so that the earliest commissions in the militia or the reserve will confer superior rank in the transferred corps.

IV. This organization is designed to leave all the domestic and economic machinery of society in full play, until the transfer becomes necessary. Members of the Militia of the Reserve will therefore devote due attention to their ordinary concerns, and do what they can to prevent idleness and insure a full erop of all the products of the farm. Any other course will make the struggle doubly burdensome, notwithstanding the fact that Obio has already in store provisions for a year in advance.

Total, 1,000 companies.

VI. As a general rule, public arms will not be issued to the militia of the reserve, but a proxidraft upon the State until they are transferred to the active corps.

VII. It is the purpose of this Department to procure as soon as practicable, a "Volunteer Manual" for distribution among the militia of the reserve, and to issue a code of regulations for their government and discipline.

If the first reserve corps shall not be filled and officered by the first of June next, additional companies will be credited to counties tendering mere than their quota. Due record will be made of all applications, and proper precedence will be granted in the order of such application.

H. B. Carrington, Adjutant General.

By order of the Commander-in-chief.

WAR ITEMS.

A little patient investigation enabled us to discover that the wall was no more nor less than the water tanks ranged in line. Two of our spies reported them filled with sand, which concluded, for the time, our consideration of the matter. On Tuesday last, however, a clever Yankee, who is put down as a straight "rebel" sahore, and who finds occasion to change clothes three times a day, learned that the tanks are all half filled with powder; and that every building in the navy yard is artistically studded with it in such a way as to facilitate the total and immediate destruction of the entire place, should an attack from our side be likely to prove successful. Now, "Jim" is the "smartest man in the fieet," and his mission, for which he volunteered, is to learn all about the gunpowder plot.

The man who so skilfully plans our enemy's arrangements, Commadore Ingraham, was, three months ago, commanding the United States anval forces in the zouth of Europe. There is no doubt whatever that we are destined to see the city of Pensscola and the village of Warringten in ruins THE POSITION AT CAIRO.

Mr. Isaac Moses, of New York, who had an interview with Mr. Seward on Sanday last, writes that he informed the Secretary of the determination of New York city to sastain the Government, and of the expectation of the people that the war would be prosecuted with energy, and that Mr. Seward replied "that the people should not be disappointed, and that he thought they would be well satisfied with what would take place in a very few days."

RESPECT FOR THE PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY OF STATE. President Lincoln and Secretary Seward rode up the Avenue in an open barouche to day, and were everywhere greeted with manifestations of respect and regard. Shortly after they passed, the Massachusetts Eighth Regiment followed in double-quick step, greatly to the annoyance of sundry drivers, though to the delight of the spectators.—N. Y. Tribune.

There is a private in the knode Island regiment at Washington who is worth half a million of dollars. Our Washington correspondent states that he saw him yesterday mopping the floor of the barracks.—N. Y. Tribune. WITTICISM.

The witty Mr. Sparrowgrass recently joined the "Heme Guard," at Yonkers, New York, and said in a speech that "it is understood that the Home Guard is not to go to the wars, and not to leave Yonkers except in ease of invasion." CONSCRIPTION. A virtual conscription is now common at New Orleans. A Yankee, who was driven into forced enlistment there, has written home: "Tell the boys we shall aim high and fire blank cartridge!" INFANTS.

In one Maine volunteer company there are thirty-one over six feet in their stockings. They are called "the thirty-one infants."

One hundred and thirty clergymen in the State of Maine have signified their readiness to receive appointments to chaplaincies in the army. BALLOON VOLUNTEER. Mr. James Allen, of Providence, R. I., the dis-tinguished aeronaut, has offered his services to the Government to reconnoltre with his balloon.

UNION CONVENTION. A convention of Union men met at Nashville on Thursday, and nominated Hon. Wm. B. Campbell for Governor of Tennessee.
