Anti-Slavery Feeling of England.

When it is doubtful what may be the poli of the British Government to the United States at the present Crisis, it may be proper to in quire into the feeling of the British People The House of Commons by no means represents the Commons or people of the United Kingdom. At present it would show a small majority, were votes taken upon a party ques tion, in favor of the Government. And what it may be asked, is the organization of thi Government? The reply must be, that Cabine Ministers, who govern the British Empire, in 10 o'clock-to be continued without intermise Queen VICTORIA'S name, are some sixteen noblemen and wealthy landlords, who repre sent a certain party. On the Opposition side are other wealthy and titled aristocrats who; when their turn comes, will succeed the present Ministers. Neither of these aristocra ic sections belong to or care about the People What is the popular feeling in Great Britain respecting the slavery question ?
