PRIVATE PROPERTY SPARED.

This desire to secure from destruction or injury all private property was earnestly manifested during the confingration, which, commencing with the blowing up of the bridge at 5 o'clock on Thursday morning, and the firing of the Government workshops at the upper end of the yard at 10 o'clock of the same day, raged for thirty hours. Several times when, after the workshops within the armory enclosure had been successively fired, the flames appeared to approach too near a number of dwellings bordering the doomed property, the two little hand-engines which occupied the house rendered memorable by Jehn Brown, and which, by the way, has also been spared, were brought out, and vigorously worked by soldiers, to keep the devouring element within the limits assigned it by military law The orders of General Johnston, that the large blacksmith shop nearest the tet it be named at once; otherwise the unfair dealer in selling, when he nominally takes off 4 per cent. or 3 per cent., as the case may be for short paper, has but to ask his customer more for his goods to offset the discount he proffers. as the fismes undulated, like a whirlwind of tempestuous fire.

During the closing scenes of the confiagration, and when it was feared the fire would get beyond control and destroy the town, several thousands of muckets were discharged into the fisming mass, for the purpose it is said of scattering the embers and thus lessening the intensity of the heat, the reports continuing with the incessant tolling of the bell in the tower of the new shop, lent to the proceedings an effect indescripably-greegem_and_thillteg__said.

BYACUATION OF HARPER'S FERRY.

The evacuation of the town was begun late on Wednesday night, when two regiments, who had rescived orders in the afternoon to hold themselves in readiness, took their departure afoot in the direction of Charlestown Early the succeeding morning general orders were issued for the entire force to prepare for an immediate departure, and the baggage wagons, which to the number of about 560, had been collected from among the farmers of the surrounding country during the previous fortinght, were heavily laden with army stores, camp equipage, &c., and left about ten o'clock on Thursday morning, escorted by two regiments of infantry. One hour later and the general movement of the troops was commenced; tents were struck and were placed with all the remaining stores and ammunition in a large number of cars, which had been collected for their transportation, and were thus conveyed to Charlestown, as is supposed.

which had been collected for their transportation, and were thus conveyed to Charlestown, as is supposed.

The sick to the amount of about 160, and a regiment of infantry, also left the town by the Winchester Railroad, the remainder pursued their journey afoot. One full regiment of Virginians, numbering, it is estimated, about 1,100 men, took the road to Leesburg, which winds around the mountain, but whether they continued on their march thither, or took the route to Charlestown, at its intersection with the former road, could not be ascertained. By midnight on Thursday, the main body of the army, numbering, it is variously estimated, from 14,000 to 17,000 men, had left Harper's Ferry. The rear guard, comprising one regiment of Mississippians, and the Kentucky regiment, together with detachments from savaral Virginia regiments, remained behind at the encampment on the heights of Bolivar, apparently as much for the purpose of superintending the work of destroying the Government property, as of protecting the rear of the army. About noon on Saturday these troops also retired by way of the Winchester road, and Harper's Ferry was entirely free of military.

The troops were said to be very well armed, a large portion of them with Mississippi and Tonnessee rifies, both of which are adapted to the use of the Minie bullet. Previous to leaving on Thursday night, about one hundred flint look muskets, belonging to a company from Charlestown who had been supplied with Minie muskets the day previous, were thrown into the Potomac. A number of them were recovered by citizens on Saturday. Several of those which I saw, and which had been sold at the liberal rate of fifty cents each, were stamped "Harper's Ferry, 1319," and seemed to be in excellent order.

The spot is stated by him to be an admirable one for an encompment, the surrounding country being an aimost perfectly level plain, well wooded and watered. As a strategic position, it is said to be very important, being the point at which the roads from Romney, Winchester, Martineburg Shepherdstown, Battletown, &c., all interest. The troops seemed to be engaged in throwing up entrenchments in the direction of Romney, and he expresses the opinion that it is their intention to hold that point until driven from it.

[Correspondence of the Richmend Dispatch.]

About 9 o'clock the glittering bayonets of the enemy appeared on the hill opposite, and above them waved the Star Spangled Banner. The moment the head of the column advanced far enough to show one or two companies, the Parrot gun of the Howitzer Battery opened on them, throwing a shell right into their midst. Their ranks broke in confusion, and the column, or as much of it as we could see, retreated behind two small farm houses. From their position a fire was opened on us, which was replied to by our battery, which commanded the route of their approach. Our firing was excellent, and the shells scattered in all directions when they burst. They could hardly approach the guns which they were firing for the shells which came from our battery. Withis our encampment fell a perfect hallstorm of canister shot, bullets, and balls. Remarkable to say, not one of our men was charged one of our guns, but could not stand the fire of the infantry, and retreated precipitately.

During these charges the main body of the enemy on the hill were attempting to concentrate for a general assault, but the shells from the howitzer battery prevented them. As one regiment would give up the effort, another would be marched to the position, but with no better success, for a shell would seather them like chaff. The men did not

The "saucy little schooner" Savannah, the cot in the different privateer, and the first private mong the succeeding licensed pirates of Jeff. Davis, continued to attract licensed pirates of Jeff. Davis, continued to attract much attention as she lay at anchor, yesterday, off the Battery, with the Secession flag flying at her main topmasthead, under the Stars and Stripes. Growds througed the Battery, to get a view of the vessel, while others, wishing to have a more particular inspection, hired boats and went alongaide. These visitors becoming too numerous for the comfort of the officers in charge, they were at last obliged, politely, to refuse them admission on board. She was inspected, however, with the greatest curiosity, and all manner of questions were asked touching the history of the craft and of her capture. The mark of one of the Perry's shots, which grazed the squaresail stay, within six inches of the foremast, attracted particular attention.

By the politoness of Lieutenant McCook, our reporter was allowed to copy the letter of marque and log of the vessel, which are as follows: " LETTER OF MARQUE. "LETTER OF MARQUE.

"Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederate States of America, to all who shall see these presents, greeting: Know ye that by virtue of the power vested in me by law, I have commissioned, and do hereby commission, have authorized, and do authorize, the schooler or vestel called the Savannah, (more particularly described in the schedule herewith annexed), whereof T Harrison Baker is commander to set as a winter-and Baker is commander, to act as a private armed vessel in the service of the Confederate States, on the high sees, against the United States of America, Confederate States for the time being:

Kentuckians on Wednesday forenoon; a person direct from there says there is not the slightest evidence of the mountains ever having been fortified with canaon. The reports of the erection of formidable entrenohments upon these heights must therefore, have been purposely circulated in order to mislead the General Government as to their actual strength.

THE MOUNTAIN BATTERIES, &C

The only one of the eminences surrounding the town, upon which seemingly entrenohments had been erected, was a prejecting rock on the Virginis shore, where a battery of six field pieces had been placed. A log house was also built on the same mountain, and beside being loop-holed for musketry, was further strengthened by two light mountain howitzers. All of these cannon have been sonveyed away, though no one recent and mountain the witzers. All of these cannon have been sonveyed away, though no one recent and the weather.
