And jubilant clarious proudly seemed to say,

"United Italy once more is ours!" United Italy!" I cried, and thrust My voice amid the tumult of the rest. When suddenly pale Brutus from the dust Arose, and pointed to the blushing West The gladness died within me, for behold I saw a vision on the sunset shore: Llovely woman, made by anger bold, In maniac rage her starry mantle tore. Sweet Peace, affrighted at her brow of ire, Sped wildly far, and broke her olive wand, While Discord entered with her scourge of fire, And flaming War made bare his bloody brand.

And Liberty, with sad averted head, Fled from her presence, weeping as she flew; While crowned Tyranny rushed is instead, Completing all that Discord left to do! The trampled nations sank and went aloud-1846, mist be accombanied by a written guarantee, the form of which is herewish given.

WILLIAMSPORT, Md., June 22, 1861. As you are already informed, the Fourth rown open to the people, students and ama-urs are again permitted to delve in that alace Royal of literature—the Library of ingress. Although, since the erection of pose bronze lattice-works, the line of Milton out "knowledge by from how shut and " and the Ninth Regiment Pennsylvania Volun-teers, under Colonel Longnecker, being the first of our State troops to enter the enemy's country at this point. We were followed by the Thirteenth and Sixteenth regiments of the Fourth Brigade, and by the First Brigade under Colonel Thomas. The hills upon the Maryland side of the river were crowded with men. women, and children, dressed in their Sunday attire; and when the soldiers took to the water, amid the huzzas of thousands of men, and the shaking of handkerchiefs o hundreds of women, the scene became an im-pressive one, and should have been described by a graphic writer. The water was about four feet deep, and the current very rapid; but men fighting in so good a cause as the pre-servation of our Union view such obstructions as trifles, and the Potomac was crossed withut an accident, all feeling happy to think we were drawing nearer to the enemies of a republican Government. After crossing, the column moved on, without molestation, for some two miles, where we encamped for the night. Soon after daylight on Monday, as our column was commencing to advance, orders were received from General Cadwalader, directing Colonel Miles to return to Hagerstown, which he did, leaving Colonel H. C. Long-necker, of the Ninth Regiment, in command of the brigade.

As great as was our regret at losing the officers of the army who had been with us, and to whom we had become much attached, we all felt thankful that the command had devolved upon so experienced an officer as Colonel Longuecker. His conduct throughout the Mexican war, and the courage displayed by him in the numerous battles in which he was a participant, inspired confidence in him throughout the whole brigade. He appointed Thos. S. Bell, of West Chester, Pa., acting assistant adjutant general; H. M. House, brigade treatments. sistant adjutant general; H. M. House, brigade quartermaster, and H. B. Edwards, of Chester, Pa., aid-de-camp. On Tuesday morning, in obedience to orders received the day previous, we started upon our return to Williamsport, the Fourth Brigade bringing up the rear, with the baggage train in front. About ten A. M. we recrossed the river and encamped near the town, followed very shortly after the Account of the property of the p camped near the town, followed very shortly after by a company of rebel cavalry, who are now upon the opposite hill, and between whom and our pickets we have had repeated skirmishes. It was reported yesterday that two of the rebel horses and one man had been killed by our soldiers; but for the truth of this cannot vouch. Certainly there was enough firing to kill somebody or something.

A report has just come into camp that some f the rebel cavalry are crossing into Maryceived warmly should they come here or give us an opportunity to get near them, for all are "spoiling for a fight," and our colonel anxious to gratify their desires. HUNTINGDON, June 25, 1861.

Have you ever visited Huntingdon? Yes, we saw you here a few summers ago, in company with your excellent literary editor, Dr. Mackenzie, George Schaffer, of Lancaster, Mr. McElhone, and others. You know, then, hew beautifully it is located on the north bank of the "blue Juniata," surrounded by romantic hills, from whose tops can be seen our fertile valleys stretching far in the distance, now burdened with their ripening treasures. This is a spot of poetry beneath whose shades lovers meet and mingle, and youth and age unite in admiration of the inspiring beauty of blooming Nature.

Gesum, an acquaintance of the pilot, and were introduced to the family. While conversing with the ladies, three companies of rebels rushed down upon the party and attempted to cut off their retreat to the boat.

Surgeon Heber Smith, of New York, was shot through the face and hand, and August Petersen was mortally wounded. They are both at the Hygeia Hospital. Six others were slightly wounded. Captain Braine at ence opened upon the rebels from the Monticello, with shell and canister, killing and wounding, he thinks, a large number. The rebels fie!, and the house was completely demolished.

Five miles to the north of our town are situated the celebrated Warm Springs, owned by Gen. A. P. Wilson. In their front, Stone creek rolls its beautiful waters, filled with pike, trout, and innumerable attractions to the disciples of Old Isaak Walton. In their rear, Warrior Ridge lifts its romantic summit, inviting the seekers of pleasure to embrace its refreshing shade, and "view the landscape o'er." The medicinal qualities of these Springs are well known, as the vast throng of visitors each year testifies. Gen. Wilson has saved no expense to adorn the grounds and fight.

The reason for Mr. Bowman's pursuing the course he gained by the excursion, and, as has proved the case, everything to be lost.

The Fourth Brigade is now erecting fortifications to command the passage of the Petomac. There will be two twenty-four pounding and one eight-linch howitzer. This work has been superintended by Capt. Newton and Lieut Baboock, United States Engineers, assisted by Mr. George Farrell, of the Ninth Regiment. When it is completed our troops will be able to pass and repass at pleasure. It has been hard work for our men this for the reason of the pass and repass at pleasure. It has been hard work for our men this for the troops in the field have been more or less disciplined before they entered the mark there is another entreached and carried of the American and the prison at that place. The reason for Mr. Bowman's pursuing the course he did is a mystery to all, as nothing could be gained by the excursion, and, as has proved the case, everything to be lost.

the same thing. You gain nothing. Three-fourths of the troops in the field have been more or less disciplined before they entered the service. All know how to use fire-arms, and are confident in their ability to fight. Almost three months' severe discipline has been received by four-fifths. Napoleon marched out of France with his conscripts, and pursued the allied forces, in half the time for preparation. More than a majority had never fired a gun. A more active and glorious campaign never took place than that; defeated of success only by diplomacy.
