Our Own Magazines.

Our two leading Magazines, Harper's and the steady for ever be, made to expectively from Peterson & Brothers and T. B. Pagh. They might be briefly criticised as excellent numbers.

In Harper, the leading illustrated article is an account, from the pen and pencil of T. Addison Richards, of the Central Park of New York—as it will be when completed. It will then be one of the beantifullest (vide Carlyle) as well as largest places of public amusement and exercise in the world. A second paper on California, by J. Ross Browne, also illustrated is worthy of especial, notice. Con.

on California, by J. Ross Browne, also illustrated, is worthy of especial notice. Continuations of Trollope's "Orley Farm" and Thackeray's "Philip," with an American's account of "A Reading by Charles Dickens and "Louis Napoleon, Prince and Emperor," are also very good. We beg leave to hint ligent man, although he by no means looked that, in "The Editor's Easy Chair," the eter-nal introduction of Solomon Gunnybags is a Napoleon! This, be it remembered, was a mean mannerlam, which is a very wretched substitute for humor. Those who recollect how much of "a dressy man?" (like bulky Legislative Assembly. The Ohleago Tribune of the 17th gives the following statement of the progress of the growing The Unleago Ivioune of the 17th gives the following statement of the progress of the growing crops and the movements of produce at that point. The weather during the past week has been cool, with coossional rains followed bytekrong breezes, and on the whole quite favorable for the crops, especially spring wheat—the reports concerning which are daily improving. In many places where the rust had struck the crop the damage is found to be much less than was supposed, and, although a full average is not expected, the yield will probably be good. The winter wheat havest is about finished in Indiana and southern Illinois, and the crop is secured. All accounts agree that it is the best crop for many years past both as to quality and yield. The corn crop in this State and Iowa looks well, except in the northern counties, where it is rather backward. The breath of oats sown in this State does not appear to be so large as usual, probably on account of the extreme depression this year in the market, but the crop promises a fair yield. Our accounts of the barley crop are conficiting as regards its appearance in the field; but all agree that there is less sown than usual. The rienced during the past three years—has discouraged farmers from trying it to any great extent. We are happy to learn that the crops in Kanassen and Nebraska promise, a large and a full yield—both in corn and wheat. The winter wheat in Ransas is harvested and safe. There will be no famine there this year?
