The state of the inidable mountain passes, they cannot appreciate the proper merits of the expeditions.

Garnett visitly, supposed his rear, could not be turned. "The best laid schemes of mice and men aft gang aglee." Rosenerans and Lander, with the Briss Brigads, found a way to turn it, rotwithstanding the "impossibility," of the thing. That march was equal to some of Xemophon's marches with the ten thousand Greeks. And here I beg leave to digress in order to supply an ossission in former faccounty of this famous expedition. Burdsali's dragoons, from Cindinnail, played a meritorious pair in "It—and," indeed, they almost played out! their horses.

The topographical feats of the horses were often astonishing. They climbed mountain steeps that ordinarily would be deemed impassable for the best mules. The risk to men and ranimals was often of the most heardous nature, and the journey was constantly haraving and extremely laborious. When the dragoons: could not ride they under showers of grape-shot, and wait for a chance to darge. The infantry did the business so completely their opportunity did not come.
