CANT CURTRY, Jaly 23, 1861. MAJOR CHARLEST. CAMPBELL. This gentleman's name is already prominently before the public, and owing to his position and force of character it may soon become as familiar as that of Mejor Sherman; whom we love to honor as one of our best and bravest artillerists. In person Major Campbell is tall and command-ing well proportioned, and strang with nerves "quick and strong as steel" He has sandy hair, ourling beautifully about his temples, his crown slightly, bald, and is apparently in the prime and vigor of life, probably forty years of age. He sorved with honor as a captain in the Mexican war, and at the time of Lincoln's first call for, yo-lunteers he was engaged in the peaceful occupation. hear Cumberland, Maj)r O. was ordered on with two companies—his own and Capt." Lewis"-to ac-company Cols Kane's and Simmens! regiments; sent to the relief of Wallace. On the march from Hopewell to Cumberland he was warmly greeted by his many friends, who remembered him having travelled 'over part of' the same route on his way to Mexico. Part of these two companies, two twelve-normodes and thirts two man under command of pounders, and thirty two men, under command of Lieat. Shellenberger, are still remaining with the two infairly regiments mentioned. Major Camp-bell and Capt. Lewis were recalled to Camp Cur-

With superadded confidence and plea-sure, he committed the beautiful flag in the bands of Golorel Hampton, as the son of a noble gentle-men, and the grandson of a gallant commander of '76. Three times, three were enthusiastically given for Jeff. Davis, and after the band had played a fine air, Col. Hampton replied that, "coming as it did, from the hands of one reverenced and honored throughout the length and breadth of the whole Southern country, this flag, in itself de-manding the highest feelings of, pride, and re-verence, with brightest memories of Carolina clustering around it, was doubly valued. He would ask his followers to defend it." He asked them to "look upon its palmetto tree and silver creecent;" then, turning to Sergeant Darby, he said: " To ,you I commit this, sacred trust. financial matters in that city to day, says: The stock market has lost the buoyandy of yes-terday, and prices are all per cent lower. The decline is attributed by some to the report from the Gulf that the admiral of the English fleet declares the blockade inefficient, but the true cause of the reaction is, perhaps, the desire to realize the profit on stocks bought at the low prices of Mon-day and Tuesday. The recovery of yesterday was no doubt stimulated by the haste of speculators to back stocks sold "short" during the excitement of Monday. It' is a common practice on a weak market to sell "short" indisoriminately, delivera-ble on the next day, or three days after. The
