Another New Jersey regiment was expected in the city at a late hour, as information came by telegraph to the authorities here to provide them food, having been destitute of victuals for twentyfiled, and heard at Nist Prins before Mr. Justice Woodward, to whose decree exceptions were also filed, and the case then certified into the Supreme Court. It was argued here at the January term, and the opinion of the court, also delivered by Mr. Justice Woodward, has just been rendered. It is too extended for our columns at present; and we present to day, therefore, merely the decree, which, however, contains the actual decision. It is as follows: SPECIAL NOTICES. Among the men who were most active at the fire were numbers of returned volunteers, who eagerly embraced the first opportunity since coming home to enjoy the rare luxury of a rup with the machine. In proceeding to the fire they went at "double quick," as though the confingration was a robel battery which they were bent upon taking by assent. While at the fire, no men toiled more energetically, mounted ladders more recklessly, or dashed over half burned roofs more daringly than the blue. The mingling of military uniforms with firemen's routpments, and the streage mixture of both in the same individual in many instances, made the scene at the fire ground unusually picture que.
