2. Authorizes the President to divide the United States into collection districts, and appoint an assessor and collector for each.

3. Requires collectors to eye hands. From gentlemen just from the Junction, we learn that the fight, as we expected, was most sanguinary and fatal in its consequences. They report that from Sudley, on out as far as the fight extended, the ground was literally covered with dead and wounded. The Fourth South Carolina Regiment, and the Eighth Virginia Regiment, under Colonel Hunton—both recently stationed at this place—were in the hottest of the fight, a little beyond Skone Bridge, and we regret to say that the fermer suffered saversly. Hunton's regiment fought manifully Messr. Charles Brown and Raoch Cantwell members of Capt. Heaton's company, who were wounded in the engagement, were brought to Leesbarg Monday evening. Brown has a fissh sounded. The hotget has been described by the best to carry out act, and instruct assessors, who, on Stober I, 1861, shall assertain and value property thinks they must have done great execution. All the empanies of the Righth Regiment participated in the fight, and cane of the wounded men noticed above with the word of the wounded men noticed above thinks they must have done great execution. All the empanies of the Righth Regiment participated in the fight, and each man demeaned himself, as we sail knew they would, most gallanuly.

It is with feelings of no ordinary sadness, that we record the death of Charles Robert Norris, son of Mr. John Norris, of this town. He was a the dent of the V. M. I., at Lexington, and at the time of the fight was a licutenant of a company. He fell tes feet in advance of his mon, while leading them to a charge, the ball taking an oblique course across the breast, and killing him, it is supposed, instantly, though his body was not found until next morning.
