"The resistance of the South surprises and disconcerts the North."
The South as better soldier than the North commands it, before leaving for the seat of war.
A number of his men, having demanded a furlough to visit their friends over Sunday, were refused. Whereupon they formed into line and sharged bayonets on the recusant commander, who made sudden tracks for the nearest fence. This movement the men greeted with sho tts of deri sive laughter, and 'turee cheers for Jeff. Davis!'
They were subsequently granted the required furlough, and 'order reigned in Warsaw.' After reaching Washington, it was found neasseary to divide this regiment, and station portions of it at different points."

Then follows thirty-two octave pages of matter mad-up from the well known arsenal of Secession argument, the drift of which is to prove the decadence of the North, and the greatness of the South, and the advantage to France and England of an early recogni non of the Southern Confederacy. Here is an extract from the book; and what is worse, the extract is borrowed in substance from a French book on America, by M. Carlier:

"Their ideas of morality (the people of the Northern States) do not cade in anything to their religious bypocrisy. They demalish without marroy, and burn, if necessary, the houses of public girls, in the name of morality, and by the sanction of lynch law; but they permit their wives and daughters to indulge in furtations, that is to say, a refinement of ocquerty which results in a depravation of the body Marriage is for them an affir of convenience; they marry and are divorced with the same facility as one takes and quits a mistress in Europe."

After such an argument as that, the immoral reconse of the North may as well cave in: the BARGAINS! BARGAINS!! STAR BUTEL, (Nearly opposite the United States Hotel.)
