AN UNLUCKY YESSEL .- A schooner, suposed to be the Lydia R. Ogden, was sunk in the claware, opposite the Point House, on last Saturday night. Lieut. Edgar, of the river and harbor police, having picked up a water-cask and galley, supposed there had been a collision, and made a supposed there and been a contision, and made a rearch on that evening, but was unsucessful. Since that time neither Captain Fisher nor his crew have been heard of, and it is supposed they went down with the vessel. At the time she sunk her sails were furled, and since then no one has taken any interest in the matter. Lights have not even here placed on her metter in callet a warm of passes. been placed on her masts in order to warn off passing vessels. She lies in about eighteen feet of water, directly in the channel. This schooner was one of those used to raise the ill-fated John Trucks. The other schooner used for that purpose has also been wrecked near Sandy Hook. INDEPENDENT COMPANY .- A company o

FINDEFENDENT COMPANY.—A Company of volunteers is forming in this city composed exclusively of Italians and Frenchmen who have served in the wars in Europe. Their ranks are nearly full, but they need a few men of the right kind. Messrs. A. Zejotti and A. D'Orsolini, both of whom have served among our three-months volunteers, are actively engaged in getting the company completed. They have good reason to expect that they will be accepted as an independent company. They have not elected a captain, nor do they expect to elect one; but they hope that the War Department will assign some experienced American officer to will assign some experienced American officer to their command. The regiment will also take out a full drum and fife corps. It is evident that the friends and officers of this regiment will spare no pains to make it one of the crack regiments of Pennsylvania. Its ranks are rapidly filling, with returned volunteers principally, and it will soon be in active service.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT-Judge Cadwalader. — Franklin M. Read was put on trial, yesterday morning, charged with steading and embezzling from the post office. in this city, The allegation on the part of the Government is, that frequent complaints have been made to the postal authorities of the loss of letters, containing money, on the route to Atlantic City, and, in consequence of this an investigation was instituted by sequence of this, an investigation was instituted by order of the postmaster.

The defendant had charge of the distributing of letters on that route, and, suspicion attaching to him, a decoy letter, containing two S1 notes, was mailed, addressed to Mrs. Isaac Green, Atlantic City. When the mail was made up for that place the letter was missing, and the defendant was immediately taken into custody and the bank notes found upon him. The whole plan for the detection of the offender was exprangly by Mr. Isabed, the of the offender was arranged by Mr. Ireland, the chief clerk of the office, and its success is owing en-tirely to his ingenuity and vigilance. The defence set up a general denial of the charge, and the good | though a strong Union feeling prevails among a few The jury rendered a verdict of guilty.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM RUSSELL The London Times, of the 13th inst. contains another letter from Mr. Russell. It evinces the same spirit of hostility to the loyal portion of our country which was displayed in his former commu-nications, but contains little that would be new or interesting to our readers. Its most important por

M. Mercier, the energetic and able representa-tive of our ally, is said to entertain strong notions that the contest now waging cannot terminate in the success of the North in what it proposes to itself. M. de Stoeckl, the Russian Minister, who has lived long in America, knows her statesmen and the genius of her people and institutions, and is a man of sugacity and vigorous intellect, is believed to hold similar views. Perhaps the only minister to hold similar views. Perhaps the only minister who has really been neutral, observing faithfully all engagements to actually existing powers, and seculously avoiding all occasions of offence or initability to an irritable people, rendered more than usually so by the ovil days which have falten upon them, is the discreet and loyal nobleman who represents Great Britain, and who is the only one threatened with a withdrawal of passports, and all sorts of pains and penaltics, for the presumed and all sorts of pains and penalties, for the presumed hostility of his Government to the United States. The world sees that the North has not treated the Southerners as rebels—we will not say it has not dared to do so. But the Federalists have treated the Confederates up to this moment as belligerents. Rebels are hanged, imprisoned, and shot at discretion. Their fings are not received; the exchange of prisoners with rebels is ridiculous. A regular "blockade" of rebel ports is quite anomalous. It remains to be seen, after Mr. Davis' recent hints, what the Government dares to do in the case of the "pirates" whom its cruisers caught in the act. red-handed, of privateering piracy. Meantime the arm raised to chastise and subdue has been struck down, and the attitude of the North is just now defensive. There will be on the part of the one people whom the American press has most insulted and abused, every disposition to give fair play, and to listen to the call for "time." But the guarrel wast bare its limits the guarrel wast bare its limits. the quarrel must have its limits—the time must be fixed, and the sponge must be thrown up if one or other of the combatants cannot "come up" to it; nor does it seem a case in which any amount of "judicious bottleholding" can prolong the fight. Now, at the present moment, the North is less able to go into the contest than she was a month ago. She has suffered a defent, she has lost morale and matériel. Besides killed, wounded, and prisoners, cannon, arms, baggage, she has lost an army of three-months men, who have marched away to their hences at the very moment the capital an army of three-months men, who have marched away to their homes at the very moment the capital was in the greatest danger. Up to this period the reinforcements received do not bring up the Federalists to the strength they had before the fight. No one can or will tell how many have strayed away and gone off from their regiments since they returned to the camps here, but the actual number of men who have come here is less than those who have gone away home by fully eight thousand rank and file. And the change has been by no means for the better. The three-months men at least had been three months under arms. They were probably at least as martial and as ready to fight as the rest of their people. Just as they are most required and likely not to be quite unserviceable, they retire to receive ill deserved and ridiculous ovations, as though they ill deserved and ridiculous ovations, as though they had been glorious conquerors and patriots, instead of being broken and routed fugilives, who marched off from Washington when it might be expected the enemy were advancing against it. In their place come levies who have not had even the three months' training, and who are not as well equipped, so far as I can see, as their predecessors, to face men who are cluted with success and the prestige of the first battle gained, and to be associated with regiments cowed, probably, and certainly in some instances demoralized by defeat.

The artiller way who can the traces of their instances demoralized by defeat.

The artillerymen who cut the traces of their horses from caisson and carriage, at least knew more about guns than the men who will be put to the new field batteries, which Government are getting up as fast as they can; and the muskets, of the best description, left on the field or taken, cannot be replaced for a long time to come. In fact, much of this army must be reorganized in fact, or property. That one was the sitter. ganized in face of an enemy. That enemy is either incompetent or artful; it is quite certain he is not actuated by elemency or a generous pity. Engineers are hard at work strengthening the position on the south bank of the river; but forts do not constitute safety. Without stout hearts behind their lines safety. Without stout hearts behind their lines and breastworks, abattis and redoubts avail nething. It must be that the Confederates are deficient in the means of transport, or in actual force to make an attack which is so obvious, if they desire to show the North it is not possible to subdue them. The corps which went from Winchester to Manassas under Johnston, is put by the Federalists at 40,000. Let us take it at half the number. Beauregard and Lee are said to have had 60,000 at Manussas, including, I presume, the forces between it and Richmond. Divide that again. There were cortainly 20,000 between Monroe, the Court, and Richmond, of whom 10,000 could be spared; and on the worstern side of the courted of the Courted device States. western side of the capital of the Confederate States there was available at least another corps of 10.000, which could have been readily strengthened by 10,000 or 15,000 more from the South in case of a supreme effort. There seems no reason, not connected with transport, equipment, or discipline, why the Confederates should not have been able last week to take the field with 75,000 men, in two corps; one quite strong enough to menace the force on the right bank of the Postomace, and to hold it in check, or to prevent it going over to the other side; the other to cross into Maryland, which is now in parts only kept once, and to alwance down on Washington is much subdued by western side of the capital of the Confederate States at home and abroad, and there would be a new base of operations gained close to the enemy's lines, while the advantages of holding the Potoma and Chesapeake bay would be much neutralized, and finally destroyed. The navy yard would fall into the enemy's hands. Fort Washington would probably soon follow. Fortress Monroe would be condemned to greater isolation. Philadelphia itself would be in imminent danger should the Confederates attempt greater aggression. But, for one, General Beauregard will consent to no plan of operations in which success is not rendered as certain as may be by all possible precautions, and he might not favor a proposal which would lead to dividing an army into two parts, with a river between them and an enemy on which would lead to dividing an army into two parts, with a river between them and an enemy on each side. Monroe and Hampton, which are the true bases of operations against Richmond, have been weakened to reinforce the army covering Washington and Harper's Ferry, and yet I doubt if there are on the south bank of the Potomac at this moment 40.000 men all along the lines who could move out and offer an enemy battle, leaving any adequate guards in the trenches and garrisons in the tite-du-pont and works. The Confederates, as you were informed from the South, have enlisted mon to serve for the war, and take no others. as you were informed from the South, have enlisted most to serve for the war, and take no others. The staple of their army will undergo no change, and as it grows older it ought to get better, unless it be beaten. You will pardon me for referring to a remark in one of my previous letters, that there might be fierce skirmishes, between the and even sanguinary engagements, between the two armies, but that these would be followed by no two armies, but that these would be innoved by indecisive results, owing to the want of cavalry. Strange to say, though the panic and very discreditable rout was caused by alarms of, and might have been prevented by the presence of enviry, no steps are taken to remedy that great deficiency. The volunteers who were at Manassas will never the deficiency by the reep on horseback again and I believe stand the man on horseback again, and I believe the Confederates are quite aware of their advantage, though they may have had to mourn the loss of many gentlemen who fell during the day. The Northern papers are increasing the amount of but though they may have had to mourn the loss of many gentlemen who fell during the day. The Northern papers are increasing the amount of butter in proportion as they decrease the losses of their loaves, and they do not appear to perceive that the smaller the latter were the less should be the layer of the former—for it is no credit to an army to lose its guns, abandon its position, throw away its muskets, leave its wounded in the hands of the enemy, and run some 30 and odd miles from front of Centreville, not merely to Arlington, but to Washington, without any cause at all; for without loss there was no cause of retreat, and therefore no excuse for panic and ront. Again, they say there was only a portion of their army engaged. The greater shame for those who were not engaged to run, then. But before the buttle, when McDowell's force was enumerated in terrorem at 50,000, it was said 15 regiments had subsequently joined. Now it is averred only 15,000, 18,000, or 20,000 were in action. What on earth were the rest about? And I am obliged to say that Mr. Davis statements are quite as startling; for, while he declares the enemy were 35,000 strong, he astonishes us by asserting that of all his host only 15,000 took part in the battle. As to losses, of course it is beyond anything but imagination to give an estimate. Regiments reported to have been annihitated have turned up quite hale and hearty, neat as imported. on the day of marching home—and fond parents, wives and relatives will be spared many pangs and a great deal of mourning. I think my estimate of wives, and relatives will be spared many pangs and a great deal of mourning. I think my estimate of killed and wounded was nearly correct. The pri-soners may amount to more than 900 or 1,000, but the soners may amount to more than 900 or 1,000, but the Federalisis have lost more heavily than the totals under these heads would show, perhaps. It would be rather ridiculous to call it cither a hard-fought a bloody, or a glorious field; but it was an important one; it was a most trying one to the Federalists. who were badly fed and hard-worked, in a waterwho were badly fed and hard-worked, in a water-less country, on a July day, for twelve hours; they were exposed to the demoralizing effects of long-continued artillery fire. In spite of their want of discipline and the very unaccountable rout, the Federalists at first showed alacrity, but after a time they became torpid and difficult to handle. No one questions the general bravery of Americans, native or adopted, on either side; but a defeat is rendered worse than ridiculous by altempts to turn it into a trimpub. Let the unfortunate brave rest content triumph. Let the unfortunate brave rest content with the sympathy they deserve, and shun the ovations which are the due of the conqueror. Praise and flattery cannot retake a gun, nor save a standard, nor win a battle—even if it be from vox populi in Broadway or Bowery.

SOME ACCOUNT OF THE AMERICAN ZOUAVES AND THINGS GENERALLY IN CAMP FREMONT. Major Jno. McDonald returned this morning at 4 o'clock in the Hannihal City, from St. Louis, with the three companies under his command, having satisfactorily accomplished the mission assigned him, an account of which I see you have already published. We were glad to greet our comrades in arms again, and, though they grumble come at not being allowed to it or galaxy. some at not being allowed to "go ashore" in St. Louis, (poor fellows,) were pretty generally cheerful. Mere there is just healthy excitement enough to keep us in condition, and though we are gradually settling into the harness, still there will be an occasettling into the harness, still there will be an occasional flurry to give an appetite and keep us from getting any way sluggish.

"War, and rumors of war." is the order of the day with us now, but from the lively experience we have already had, we take things as casily as possible, and, like good soldiers, are fast learning to adapt ourselves to circumstances.

Jeff. Thompson is reported by our scouts to be within nine or ten miles of this place, and we may expect an attack at any time. His force is said to number between 600 and 700 men. Fortunately, we are strongly fortified, and with the force we have now on hand, our gans mounted and our intrenchments complete, we shall be happy to receive him with "all the honors of war" at any time he may see fit to visit us. It is also said that Gen. Hardee, with 15,000 rebels, is moving on Pilot Knob, and that Pillow, with 20,000 is divided Pilot Knob, and that Pillow, with 20,000, is divided octween Sikestown and New Madrid-the suppo tion being that he will make a feint upon Bird's Point and join with Jeff. Thompson—Hardee's advanced force to pay their united respects to you good folks in St. Louis. Be it as it may (and you must be well posted.) we give ourselves no immediate trouble concerning you, looking out at present for our own welfare, and having unbounded confidence, not only in you, but ourselves.

Our Home Guards are increasing in number daily, and we have now nearly 400 here, beside 200 we know of on their way to join us. The principal sentiment of the town here is decidedly seession, dence, not only in you, but ourselves. of the inhabitants, but neither party can con of any outrage committed by our troops upon them or their property. Col. C. C. Marsh, the commander of the post, has issued his "police regulations," and they are generally duly observed by our men. Take our boys as a whole, and a finer set of fellows never volunteered to serve their country. It is true that there may be one or two in each commant that that there may be one or two in each company that the others would wish out, but, as a body of soldiers, enlisted in a good cause, a braver, better behaved, or better looking set of men. Uncle Sam never had to shoulder a musket. All they ask is fair treatment and an opportunity to distinguish themselves, and if they don't prove all that the Government could desire, you may set me down as an ignoraand if they don't prove all that the Government could desire, you may set me down as an ignoramus. When I think how patient they have been under the privations they have had to endure, and the confidence they have in our colonel, (who truly deserves it,) and their eagerness to distinguish themselves (and that they have already done once or twice) at every opportunity, one can't help really admiring the spirit that actuates them. It is a privilege to be associated with such men. Without tents or the arms that were promised them, in absolute need of the pay due them from the Government, not only for their own wants, but in many eases for the wants of those they left nearly destitute at home; lacking many things necessary for their comfort, often separated from each other, and always busy, they have ever conducted themselves bravely and honorably, knowing that had it been in the power of their colonel to prevent it, they would not have the just cause of complaint they have now. There is a serew loose somewhere, and it is time that it was fixed. This regiment will be an honor to the State, and they there regiment will be an honor to the State, and they should be treated better in the future by those having authority. Equip them properly, say them off, and give them half a chance, and all that is reon and give their in this war will be done, I will war-rant, to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

Our situation here is a fine one, and the pleasant weather we have had for the last few days has been most refreshing to all of us. We are generally healthy, having but eleven men in the hospital, and those doing well. Yesterday (Sunday) the Rev. Mr. Longheed, our chaplain, had divine service in the brick church here. He is a fine preacher and most excellent way. most excellent man. I heard it reported this morning that Colonel Smith had been ordered with his command to the North Missouri road, where it seems his services are again required. If we go I think the traitors will have eause to rue it. We have cause to fue in.
We have just received some 25 large sized and comfortable tents, enough to accommodate some 500 men. All is excitement now, for the men are preparing to leave for Commerce. I will give you particulars, if possible. Tell our friends in St. Louis not to forget us, and they may be certain we shall never forget them.

The correspondent of the New York Times, on beard the United States steamer Rounoke, writing from off Charleston, under date of Saturday August 17. says: On August 2 we anchored off Charleston Harbor. The Walash left in the evening. We found the Vandalia at anchor here. The Seminole hove in sight, with her headgear and bowsprit carried away. She came to anchor, and reported a collision with the Wabash. Two fugitive slaves from Charleston came aboard on the 4th. Our worthy captain informed them that he "did not come here to pick up fugitive ne-groes, but to fight their masters." They will pro-bubly be made to act as coal-heavers for Uncle Sam. About 82 o'clock in the evening of the next Sam. About 34 o'clock in the evening of the next day lights were seen crawling along close in shore, in the direction of the harbor, one of which was made out to be quite a large sail, but she passed in safely. Since this event, other sales have been duly reported. It is but proper to state that the blockading squadron, composed at present of the Roanoke, the gunboats Seminule and Iroquois, and the sloop-of-war Vandalin, lay at least twelve miles from the entrance of the harbor.

On the 9th instant a Secession steamer ran the On the 9th instant a Secession steamer ran the blockade. She was first seen puffing away toward the coast, on our starboard bow. After expending much valuable time in staring through glasses, hoisting signals, and examining signal books, the Vandalia was finally ordered in pursuit. but having only a quarter wind, you may judge the result. After the steamer had made good her retreat, the Seminole made chase. Hardly had the excitement of this event subsided, when another steamer, emboldened by the success of the former, attempted the same exploit; but pursuit in this instance could not be avoided, and, finding herself well headed off from the entrance of the harbor, she put back with redoubled speed. She was vigorously pursued by the stoop and gunboat, our crew watching eagerly until they were out of view. They have since returned, with no trophies appended.

Le In the afternoon of the 14th, about 3½ o clock, a steamer left the harbor bearing the English flag forward, and a flag of truce at the main. She lay to at about good firing distance, when we sent one of our boats alongside, and brought off the British Consul. The proprietors of The Daily News, fearing an attack upon their establishment, yersterday applied to the Police Superintendent for protection. A force of 400 police was held in reserve in the lower stations, but up till one o'clock this morning their revices had not been called into requisition. It was reported that forty men armed with revolvers, were retained by the proprietors of The News, to meet any emergency. It is doubtful if there was any occasion for the procaution.

The Courrier des Etats Unis, which, by some accident, was omitted by the Grand Jury in its reaccident, was omitted by the Grand Jury in its re-cent presentment, not only defends its colleagues in treason, but threatens the Government with bloody treason, but threatens the Government with bloody and dangerous riots as the penalty for attempting to restrain the organs of Jeff. Davis among the Northern press. "The controversy," it exclaims, "is fatally destined to seek another issue—that of public manifestations followed by bloody conflicts and consequences often incalculable."

No comments are needed upon this open provocation to bloodshed and Secession war in the very midst of us.

THE Cincinnati papers record the death of the Rev. Dr. Brooke formerly pastor of Christ Church in that city.

Obituary. MISS CATHERINE HAYES. The news of the death of this distinguished lady has just reached us from Europe—news which her many friends and admirers on this side of the Atlantic will be sorry to hear. Miss Hayes was born in Limerick, Ireland, about Miss Hayes was born in Limerick, Ireland, about the year 1820, and at an early age showed a most decided talent for music, which was kindly fostered by her friends, and, thanks to the then Episcopal Bishop of her native city, she was enabled to receive lessons from the accomplished Professor Sapio, in Dublin, Her first appearance in public was in concerts, at which she sang with great success the beautiful melodies of her native land. But with increasing years new ambition, and she determined to try her powlodies of her native land. But with increasing years grew ambition, and she determined to try her powers in a wider field, where success is sweeter and fame more brilliant and lasting. She accordingly went to Paris, where she placed herself under the tuition of the celebrated Spanish teacher, Garcia, and afterwards proceeded to Milan, where she became the pupil of Ronconi.

Her debut in open was made at Marseilles, in the "Huguenots," in the year 1845. She was immediately afterwards engaged at the celebrated theatre of La Scala, in Milan, where she gathered laurels from the most discriminating musical audiences in the world, winning universal admiration by the simplicity and naturalness of her manner and the purity of her voice. The season of 1846 she passed simplicity and naturalness of her manner and the purity of her voice. The season of 1846 she passed at Vienna, and after having made the tour of the principal cities of Italy, made her first appearance in London in 1849. Two years later she left Europe for the United States, and arrived in this city in the fall of 1851, making her first appearance in New York in a concert at Tripler Hall, where the Lafarge Hotel now stands. Her successful career in this country is well known. She seldom appeared in opera while in the United States, preferring to appear in concerts, following in this the example of her Swedish rival, who had just preceded her. While here she became attached to her agent, Mr. Bushnell, a professional man, whom she subsequently married. She afterwards visited California, the Sandwich Islands, Australia, and India, returning to London, where she appeared at Covent Garden to London, where she appeared at Covent Garden in 1855. At a little later period her husband died. Her voice was a soprano of great compass and strength, very smooth, and remarkably flexible. In opera her most successful releas were Luciu, in "Lucia di Lammermoor," and Linda, in "Linda di Chamouni." She appeared occasionally in English opera, with Miss Novello, where her usual success attended her. In the judgment of some, however, she was better in concert than on the stage, and containly in the potionel nelodies of her country. she was better in content than on the stage, and certainly in the national melodies of her country Miss Hayes had no rival.

Miss Hayes had no rival.

The news which brings us the sad intelligence of her death does not tell us where it occurred, though it was, most probably, in England or Ireland, in her own sorrowful land, perhaps, where she first drew inspiration from the melting strains of a Carolan and the touching verses of a Moore.—New York Herald. GOVERNOR MERIWETHER ON BIBLE AFFAIRS-GOVERNOR MERIWETHER ON BIBLE AFFAIRS—
ARBAHAM AND LOT.—Meriwether is an ex-Governor of Kentucky, and a warm advocate of the secession of Kentucky. He has written an argument in support of it, in which, like some other politicians, perhaps to entrap the simple-located of the State, he makes some draughts upon his little Biblical knowledge to illustrate his position. The result is as might be expected.

The Governor says that we should do with the South as Abram did with Lot. Lot peaceably "secoded" from Abram and settled in "the cities of the plain and pitched his tent toward Sodom."

ceded. from Abram and settled in "the cities of the plain and pitched his tent toward Sodom." Our friend Harney, who has considerable advantage over the Governor in Bible matters, in reply to the Governor, said that Lot did not make much by his "secession" and Abram into Sodom. Divine ven-geance visited a catastrophe on Lot's territory of secession. What do the Secessionists think of Gov. Meriwether's stigma upon secession, in comparing it to Sodom and Comorrah? However, we suppose they know but little on such subjects. they know but little on such subjects.

In Governor Meriwether's Bible argument Abraham represents the Union, and Lot represents Secssion. We accept the parable. The Governor must not mangle the Word of God. Since he appeals to a part, he must take the whole, and he prosecutions are supported by the state of the state of the second of God. Second Sec must remember that, after Lot had gone off on Secession. "the Lord said to Abraham, lift up now thine eyes and look from the place where theu art, northward, and southward, and eastward, and westward: For ALL the land which thou seest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed forever. And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth, so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed be numbered."-Louisville Journal.

But One Hope for the Republic.—The New York Leader says: "There is but one hope for the Republic. It must assert itself, crush out rebellion, and compet the fear and respect of its enemies abroad and at home, or it is lost! There is no middle ground—there is no middle course. Let the men of the people shake off this discouragement, and recognize at once our duty and our power to triumph, and the work will soon be done. Then, the duty of the present met, we can easily take care of the future."

CANDLES—The market is exceedingly dull, and the business is only in a retail jubbing way. Adamantine ire quiet at 16@17, and sperm at 30@40 for plain and patent.

Wool..—There is still a fair demand for the low and medium grades of domestic deces, suitable for army purposes, and contracts have been for arrival at previous going over to the other side; the other to cross into Maryland, which is now in parts only kept quiet by force, and to advance down on Washington from the West and North. In the event of success the political advantages would be very great, both at home and abroad, and there would be a new base of operations gained close to the enemy's lines while the advantages to the content of the South.

The Stir is Military Circles.—Although there is no general parade of the fact made in the columns of the newspapers, it is no less true that the military spirit is blazing as freshly as ever among us, and the political advantages would be very great, both at home and abroad, and there would be a new base of operations gained close to the enemy's lines while the advantages would be successed. the army; but we will renture to assure those arch traitors that the soldiers of the Union will not suffer for one great essential of military comfort, while we have in Philadelphia the first class military clothing depot connected with the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above-WAR NEWS .- We have nothing of any im portance in regard to the movements of the Ferrebel forces at Washington or Richmond.

MARINE DISASTER. Letter to the Secretary of the Treasury relative to a Search for a supposed Shoal on the Coast of Virginia.

COAST SURVEY OFFICE, Aug 6, 1861, Sir. I have the honor to report that on the 15th of June 1 received, through the courtesy of Licutenant J M Giles, U S N, Superintendent of the National Observatory, a notice communicated by the first officer of the American ship "Simoon," relative to the supposed discovery of a rock or shoal off the coast of Virginia. The position given by the log of the Simoon, which struck three times when within sight of Cape Henry, is "seventeen to nineteen miles south of Cape Henry, and seven or eight miles off shore," The particulars are stated as follows: "The shoal or hump has 24 feet on it—as she struck aft between the seas—it being nearly high water, the sea moderate. Threw the lead as soon as possible—no bottom at 12 fathoms—it cannot be more than 150 feet across, as we cleared it in three seas. We numed it the Sim Shoal. Our pilot said that some years since a ship k Capt Smith says he has since learned that it occurred within the last six mouths."

Licutenant Commanding Phelps, in the Coast Survey teamer Vixen, was requested to examine the ground i mestion, and reported the result on the 27th of July question, and reported the result on the 24th of 3my. The following are extracts from his report:

"I have thoroughly explored the vicinity of the supposed Simoon Shoal on the coast of Virginia, and amperfectly satisfied that no such shoal exists in that locality."

"An area of twelve miles north and sogth by six miles cast and west was carefully examined, and the least water found, beyond three miles from the shore, was seven fathens. If the Simoon was over three miles from shore when she struck, ray belief is that she touched on a when she struck, my belief is that she touched on sunken vessel." I would respectfully request authority to publish the substance of this communication as a Notice to mariners.

Very respectfully,

A. D. BACHE,

Supt. U. S. Coast Survey.
