Hon, Joseph Holt in Boston. AN ENTHUSIASTIC OVATION—HON, EDWARD EVERETT'S WELCOME. The Hon Joseph Holt was seronaded at the Tremont House, in Boston, Tuesday evening, an immense crowd being present. The Hon. Edward Everett delivered the address of welcome. ADDRESS OF HON. EDWARD EVERETT.

ADDRESS OF HON. EDWARD EVERETT.

MR. HOLT: I have been requested, on behalf of my fellow-citizens. to express to you the great pleasure with which they bid you accordial welcome to the city of Boston. |Cheers.] It is a very agreeable but a very superfluous office. They are here before you; they have spoken for themselves. They hall you sir, as a man for the times [cries of "Good!" "Good!" and cheers]; bold and firm, as well as true [cheers]; brave and resolute, as well as honest and intelligent. [Cheers.] They witnessed with warm approval, in the closing days of the late Administration, the manner in which you showed yourself one of the few "faithful found among the faithless." [Applanse, and cries of "Good!"] You conducted one of the most important departments of the Government with equal vigor and courage, literally strengthening the things that remained, at the time when the very sinews of war had been cut in advance by your predecessor, secretly plotcut in advance by your predecessor, secretly plot-ting the overthrow of the Government he was sworn to support, and whose daily bread he was eating, and preparing, as far as possible, for the seizure of the national capital. ["That's so."] By the judicious arrangement of yourself and General Scott, [cheers] that burning shame was averted, and the President of the United States, constitutionally elected was page-fully insuranced. elected, was peacefully inaugurated. For that service, sir, we thank you.

Returning to private life, you found still greater changers threatening your noble State of Kontucky. Cheers for Kentucky. I You found her under a Governor faithless to his trust, on the point of being swept into the gulf of Disunion, by disloyal men, within and without her limits. You determined that glorious Old Kentucky should not be treacherously wrested from herself and the country. [Great cheering.] In conjunction with your faithful associates, you rallied your patriotic follow-citizens to the defence of the menaced Union. The clarion Yoice, with which you struck terror to the enemies Toice, with which you struck terror to the enemie of the Constitution, has thrilled to the heart of the citizens of Boston. [Cheers.] That voice, let me tell you, sir, will fall like music on the ears of the tell you, sir, will fail the music on the case of the crowd before you; and in their name, and on their behalf, I now again bid you a hearty, a grateful, an affectionate welcome! [Prolonged cheering.] The words of welcome uttered by the graceful orator of Massachusetts deeply and visibly affected Mr. Holt, who replied as follows: SPEECH OF HON, JOSEPH HOLT FELLOW-CITIZENS: I came to Boston, as do many American travellers, not merely to look upon the city, beautiful in itself—upon its monuments, and upon those magnificent landscapes in which as a jewel it is set—but also to revive, if happily I might, the glow of my particitism and the first a jewel it is set—but also to revive, if happily 1 might, the glow of my patriotism amid the thrilling associations that cluster around this cradle of the Revolutiou. [Cheers, and cries of "Good."] Here are gardens of memories which can never, never lose their fragrance; here are altars whose fires, though kindled in behalf of human rights nearly a century ago, have waxed only the nearly a century ago, have waxed only the brighter for the years through which they have burned. No true son of the Republic can press the soil of Bunker Hill without having his veneration for your great ancestors deepened and exalted, and without feeling his vows of devotion to the country strengthened and renewed. [Cheers.] strengthened and renewed. [Cheers.]

I was making, and desired to make, most quietly my journey, and little thought, and little expected to attract attention to myself here; and it is, therefore, with emotions of grateful surprise that I look upon that cordial and generous welcome with which you now honor me. Unconscious as I am of having said or done aught to deserve this marked taken of said or done aught to deserve this marked token of your confidence and favor, still I beg you to be assured that I am most grateful for it. The strains of your music and the shouts of your welcome will linger in the ears of my heart long after they shall have been forgotten by yourselves. [Ap-mlanca]

I am thankful for that most earnest, that most I am thankful for that most earnest, that most eloquent, that most flattering recognition, which, in your name has been given, of my fidelity to our common country, under circumstances of peril and of trial. Most grateful, too, am I for that friendly, that kindly allusion to my native State, Kentucky, that kindly allusion to my native State, Kentucky, [cheers for Kentucky], whose star, so long obscured by the baleful influences of unfaithful men, is now preparing to shine forth in the strength and lustre of other days. [Applause, and cries of "Good," "Good."] Kentucky has assumed her present position under no prompting of passion, but calmly and deli-berately, after careful review of the whole field of controversy; and in view of all the gloom and controversy; and in view of all the gloom and perils that encompass the Union, she now avows she loves it still, and will cling to it amid its sorrows, as she has clung to it in the days of its strength and its glory. [Cheers.] That which she has so nobly declared from the ballot-box, it is now her manifest duty to make good upon the battle-field [immense applause]; and that duty, already begun, will, I firmly believe, be faithfully performed upon the meeting of her Legislature, which takes place but a few days hence. Full, full will be the measure of my joy, when I shall behold the patriot soldiers of Massachusetts and the patriot soldiers of Massachusetts and the patriot soldiers of Massachusetts and the patriot of danger, and of Massachusetts and the patriot soldiers of Kentucky meeting upon the same fields of danger, and with the grasp of their fraternal hands, rebuking those traitorous men who, through long years, have striven to render them aliens and enemies to each striven to render them aliens and enemies to each other.

Fellow-citizens, I am gratified to say that, during the somewhat extended tour that I have just made. I have nowhere found the public voice faint, or the public purpose faltering, in reference to the vigorous prosecution of this war until the stars and stripes shall float on every flagstaff from which they have been torn. [Applanse.] Nowhere have I heard the word compromise—[cheers, and eries of "Good," "Good"]—a word which can now be uttered only by disloyal lips, or by those speaking openly and directly in the interests of the rebellion. [Cheers, and a voice: "That's the kind of talk."] So long as the rebels have arms in their hands there is nothing to compromise—[cheers]—nothing but the honor of the country and the integrity of the Government; and who, but he who is ready to fill a coward's grave, is prepared the integrity of the Government; and who, but he who is ready to fill a coward's grave, is prepared for submission to such humiliation as this.

Fellow-citizens, it cannot be disguised that we stand at this moment confronted by great national dangers and great national calamities. Eleven read the standard of the standard stan derrate either his power or his recklessness in battle.

Let no man cherish the delusive belief that since this rebellion is the cause of crime, that, therefore, it will be the less daringly maintained. History thas recorded, for our instruction and our admonition, that Cotiline and his co-conspirators fell with their faces to the enemy; and so, probably, will fall the rebel leadors of the South. The more carnest, the more prepart the prevent the reservant of the contract the the more prompt, the more united the efforts that are now made, the briefer will be the struggle. All delay, all seeming hesitancy, all dissension, while strengthening the rebellion itself, is fraught with in-calculable danger and mischief to ourselves. calculable danger and mischief to ourselves.

If, however, from any cause, this contest is to be prolonged, we must not seek to conceal from ourselves its possible consequences; but even now, in advance, we should burvely and calmly look the worst of them in the face. Your ships may have to furl their sails in many a sea, and grass may spring up in marts heretofore pressed by the busy feet of commerce; wide-spread bankruptey may possibly ensue, and the wail of sorrow go up, not only from stricken households and communities, but also from cities and States, over the brave and true men who have laid down their lives upon the alters men who have laid down their lives upon the altars of their country. But our institutions are well worth all these sacrifices, and all other sacrifices which we may or can possibly make for their pre-servation. All that we are and all that we have are the fruit of these institutions; and all that we may now generously devote to their safety, in this hour of their extreme peril, if we are successful, they will give back to us and to our children's chilthey will give back to us and to our children's children, increased a hundred, nay, a thousand fold.

But even now, in the very shadow of these threatened disasters, even this night and this hour, we could have peace. We could have peace by laying down our necks, our country, and our flag, in the dust beneath the remorseless feet of traitors. [Loud cries of "Never," "Never!"] But how can we do this, seeing that the graves of our fathers are yet with us, and that Bunker Hill yet speaks to us with voices which will not and cannot be stilled?

with voices which will not and cannot be stilled? [Cheers.]

If we falter, we fail; and not only will Washington, your capital, be subjugated and sacked, but your cities and your fields will be swept over by an army carrying desolations searcely surpassed since the Goths stabled their steeds in the palaces of the Caesars. The fiendish tone of the Southern press, its exultant threatenings, and the events which have already transpired, fally justify me in this declaration. If, therefore, we think of our lands and gold, of our merchandise and pleasant homes, or even of the blood that courses in our veins, in contrast with the honor and integrity of our Government, we are lost; we shall perish suddenly, irretrievably, and ignominiously. But if true to the kindling memories of the past, and to the grandeur of our mission as a people, your armies will assuredly triumph; and that triumph the Union sentiment of the South will render complete and enduring [applause]; and thus, out of all this national turmoil, and battle, and bloodshed, and wringing anguish, there will in the end arise a future for our counter. Which we that reinbox which sans wringing anguish, there will in the end arise a future for our country, bright as that rainbow which spans the mists that mount above the tortured hell of Ningara's waters. For that future that bow of promise and of beauty may well be accepted as the appropriate emblem. [Applause.] One of the most fearful obstacles which have been One of the most fearful obstacles which have been encountered in the successful prosecution of this war, is the disloyalty found in our midst. [Cries of "that's so."] This is especially true in relation to Washington city and the Border States; but it is in a degree true everywhere, and to this is traceable much of that discouragement under which the nation is now suffering. The country is now rejoicing in those bold and decided measures which the President is taking to subdue this fatal source of weakness and defeat. [Cheers.] It is in vain that the stalwart arms and hearts of this great nation toil at the pumps, so long as men are kept on tion toil at the pumps, so long as men are kept on board with augers in their pockets, who at every stolen opportunity are boring holes in the bottom of the noble ship on which we are all embarked. [Ap-

Fellow-citizens: The thought of dismembering this Union, which has been the source of all our strength and all our joys as a nation, can be enter-tained by no true man. Dismemberment would involve the abasement of all of which we, as Americans, have so long and so justly been proud, and the complete ruin of that grand inheritance which we have received from our fathers, and which it is our duty to transmit undiminished in its blessings to our descendants. It would conduct us from palaces of prosperity and power to hovels o wretchedness, and to graves of dishonor. When the wise man of old, sitting in judgment upon the rival claims of two mothers to the posses-sion of the same child, decreed that it should be sion of the same child, decreed that it should be cut in twain, and that one-half should be given to one claimant and the other half to the other, it was the false mother who accepted and exulted in the judgment, while the true mother turned away in horror, preferring to commit the life of her offspring to the keeping of even her own enemy, rather than that it should thus perish. The filial and the maternal instincts are in this regard the same. The man who is willing that this prosperous and free country shall be severed by the sword of treason now suspended over it, may have been born upon American soil, but he has no American heart in his bosom. (Cheers, and cries of "good.") The his bosom. [Cheers, and cries of "good."] The true son of the Republic, like the true mother, turns away from the proposal with indignation and ab-

But, fellow-citizens, I have presented myself before you not to make a political speech, but to thank you—which I do again and again, from my heart—for this most distinguished honor. [Great

The Privateer Sumpter. WHAT SHE DID AT CIENFUEGOS-HER APPEARANCE, &C .- THE PRIZES. From the Boston Post, 28th.]

Captain Alex. M. Smith, of the brig Kroka, from Cienfuegos July 23d, at New York, has furnished us with some account of the privateer Sumpter, which was coaling at that port during the brig's stay. The Sumpter, as is known, brought thither six prizes, and remained about two days, taking in coal and water coal and water

The prizes were delivered over to the Governor of the district, and a receipt given for them, subject to the decision of the captain general. The latter subsequently decided to give them up to their owners. The Sumpter is bark-rigged, heavily sparred, nothing above her to gallant sails, and carries four 32s and one 68-pounder. It is the impression that the latter ordnance cannot be used with safety, owing to the structure of impression that the latter ordnance cannot be used with safety, owing to the structure of the Sumpter, so she relies for offence principally upon her smaller guns. Her crew consists of about eighty men, who are furnished with an abundance of pistols, cutlasses, revolvers, &c. Capt. Semmes seemed to be flush of money, paying for his coal in United States coin. It was afterwards the report at Cienfuegos that the Sumpter had stopped at Jamaica, purchased coal, and chartered an English vessel to carry a cargo and denosit in Grand Cay.

vessel to carry a cargo and deposit it at Grand Cay-The consular agent at Cienfuegos took the Sump-ter's arrival with perfect nonchalance, and was suspected of Confederate sympathy.

The consular agent's brother, the English con-sul, makes no concealment of his friendship for the sul, makes no concealment of his friendship for the South. The Sumpter, when she left, took a southerly course, evidently with the intention of seeking some of the Chinese traders. Her orders are to burn, sink, and destroy as much Northern property as possible, and it would seem to be her policy to find an East Indiaman, and at one dash destroy perhaps a million dollars of value. Tea at this moment commands a higher price than ever, and it is painful to imagine the damage which the piratical craft might easily inflict. The Sumpter flies the American flag when coming alongside her prey, and might easily be mistaken for a United States steamer. Once within reach of her prize the Confederate flag is shown, and then the devastation commences. The officers of the Sumpter laugh at the Brooklyn and Captain Poore. The purser said the Brooklyn "never looked so large as when she

the Brooklyn "never looked so large as when she gave up the chase" out of New Orleans, and they supposed themselves certainly captured when she hauled to and returned to her station. The officers say "Poore knows what he is about;" "he's a Southern man," etc., and they look upon him as a good Confederate.
Why Government does not institute an inquiry into the circumstances of the Sumpter's escape from New Orleans, and the Brooklyn's failure to secure her is a matter of great astonishment. The commanders of the South Carolina and Massa. chusetts offered repeatedly to go in over the bar and engage the Sumpter, but Capt. Poore would not permit it. The captain of the Golden Rocket speaks of the kind treatment he experienced on board the Sumpler after seeing his ship burned from the pirate's quarter deck. The privateers seem to strain a point to be civil to their prisoners, permitting them to retain their private property, chronometers, &c. In regard to their prizes, they take the registers and papers, and expect to receive their prize-money in Confederate bonds—an arrangement with which they are perfectly satisfied. The Suggester goes and expect to receive their prize-money in Confederate bonds—an arrangement with which they are perfectly satisfied. rangement with which they are perfectly saus-fied. The Sumpter goes under canvas the greater portion of the time, the officers having unbounded confidence in her sailing powers. The coal is confidence in her sulling powers. The counts reserved for an emergency in pursuit or attempt to escape. It is thought that one of our good gunbonts, cruising diagonally across the trades, about where China traders concentrate, would be sure to meet the Sumpter, and there are hundreds of our captains who would willingly guaranty her capture f provided with necessary means. The idea of the mpter's officers is, whenever they desire to end with safety the privateer's career, to run into Vera Cruz and there sink or sell. Col. Harvey Brown, now commanding our forces at Fort Pickens, has consented to accept the coloneley of the new artillery regiment, to which he was appointed in a late order of the commander-

This table proves, in the most conclusive manner, that all the debts contracted by the United States, unlike those of other nations, are treated purely as commercial transactions, to be paid at an early day, and for which provisions have always been speedily made, and which at one period entirely extinguished the debt, and reduced it to merely nominal amounts at two others.

The loans brought out in the Mexican war sold at par, but the moment that public confidence was restored they sold at 20 per cent. premium. Owing to the present political troubles, the United States sixes of 1868 are selling at a rate which will yield to those holding them till their maturity 8 per cent., or very nearly twice the rate of interest they have yielded for the past eleven years. A nation with a vitality like that of the United States is not going to be extinguished in a day, nor till, like all other great nations, it has run its course, which is not measured by any ordinary computation.

In a year or so our fears will be forgotten, and as money is now far more abundant among us than at any former period it will not be be forgotten.

as money is now far more abundant among us than at any former period, it will not be long before Government securities will be selling at the highest rates they ever reached. The supply coming upon the market will, for a time, keep down the price, but the moment that ceases rates will rapidly advance no matter within any resemble benefit.

price, but the moment that censes rates will rapidly advance, no matter, within any reasonable bounds, how great a debt may be contracted. The public dobt of England equals nearly $4,000,000,000. A debt of $500,000,000, or eight times less, would be, for us, nothing in comparison. The English consols would bear no higher price were they reduced to one-half their present amount. Were the public debt of the United States $500,000,000 instead of $110,000,000, its securities would probably bear a higher price, from the vastly greater number of parties interested and dealing in them. The Canadas, with a population of about $2,500,000, have a public debt of about $65,000,000, which would be equal to a debt of $800,000,000 for the United States, which have three-fold greater wealth and resources, in proportion to population. Yet the securities of the former are selling at a premium of some ten per cent., while those of the latter are twelve per cent. discount. This fact shows the excess and unreasonableness of our fright.

The debt at the formation of the Government was equal to nearly $20 per head; in 1816, $15 per head. cess and unreasonableness of our fright.

The debt at the formation of the Government was equal to nearly $20 per head; in 1816, $15 per head. A similar ratio per head would give us a debt of $650,000.000 in one case, and $465,000,000 in the other; yet the wealth of the country is more than threefold greater per head than in either of the periods named. At the close, in 1815, of the great Continental wars, the debt of Great Britain, including Ireland, was £860.000.000, or about $4,300,000,000, which was nearly $250 per head for each man, woman, and child in that country—its population, including Ireland, not much exceeding 18,000.000. The population of the United States is nearly twice that number; that of the loyal States once and a half greater, with resources vastly exceeding those of Great Britain in her eventful struggle which humbled the greatest military power, and military genius, the world had ever seen.

There is a very active demand for the new loan outside the banks. There can be no doubt that the public will readily absorb the whole of it as fast as it is needed, as well as the further issues to be made. The action of the banks of the three great commercial cities, in reference to the loan, virtually consolidates their whole capital into one wast commercial cities, in reference to the loan, virtually consolidates their whole capital into one vast institution, by making their specie a common fund, subject to daily average is ratio to their liabilities. They are to carry the loan in ratio of their capital, and sales by any one are to be on common account. All the banks of the loyal States will, in fact, come in aid of those that are party to the negotiation, and thus the whole available capital of the country will, in effect, be wielded with one purpose—the maintenance of Government. This combination is the overne and appropriate of the country and the overne and appropriate of the catter and the country and the overne and appropriate of the catter and the country and the overne and appropriate the overne and appropriate the overne and appropriate the overne and appropriate the catter and the catter a the organ and representative of the active availa-ble capital of the country, which is thus brought in aid of the military arm of the Government. With abundance of means, men, and munitions of war, no doubts are entertained of the speedy crushing out of the rebellion. We understand the Attorney General of the United States has just decided that the new loan is not property which can be taxed by State or local authorities.

An agent is soon to arrive in New Brunswick, from England, with the view of encompassing the views of a company he is to represent, which are to get hold of the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia railroads, and to build the intercolonial road, and connect Halifax with St. John, and St. John with Maine, the Province to pay a certain sum per annum, and the British Government to guaranty a like sum. The New York Evening Post says of money and stock matters in that city to-day; The stock market opened heavy under the unfavorable reports from the Federal forces in Western Virginia, but towards the close there is a better feeling, and the decline of the early part of the day is nearly recovered. The subscriptions to the 7.30 treasury notes are progressing favorably, averaging, from individuals, over $150.000 per day. Mr. Cisco issues daily about 100 cortificates. We hear of a negotiation atout for $750.000, which will probably be concluded today, as there is only a slight difference in the matter of interest between the banks and the buyer. It is understood that this amount is wanted for Hartford, principally for the moneyed institutions of that city.

CITY ITEMS.

Excursion to Atlantic City. One of the most delightful excursions to Atlantic City during the present season was accomplished by the Young Men's Christian Association on Tuesday of this week. The weather was delightful for the trip, and those who participated in it describe it as having been unusually pleasant in every particular. The excursionists, numbering nearly two hundred, a large proportion of whom were lady friends of the Association, started at 6½ A. M., arriving at the seaside in ample time for the morning bath. This opportunity of a salt-water "dip" was generally embraced, the breakers being really finer, and the water more delicious for bathing, at this than at any earlier stage of the season. After the bath many of the excursionists devoted an hour or so to visiting their friends now sojourning at the various houses on the island, and others indulged in a ramble on the beach, and through the avenues of this charming "city by the sea." At 22 P. M., the usual dining hour, a large number of the party sat down to a good dinner at the "United States," at which all the choicest viands of the season were profusely served at the very moderate charge of fifty cents. Those having the management of the excursion are lavish in their thanks to Mr. McKibbin for his kindness and attention, as also to Mr. Brodhead and other gentlemen connected with the road, for their courtesy in sparing no pains to make the trip agreeable. After dinner, according to previous arrangement, devotional meeting was held in the Presbyterian Church, at which the Rev. Roger Owen, pustor of the O. S. Presbyterian Church at Chestnut Hill. presided. The latter delivered an appropriate opening address, in which he made the very sensible remark, that Christians have as good right to indulge in the enjoyment of innocent pleasures as other people, and that the antiquated notion that professors of religion must wear long faces, and keep aloof from everything pleasurable, was hapfor Christians, however, to indulge in such pleasures only as they could leave at any moment for communion with their Heavenly Father, without being obliged to reproach themselves with inconsistency. Mr. Owen's remarks were followed with a short address by the Rev. Mr. Simmons, of Indianapolis. The meeting was confined to about forty minutes. It was dismissed with a benediction by the Rev. John Chambers. Although not connected with our immediate subject, we may here state the curious fact that, during a ministry in Philadelphia of nearly thirty-seven years, Mr. Chambers has only been prevented preaching seven Sundays by physical inability, prior to the present interruption by an affection of the threat. At about 52 o'clock P. M. the train left for this city, and arrived at the depot at half past eight. While waiting for the boat, the whole company united in singing the "Star Spangled Banner." On the boat, in coming across, "Homeward Bound" was rung out on the evening air, and before landing at Vine-street wharf the vocal enjoyments of the trip were concluded with the doxology, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." STOKES' GIFT CLOTHING EMPORIUM.—The only Gift-Clothing Establishment in this city is that kent by the enterprising Fashioner and Clothier, Granville Stokes, 609 Chesnut street. At this world-renowned de pot gifts of use, value, and beauty, consisting of all descriptions, and suitable for both ladies and gontlementare presented to buyers. Every article of clothing is of the latest style and fashion, and warranted for fit and durability. Prices have been reduced to the lowest figure, in order to suit the depression of the times. PARTY NOMINATIONS .- The various parties, and the no-party people, are making their nominations for city and ward officers. They all go for the Union for a vigorous prosecution of the war, and in favor of s recognition of the merits of the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth, as the great military clothing depot of the city and State. The uniforms made at this famous establishment are faultless in every respect. United States Flags and officers' sashes.

Lace Curtains $3 to $25 a pair. Jacquard Curtains $1.50 to $8. Window Shades and good fixtures. Curtain Materials, all styles. Vestibule Lace and Rods. Picture Tassels, Bell Pulls. 719 Chestaut street, Philadelphia, W. H. Carryl &
