Public Amusements. Mrs. Joun Drew's Arch-street Theatre .-At half past seven o'clock on Saturday evening when we entered this theatre, we found a great hrong and tremendous crush of people,-a double tide of play-goers, as it were, one set, already provided with admission-tickets, slowly making their way in, and another set, who had been less prudent, struggling out, apparently astonished at the information that every scat in parquette and dress orrele had been disposed of. In future, if they take our advice, they will pay their preliminary respects to Mr. Joseph D. Murphy, the treasurer, who, it is well to state, will provide them with re-At a quarter before eight the green curtain was Attired with her usual taste in a white satin dress, without "the foreign aid of ornament," a trifle nervous, we thought, at the extremely enthumiastic reception which greeted her, but looking charmingly as if she had just bathed in Ponce de Leon's fountain of perpetual youth and gone quietly back into her teens. She delivered a well-written address, in prose, with her usual clearness and sweetness of utterance, and it was only by a great effort that she managed to repress her emotion when alluding, in grateful language, to the success which had attended her dramatic career, since her "first appearance on any stage," at the age of seven, to her appearance before her constant friends, a Philadelphia audience, in her new capacity as lessee and manages of Arch-street Theatre As she retired, There were also several civilians, friends of the dea number of bouquets were thrown to her, several of which fell among the audience occupying the orchestra seats. After this, a National Overture, by Charles R. Dodworth, which his orchestra played extremely well, and then, precisely at 8, the curtain rose on the play.

We are not going, at this time of day, to criticise "The School for Scandal,"—the most brilliant comedy in the English language, which literally overflows with wit. But we shall mention how i was played. First of all, the favorite performers were most warmly greeted. Miss Mary Wells. (Lady Successell,) who was richly attired, and certainly looked undoubtedly handsome,-powder does set off a fine complexion, -was unable, for applause, to speak the opening words, being occupied for some seconds in receiving the floral offerings east at her feet by admirers, which Mr. A. Beechy (who played Snake) was busily employed in picking up and handing to her. Miss Emma Taylor, the young lady of the play, also had a good reception; so had Mr. Wallis, (Sir Oliver Surface); last of all, Mrs. Drew, as Lady Teazle, and, earlier in the play, Mr. John Gilbert-was welcomed back, after two years absence, with a genuine warmth, which appeared almost to overcome him. old stager as he is. Among the strangers who were handsomely received were Mrs. Charles Henri, a Mrs. Condour; Mr. Scallan, as Crabtree; Mr. Ringgold, as Sir Benjamin; Mr. C. Henri, as Trip; and Mr. W. H. Leak and Mr. J. K. Mortimer, as Joseph and Charles Surface.

The performance was one of great merit. The best scenes in acting, which also are those which read best, are those in which the male and female coterie murder character with so much carnest enjoyment, and here the give-and-take of repartee i the dialogue was cleverly bandied about between Lady Succeswell, Lady Teazle and Mrs. Candour We suspect that high comedy is not exactly Mrs. Henri's line, but that she will be found amusing and effective in familiar comedy and farce. Her husband played Trip with an easy nonchalance which became the "gentleman's gentleman" of se fine a beau as Mr. Charles Surface. The auction scene, where Charles has his ancestors knocked down to a broker, was also good, Careless (Mr. Manuel) officiating as salesman efficiently enough. The delightful badinage with which Lady Teazl meets the reproaches of her hashand, the love making, and the gradual going back into a quarrel; the screen-scene, and the happy finale, were all charmingly played. But among those, the scene in Joseph's library, where Sir Peter discovers his own wife concealed behind the screen which he believed was hiding a "little French milliner," stands out as the gem of the whole play. In this Mrs. Drew and Mr. Gilbert produce effects, by genuine good acting, which no other performers can give. It would be worth a person's while to sit out the previous three acts of the play, even if badly acted, to witness this screen scene. Of Mr. Lear, the Joseph Surface of the evening, we are unwil antil we see him in other plays. He had to sustain a character which, it always has appeared to us, most performers do not exactly comprehend. The conventional rule is to present Joseph Surface as a seriously plausible and hypocritical gentleman, who endeavors to gain the good word of all his acquaintances—and particularly of the ladies. A solemn gentleman, who pumps out his words with a syllabic atterance and in an oracularly senten tions manner, might impose upon a few, but the majority would distrust him. Juseph Surface, as the author drew the character, should be a gentleman of easy manners, yet sometimes slightly dashed with formalism, and possessing the faculty of adapting himself to the various persons whom he meets in so ciety. A solemn gentleman, bringing out his words with deliberate solemnity, surely could not succeed in captivating Maria, nor in nearly se ducing Lady Teazle. With scarcely an exception, every actor we have seen in this character has not shown its light as well as its chade, but has played on a dead level all through. We could pass over Mr. Mortimer's mistake of costume, in wearing a modern white vest in the time of the play, while all the other gentlemen around him properly wore the flap waistcoats of the time, but how could be commit such an anomaly as to sport a large pair of darkened moustaches? The play was written in 1775, and first performed in 1777, and, (as wo learn from the original draft and dialogue given in Moore's "Life of Sheridan,") Sir Peter Tenzle himself sets down the time of the action as the year 1752. At that time, and for seventy years later, no gentleman in English society wore a moustache, except foreign visitors, or officers in two or three particular regiments in the British army. Not even Charles Surface, man of fashion and dash as he is, wore moustaches on Saturday eve ning, and, if not he, why should his older, graver, and more quiet brother have them? It may be as well for Mr. Mortimer to know, at once, that, at a first-class theatre in Philadelphia, no actor can be allowed to cherish an unsuitable affection for hirsute appendages upon his upper lip. We beg Mr. Fredericks, the excellent stage-manager, to look to it, and put the axe (that is, the razor) at the root of this incongruous affectation and foppery Joseph Surface, in moustaches, a century ago! He might, as appropriately, have appeared in a uit of chain armor. Mr. Mortimer's Charles Surface was decidedly necessful. His comedy is of the true touch-andgo character—genial, gentlemanly, airy, off-hand. Mr. Mortimer is by far the best Charles Surface that has been seen in Philadelphia for many a long year. He is young and well-looking, with a good figure, and graceful, natural action. We have a slight doubt whether even an exquisite of 1752 would have sported a red tie over his lace cravat, but are confident that, when every other person in the play were the powdered peruke, Charles Surface should have worn it also. We repeat, judging from even this single performance, that Mr. Mortimer is an excellent light comedian.

Mr. Wallis, Mr. Scallan, Mr. A. Fisher, and Mr.

Beechey played their respective parts creditablyindeed, Mr. Wallis's Sir Oliver was an especially well-sustained part. The new scenery, (by Mr. Hayes,) the furniture, and the costumes at this theatre are of the best de scription. Mr. Frank S. Johnson, long attached to this house, continues as Director of Wardrebe. This evening "Old Heads and Young Hearts," and "Lend Me Five Shillings," will be played, when Charlotte Thompson will make her first ap pearance in this city, and Mr. Shewell and Frank Drew will also perform. MRS. GARRETTSON'S THEATRE.-This evening, Walnut-street Theatre will reopen. The fair lessee has materially strengthened her company—wisely determining to meet the friendly opposition in Arch street, in the only way it can effectively be met. The "star system," as it is called, will continue at Walnut street Theatre, but not exclusively or necessarily so, with the efficient dramatic corps the lessee now commands. This evening, the domestic drama of "The Willow Copse," (a piece, by the way, which Queen Victoria had the curiosity to see five times in one season,) will be played, when Miss Alice Grey, her first appearance in Philadelphia and in this character, will sustain the part of Rose Fielding, and Mr. Couldock, a good actor, who has not played here for four years, will personate Luke Fielding. Mr. Vining Bowers, Mr. S. Hemple, and Miss C. Jefferson are also in the cast, with Miss Hernarde, from New York, and Mr. J. McCullough, who is also new to these boards. The comedictts of "The Follies of a Night," will also be played, in which that established favorite, Mrs. Cowell, will appear, and also Mr. Edwin Adams and Mr. Vining Bowers.

To-morrow evening, Mr. Couldock will play Peter Probity. in "The Chimney Corner." He is engaged only for a week.

Dr. Cunnington continues Leader of the Orchestra. The other leading chiefships are Mr. Donnelly, Business Agent; Mr. Young, Stage Manager; Mr. J. Pilgrim, Prompter; Mr. P. Grain, Scenic McDonough's Olympic Theatre still flourishes

under the direction of Miss Annie Lonsdale, who has displayed both good taste and judgment in the selection of the pieces, and the placing them on the stage. The fine old comedies have proved highly attractive, and Mr. Harry Pearson, the comedian and vocalist, has achieved a brilliant success. This evening he appears as Lubin, in the fine old piece of "Love's Frailties," in which he sings two of his best songs. The afterpiece will be the famous drama of "Nick of the Woods." AGADEMY OF MUSIC. - There is very small prospect of Italian Opera here, this season. The City Item mentions that German Opera will be given here in a fortnight, under competent direction, by a good company.

Madame Colson, whom some persons in this city did not think nearly as good a singer as Madame Gazzaniga, is to appear, this season, as leading prima donna at La Scala, in Milan. Gazzaniga is singing at a small opera-house in Seville, to the delectation of Spanish audiences, and her husband, Mr. Albites, plays the violin in the orchestra.

Reception of the Body of General Lyon-The Ceremonies Here. The remains of Brigadier-General Nathaniel Lyon passed through the city on Saturday morning, en route for Connecticut. The body reached the passenger depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at quarter past six o'clock. On its arrival it was taken in charge by Company B., Captain Hastings, of the First Regiment of Artillery, Home Guards, who acted as a guard of honor. The coffin was placed in a private room at the depot, and a file of men surrounded the bier and excluded all persons. The body was in a metallic case, and this was covered with the American flag. Upon the top of the coffin lay the sword and chapeau of the deceased hero, while a wreath of laurel lay at the head. The following-named officers accompanied the corpse: H. A. Conant, of General Lyon's staff; Captains Plummer and Edgar, of the United States Army, and Lieut. Clark, and eight privates of Colonel McNeill's regiment of the Reserve Corps

A special car was provided by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the remains and the escort, the body being under the immediate care of Adams' Express The members of the escort were provided with breakfast at Eleventh and Market streets on Saturday morning. The Second Regiment of Infantry of the line, Colonel Charles P. Dare, had in the meantime been formed on Ninth street, with the right resting on Market street. The regiment was afterwards narched to Eleventh and Market streets, to await the removal of the remains from their temporary resting place. At eight o'clock the coffin was taken from the depot, and placed in a splendid hearse, prepared for the occasion by Mr. Simon Gartland. The hearse was enclosed with glass, and covered with rich drapery of black cloth, and with black plumes. At the top of the canopy was a gilt eagle, holding the American flag in its beak.

BURGLARY .- Information was lodged at the BURGLARY.—Information was longed at the Central Police Station, on Saturday, that early en the evening of Thursday last, the residence of Mr. Henry Croskey, at Edenhill, above Flat Rock, on the Schuylkill, was entered by burglars, who made their way into the second story of the house, and deliberately commenced examining the drawers and closets, and selecting every article of any value. light enough to carry away. When the nurse went up stairs with the children, she found the room had up stairs with the children, she found the room had a disordered appearance, but suspecting nothing wrong, put the children to bed, shut up the windows earefully and came down again. During this time the burglars concealed themselves under the beds, as was discovered by articles being found there which had been undoubtedly dropped by them, and afterwards proceeded with their work, opening doors and drawers, that were locked as nicely as if they had the proper keys. About ten o'clock Mrs. Croskey's eldest daughter, when about to retire, heard the footsteps of a man suddenly pass her. She was much alarmed, and called for help. Mr. Croskey went to her assistance, but found the burglars had escaped out of the second-story windows, taking with them their plunder, consisting of watches, chains, ear-rings, braceters, rings, and jewelry of all kinds, beside money and other articles.

ADMINISTERING THE OATH .- The mint and custom-house departments are determined that traitors shall not be detained in either place, unless perjury be added to their other crimes. The following oath was administered to all connected with these places: "I do solemnly swear that I with these places: "I do solemnly swear that I will support, protect, and defend the Constitution and Government of the United States against all enemies, whether domestic or foreign, and that I will bear true faith, allegiance, and loyalty to the same, any ordinance, resolution, or law of any State Convention or Legislature to the contrary notwithstanding; and further, that I do this with a full dotermination, pledge, and purpose, without any termination, pledge, and purpose, without any mental reservation, or evasion whatsoever; and, further, that I will well and faithfully perform all the duties that may be required of me by law. DARING ROBBERY .- A bold robbery was committed on Friday afternoon, at the banking-house of Messrs. Cambles & Company, South Third street. Mr. A. Bowman, of the Farmers' Bank of Lancaster, Lancaster, had come to the city to make an exchange of bank notes, and visited the house referred to for that purpose. He had notes to the amount of $2,200, and after the exchange had been made, and he had counted out $1,000 and laid it near him, a man walked into the office, and approaching Mr. Bowman, asked, "What is Virginia money worth now?" By this time Mr. Bowman was engaged in counting the rest of the money, and while he replied to the question did not take much notice of the other. In a few moments the stranger and the $1,000 package of notes were both missing. Mr. Bowman started after the man, but could not obtain any trace of him.

obtain any trace of him. ARRIVAL OF A PRIZE SHIP.—On Saturday afternoon, Prize Master Stophen S. Russell, of the United States ship-of-war Seminole, arrived at the United States ship-of-war Seminole, arrived at the navy yard, in charge of the schooner Allion, eaptured off Charleston, while attempting to run the blockade. The Albion is a schooner of about fifty tons burden. She cleared from Wilmington, North Carolina, with a cargo of turpentine, &c., for Cuba, and then loaded with sugar, coffee, &c., pretonded to be going to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. When captured, she was off the coast, watching an opportunity to run the blockade.

RIOTOUS CONDUCT .- John Malady was committed on Saturday morning for drunkenness and riotous conduct. The officer who attempted to arrest him, at Twenty-fourth and Pine streets, was struck a violent blow, and several other policemen who went to his assistance were received with a who went to his assistance were received with shower of bricks by a large crowd who had assombled. FIREMEN'S CONVENTION. - An adjourned recting of the Firemen's Convention, held for the purpose of procuring a stand of colors, to present to the Fire Zousves, was held on Saturday evening at the Hope Hose House.

After the selection of officers and the transaction of other business, they adjourned to meet at the Philadelphia Hose House, on Wednesday evening next, at 8 o'clock. SERIOUS CHARGE .- William Shearan and SERIOUS CHARGE.—Witham Shearan and Thos. McNamara, the driver and conductor of a passenger car, were before Alderman Moore, on Friday night, charged with having run over a colored boy, named David Rickow, at Fourth and South streets. The latter had his right leg and left foot crushed, and was taken to the hospital. The accused were committed, in default of $1,500 bail, for a further hearing.

ARREST OF A COUNTERFEITER .- A young man by the name of William Buck was arrested, on Saturday morning, by Detective Officer Samuel Wrigley, for counterfeiting $10 notes on the Lycoming Bank of Pennsylvania. The notes were executed nieely, and were well calculated to deceive. Officer Wrigley deserves great credit for the manner in which he followed the man up, and brought him to justice. Buck was committed for a hearing. RUNAWAY .- Mr. Thomas S. White, residing at Third and German streets, met with a serious accident on Saturday afternoon. While driving in the vicinity of Front and Diamond streets his horse took fright at a wagon filled with yarn, and ran away. The wagon was overturned, and Mr. White thrown out. He was conveyed to his home. FATAL RESULT .- David Rickow, the colored boy who was run over by a passenger car at fourth and South streets, died at the Pennsylvania Hospi-tal on Friday night. Coroner Conrad held an in quest in the case on Saturday afternoon The jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.—George Riseinger was before Alderman Beitler, on Saturday afternoon, charged with having robbed the grocery store of D. Focht & Brother, No. 315 North Third street. D. Focht & Brother, No. 315 North Third street. Officer Hood, of the Reserve Corps, while on his way home at a late hour on Friday night, observed Riseinger and a companion acting very mysteriously, and finally saw them take a bag from a barrel in front of the store and place it in a passenger our. Upon seeing the officer the two left the car and ran. Officer Hood pursued them, and after a chase of three squares succeeded in capturing Riseinger. The bag alluded to proved to be filled with indigo valued at about thirty-five dollars. Riseinger was formerly employed by Messrs. Pocht & Brother as a drayman, and one of the keys of the store was entrusted to his care. He left his place about six weeks since, and did not roturn the key, and is supposed to have used it on Friday night to effect an entrance. The accused was committed in effect an entrance. The accused was committed in default of $1,000 bail.

Benton, and their illustrious compeers, included among them the dectrine of opposition to banks and banking, and that gold and silver was the true basis for the prepart of the labor, of the workingment of the payment of the labor of the workingman, and that, after one of the most severe fights ever known, they caused the downfall of the Bank of the United States, and the establishment of a specie currency.

Resolved, That any man who, in his representative capacity, has voted to restore the old, worthless, and exploided shinplaster-system, has lost the confidence of the Democratic party, and been false to the trust reposed in him.

Resolved, That no man can command the sup port of the Democratic party unless he pledge himself to use his utmost endeavors to repeal the obnoxious shinplaster-system of the last Legisla

HAY MARKET .- The increased demand for HAY MARKET.—The increased demand for hay during the past week has caused it to advance considerably in price. Parties who have contracts for supplying the Government with hay are buy ing it up in large quantities, and are daily sending it off to Washington, where large bodies of caralry are encamped. The farmers are taking advantage of this, and, to secure a good price for their crop, they are sending it into the city in large quantities. The last week's quotations show sales of over five hundred loads, at from soventy-five cents to ninety cents per cwt. which is an increase of fifteen cents per cwt. over the prices of the previous week. No material change in the price of straw has been noticeable for several weeks past. The last week's sales, of forty loads, realized from fifty last week's sales, of forty loads, realized from fifty to sixty cents per ewt. DISCHARGED ON BAIL.—Mrs. Henry S. Gil-pin, the grandmother of Mr. William L. Johnston, who was arrested a week since on the charge of having been an officer in the Confederate army, having been an omeer in the contenurate minj, and of being about to rejoin it, appeared on Saturday afternoon before Judge Cadwalader, and entered bail in the sum of ten thousand dollars that the accused should refrain from the commission of any offence against the laws of the United States.

Fire.—On Saturday morning, between 3 and 4 o'clock, a fire was discovered in the fourth story of the building No. 811 Market street. The apartment was occupied by C. W. Stiles as a gymnasium. The fire originated in the southwestern portion of the room, and was caused by a lighted stump of a cigar having been thrown into a wooden spittoon filled with sawdust. A hole was burnt through the floor, but the flames were extinguished before any further damage had been done. The first floor was occupied by Freed, Ward, & Freed, comprising magnitudes. commission merchants; second story by J. A. Murray, painter, and the third by Mr. Stiles as a bow-

PICKING POCKETS .- A man, named Alexander Fassett, was arrested by Officer Barger, on Saturday night, at Sixth and Callowhill streets, for picking the pocket of D. W. Martin of a porte-monnaic, containing about thirty dollars. The porte-monnaic and money were recovered by the officer. The accused was taken before Alderman Butler, and committed for a further hearing. FLAG-RAISING .- The workmen in the National Wagon Works of Mr. Henry Simons, on Saturday, raised a splendid American fing at the works, Second and Cumberland streets. A salute of thirty-four guns was fired, a collation was sorved, and there were patriotic speeches, singing, &c. APPOINTMENT .- On Saturday afternoon Edward G Carlin was appointed a detective officer by Mayor Henry. Mr. Carlin occupied the same position under Mayor Vanx, but for some time past has been attached to Recorder Encu's force.

THE TURE .- On Tuesday, the 10th instant Flora Temple and John Morgan (formerly Medoc) will trot at Oxford Park for a purse and stake of $1,200. Both are noted racers. They have already trotted together three times. OWNERS WANTED.—Several pairs of shoes and a number of coats are at the Filbert-street station house awaiting owners. The articles are sup-posed to have been stolen by an Englishman, named James Martin, who was arrested on Saturday, and FOUNDLING .- About nine o'clock, on Saturday evening, Officer Donaghy found a female in-fant, upon the steps of a house on Lombard street, above Seventeenth. The foundling was sent to the CITY ITEMS. How to Acquire Wealth .- Wealth is not cquired, as many suppose, by fortunate speculation and plendid enterprises, but by the daily practice of industry, frugality, and economy. Hence, we advise all our readers who wish to effect a great saving in the purchase of clothing to patronize the Fashionable Gift Establishment of Granville Stokes, 609 Chestnut street. A splendid assortment of seasonable garments always on hand, and for sale at the lowest prices. One price only asked, and with each sale a handsome gift is presented. Colors for Soldiers .- Much trouble has hitherto been experienced to prevent our soldiers from mistoking sister regiments for the enemy, and thus firing unon each other. General McClellan has given orders concerning this matter, which, if followed, would prevent such blunders. The wisest plan is for regiments, companies, and single individuals, to procure their uniforms at the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockhill & Wilson Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth, and they will be sure to obtain them of regulation pattern and color. Since this firm have established a military department of their business, there is no difficulty in obtaining garments for soldiers that are unexceptionable in respect to color, cut, workmanship, and durability. REMOVAL .- E. W. Carryl & Co., manufacturers of Silver-plated Wares, and dealers in House-furnishing Goods, Army Trunks, Camp Utensils, &c., have removed to No. 715 Chestnut street, directly opposite their old stand. an30-6t PHILADELPHIA BOARD OF TRADE. GEO. N. TATHAM, delicate boys, receives great attention. Abstinence from vicious habits, kindliness and purity of inforcourse among the pupits are insured by the conseant presence of teachers, encouraging them both in their sports and their styllics. Instinctive that Muthematic, together with the English branches, and French, was theroughly taught. In short, every effort is made to give the pupits

a fourfold and complete education.
