

The Press.

THURSDAY, SEPT. 12, 1861. EXTRACT FROM THE LAST SPEECH OF STEPHEN A. DOUGLASS. The conspiracy to break up the Union is a fact now known to all. America is being raised, and we are invited to accomplish it. There can be but two sides to the conspiracy. Every man must be either a patriot or a traitor. There can be no neutral ground.

FOR SALE.—The double-edged "Warrior" Press on which this paper has been printed for the past year and a half, and which has been used to print this paper, is now for sale. It is a fine press, and is well adapted for printing any kind of paper.

The Fall Election.

When the existence of a nation is imperiled the trivial differences and disputes of politicians should be ignored; and the most imperative duty of all good citizens is to overpower their enemies, to restore order, and to secure its safety. In a great crisis like the present, every man should be a patriot, and not a traitor. The Union is our life, and we must stand by it to the death.

Under such circumstances, it is to be expected that all recollection of the old political divisions of our country will be suddenly forgotten. Every man should be a patriot, and not a traitor. The Union is our life, and we must stand by it to the death.

The National Loan. The efforts of Secretary Chase to popularize the National Loan will shortly result in a large number of subscribers. The loan is a patriotic duty, and every citizen should contribute to it.

Military in Canada. There cannot be any truth in the statement, said to be copied from the London Globe, that the British Government has ordered 50,000 additional troops to Canada. It is a mere rumor.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due. The reception of Hon. Andrew G. Curtin, Governor of Pennsylvania, at the presentation to the Pennsylvania Reserve Division under General McClellan, was a fitting tribute to his services to the country.

Slavery and the Rebellion.

It is a significant and singular fact that out of the very prosperity of the slave interest in this country, inevitably arose the rebellion which now threatens to destroy it. While the halls of Congress were resounding year after year with clamors for better protection for slavery, the "peculiar institution" was so well protected that slaves were constantly being introduced into our country. This increase was not spasmodic or irregular, but steady and constant, and it was kept up until the slaves of the United States sold for a price far beyond that ever obtained for them in any other nation in which slavery had been tolerated.

The State Legislature. All families who own slaves of this city and State know that Philadelphia has long been miserably represented in the State Legislature. With few exceptions, the men who have chosen to represent this city have been unworthy of the position.

General Curtis. General Curtis was a brave and patriotic soldier. He was a true patriot, and he was a true soldier. He was a true patriot, and he was a true soldier.

General Curtis. General Curtis was a brave and patriotic soldier. He was a true patriot, and he was a true soldier. He was a true patriot, and he was a true soldier.

LETTER FROM "OCCASIONAL."

WASHINGTON, September 11, 1861. Say what you please about speeches, in these days a good speech, spoken at the proper place and at the proper time, and by the proper man, may be productive of incalculably good results. Mr. Holt's speech in the Senate, on the 27th of August, is a case in point.

General Curtis. General Curtis was a brave and patriotic soldier. He was a true patriot, and he was a true soldier. He was a true patriot, and he was a true soldier.

A large party started out at seven o'clock this morning from the vicinity of Chain Bridge, under the command of Colonel SEYMERS, of the New York Highlanders.

It consisted of several detached companies of infantry, a company of cavalry, and Capt. Griffin's battery.

As our skirmishes advanced, the enemy's pickets retired beyond Lewisville, about seven miles beyond Chain Bridge.

Our troops having accomplished the object of their errand, connected with the reconnaissance of the country, began to retrace their steps, when a large force of Confederates, consisting of two or three regiments of infantry, and Col. STEWART'S regiment of Virginia cavalry, with a battery of four pieces, were seen approaching.

General Curtis, commanding the division to which these troops were attached, arrived on the scene shortly after the engagement commenced, and once assumed the command.

convertible into coin at the option of the holder at 100 cents. The People's Bank, however, is not receivable for public debt. They must be always equivalent to gold, and often, and for many purposes, more convenient and valuable. A sufficient amount of such notes is now in circulation to demand well for the deposits, but they are not respectively made payable, and all deposits and collecting officers will receive them, and depositors are at liberty to draw out their money at any time. Large amounts of the notes of small denominations are rapidly being issued and distributed.

Health of the Troops. The brigade under command of Brig. Gen. KEYS was reviewed this afternoon by the sanitary commission. The appearance of the troops was highly creditable—John Robinson.

The Metropolitan Police. The Metropolitan or Government police system went into operation to-day. One hundred and eight, two-thirds of the entire force, are now on duty. The oath of allegiance was previously administered.
