o'clock yesterday he was not pursued. In Camp Wildeat, at that time, there were 7,000 men, and three other regiments on the read. It is believed that a forward movement is ordered by the rebels, and Zollicoffer is to command it.
'The prisoners say that Zollicoffer believed he would have an easy task to take Camp Wildeat, as he was satisfied that Garrard's regiment, 700 strong, was all the force in eamp. A number of guns, pistols. &c., fell into our hands. tols. &c., fell into our hands.

'This, the first battle fought in Kentucky, is a glorious victory for us and the Union cause. May it be followed by others until not a robel is to be found in all the land. found in all the land. Kentucky Union Soldiers. The Louisville Journal says:

We will tundoubtedly have nearly 40,000 men in active service before the winter sets in, and should our troops succeed in driving back Buckner's advance, and hold in check the southwestern move-ments of Polk and Pillow, thus liberating our strong Union counties in the centre of the State. that number will be largely increased. The Battle for Bread.

The Louisville Journal, of October 26, says: The Louisville Journal, of October 28, says:

It does not seem to us that the Government comprehends the full importance of the position of Kentacky, or the necessity of breaking up the pivotal point, and snapping the spinal cord of railroad between the Atlantic ocean and the Mississippi, valley. Such action would as effectually break the back of this rebellion as the sundering of the spinal cord would destroy the vitality of the human body. The rebels understand this, and there is hardly a doubt that the fight which seems human body. The rebols understand this, and there is hardly a doubt that the fight which seems failing on the Potomac will soon "trebly thunder on the gale" in Kentneky. They fully know that, if they cannot occupy and hold Kentucky this winter, they must prepare for submission. This is not a mere military nedessity, but a natural, absolute, and vital necessity—the necessity of subsisting their troops. If then, we could break the rail road connection in East Tennessee, somewhere between Knoxviife and Chuttangogen, we shall have tween Knoxville and Chattanooga, we shall have schieved as important a movement as Napoleon did when he broke the Austrian centre at the battle of when he broke the Austrian centre at the battle of Wagram. We should paralyze the rebelforces, cut the venomous trail of the Secession serpent in two, leaving one portion to writhe in Virginia and the other in Western Tennessee. The Secession armies are almost at an extremity for the means of subsistence, they have wasted Virginia almost to her last corn-field and flour-mill. They must be fed, and the slaves must also be sustained from exhausted stores. If they cannot seize and hold Kentucky their fate is certain, for there will arise among them a battle for the means of life as femishing sailors a battle for the means of life, as famishing sailors on a sbipwrecked raft, though dying, fight with capablal ferocity over the bones of the last dead

Added to this, there will be another element of horror almost too horrible to contemplate; the slave population, maddened for food, will see their slave population, maddened for food, will see their masters quarra ling, and the very instincts of nature will induce them to join the fray, that they may snatch a crust from amid the shrieks of famine. The Battle for Bread, then, must be fought by the Confederates on the soil of Kentucky against the Union forces, or it must be waged in Tunnessee, Western Virginia and Navyharn Alphana and Mis-Western Virginia, and Northern Alabama and Mississippi in an indiscriminate war between the whites and negroes.

We do not put forward these views as mere spe-We do not put forward these views as mere speculative theories, but we write from actual information and a knowledge of the strategic position of the belligerents. The Confederates are in sore distress and want; the masses are tired of the unnatural strife forced upon them by military despots, and would willingly return to their allegiance if they could. A gentleman, with his wife- and five children, reached our city this week from North Alabama, who says there are thousands in that region longing and praying for the appearance of a Union army in their midst. and who are opposed to one army in their must, and who are opposed any further connection with the despotism which bolsters up a few military leaders who have controlled the rest by the enactment of lawsmore bloody, severe, and arbitrary than the codes of any past age. These leaders tell them that the Confederacy will These leaders tell them that the Confederacy v soon be recognized by European Powers, a f which might, by its moral effect, stimulate th exertions, but could be productive of no real adexertions, but could be productive of no real advantage. They tell, too, that we are exhausted, that we have nothing to eat, and that the war is carried on exclusively for the extinction of slavery. As the hopes excited by these exaggerations die away the truth glares them all the more conspicuously in the face that they are verging to the point of starvation and that the winter cannot be without come suggestial rold when our sail assed without some successful raid upon our soil o obtain the means of life. Bread is the very life racy depends upon the subsistence of its troops. If. therefore, they cannot hold Kentucky, they must prepare to submit to the Constitution and the laws. It is for Kentucky. of the rebellion, and the existence of the Confedelaws. It is for Kentucky, therefore, to decide whether the Battle for Bread shall be fought on her

MISCELLANEOUS WAR NEWS.

Why Does Not General McClellan Attack. the Enemy Along His Whole Line? The public are impatient because a great victory has not been achieved in front of Washington. American go-aheadativeness demands imperatively, now war has existed for nearly six months, that somebody must effect a vast achievement. This demand has not yet been complied with. Wherefore?

First, because Bull Run was risked too soon, in compliance with this same imperative, ever-exacting demand of American life. It was lost. Demoralization followed. Leadership and reorganization must come, or the capital must fall. They both came. They are now everywhere present and felt; one electric nerve touches and animates the vast army surrounding Washington, ready on the instant to advance into Central Virginia. The battery supplying the fluid is Gen. McClellan's

So calm, so quiet, so self-reliant is that brain, that thirty thousand men have left his advance within a fortnight to attack the enemy in rear, and to strike quick, hard, terrible blows, The main force under his control will not move until that sea expedition has reported itself master of commandrg positions on the enemy's flenk. Let us rely upon the inspirations of that intellect-

It has hitherto accomplished much, a sure promise that it will accomplish more. Like that of Fremont, it may be railed against, but its superhuman energy, interjected with high intelligence, will remove all opposition.
"Victory or death" is the glorious motto of the generals-in-chief upon the Potomac and the far-off Mississippi.

The world's history teems with the success of youth uniting courage with brains. Soldiers, munitions, and time constitute their elements of success. Both have these. Both will live the impersonations of heroism and genius; opposites, but equals in fame.

Confiscation of Rebel Property. Washington, Oct. 29.—Two advertisements are published this morning, the first one being at the instance of the President of the United States, commanding the United States marshal to attach certain real and personal property of William Shields, and to give notice to all persons claiming the same, or knowing or having anything to say why the same should not be condemned to the use of the United States, to appear before the District Court en the 28th of Nevember next, to interpose their claims, and to make their allegations in that behalf. The second advertisement, published by order of the court, is in accordance with the first, and sets forth that William Shields, formerly of Washington, some months ago removed with his family to Richmond, where he has been residing ever since, and where he has been, and is now, engaged in the insurrection and resistance to the laws of the United States of America, now existing in the said State, and in secret correspondence with the enemies of the said United States residing in the city of Washington and elsewhere, transmitting to them money and other valuables, and receiving the same from them in return, which has been applied in part to aid and abet and promote the said insurrection and resistance to the laws, and those who are engaged therein; and the said William Shields has knowingly used and employed, and consented to the use and employment of the property hereinafter more particularly described, to aid, abot, and promote the said insurrection, and parties therein engaged. Quartermaster Howe, of the Fifteenth Massachu. setts, has brought hither J. Owens Berry, first lieutenant of the Eighth Virginia Regiment, Samuel Bluff, and delivered them over to the custody of Provost Marshal Porter. Gen. Kelly's Victory. The Wheeling Press says: "If Gen. Kelly were speedily reinforced, so as to proceed on to Winchester by the Northwestern pike, he would then be in possession of all the available avenues, now in the hands of the rebels, by which to reach Harper's Ferry, Leesburg, and Manassas. Once get Winchester, and hold it, the Government could send over the Baltimore and Ohio Railread any necessary force to New Creek, and thence, via Romney, to Winchester. Thus would the Character have to Winchester. Thus would the Government have it in its power to attack Manassas in the rear. Again, from Winchester forces could preceed down the valley and connect with any move that Rosecrans might desire to make towards Staunton, or further "on to Richmond."

Promotions from the Ranks.
Under the present administration of the War Department there is a chance for men of merit to rise partment there is a chance for men of merit to rise from the ranks. The ability that created the marchals of France, under Napoleon, will have full that the following the searched the regular army for sergennts who had brains, experience, and virtue, and conferred upon twenty-five of them commissions as second lieutenuts. Their future is in their course the War Department since the Mexican war. Secretary Cameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Government, now thirteen years old. Jeff. Davis's malignity brought him in debt, on account of his expenditures and receipts in Mexico, and so far as a Sceretary's report could do it, discredited the veteran as a financial agent of the Government, and a commander of supreme authority. Mr. Cameron has reported that Gen. Seott was not only entitled to the moneys he claimed from the Government, but that he saved to it millions of dollars which, by the laws of war, he could have pocketed, under the settled principles regulating the distribution of prize and contribution money. This opportunity of personal advantage Winfield Scott generously diverted to the founding of a home for invalid soldiers. One of his monuments, long after he is dead, will be the Soldier's Home near Washington.

George D. Prentice the many schemes for carrying Kentucky out of the Union was a persevering attempt to buy Prentice, or, failing in that, to buy his paper. He was first approached with the modest offer of $25,000 by any other conveyance. sell-2m

A special despatch to the New York Tribune says the scarred and wornout veteran Gen. Scott will voluntarily retire from his rank and duties within the next ten days, solely on account of his physical infarmities. The recent act of Congress provided that there should be no reduction in his pay, subsistence, or allowances, in the event of his withdrawal from his command. It is well known that Gen. Scott has had an unsettled account with the War Department since the Maxican war. Secretary Cameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination to his claims against the Gameron has recently given a careful examination remains the past year we have introduced to the endical profession of this country the Pure G PLIXIR PROPYLAMINE, FENNS LVANIA HUSETTAL, and with MARKED SUCCESS, (as will appear from the published accounts in the medical journals).
