Palmerston, and, after a good deal of delay, our minister resumed the subject, and continued, from time to time, to press the adroit Foreign Secretary to give him one. Still no answer came. It may well be imagined, by those who knew Mr. Stevenson, how his quick blood was stirred, and how he fretted and chafed at the delay. "What am I to do, sir? I've exhausted the English language ; Palmerston won't say a word, sir; and Forsyth leaves the whole thing to me, sir." These, and such like exclamations of an impatience, very natural under the circumstances, blended with an ever-genial and cordial nature, will be readily called to mind by those who were in the habit of frequenting the hospitable roof of the American Legation in London at

His lordship, if not as deaf, was as dumb as the inmates of the large house in Broad street above Pine. Mr. Stevenson, of course, kept our Govern-ment constantly informed that he had nothing to tell them, and as constantly received nothing from them in return. At last, on the 11th of September, 1839, came a despatch to our minister from our own foreign secretary, at Washington, quite as acship in Downing street, whom the English oppothat no further instructions were necessary for again bringing to the notice of her Majesty's Government the case of the Caroline; because Mr. Fox, the British minister, at Washington, (Mr. Stevenson's) application !
