" In the cossiwise and blockading duties of the navy it has been not milrequent that fugilities from insurrec-tionary places have sought our ships for refuge and pro-fection, and our noval commanders have applied to me tionary places have sought our ships for refuge and pro-tection, atd our n-val commanders have applied to me for instruction as to the proper disposition which should be made of such refurces. My answer has been that, if insurgents, they should be handed over to the custody of the Government; but if, on the contrary, they were free from any voluntary participation in the rebellion and sought the shelter and protection of our flag, then they should be more for naul time ployed in some useful manner, and might be collisted to serve on our public vessels or in our navy yrads, receiving wages for their labor. If such employ-ment could not be furnished to all by the navy, they ment could not be furnished to all by the navy, they should be proceed freely and peaceably, without re-straint, to seek a hyelihood in any loyal portion of the country. This I have considered to He to the whole re-dired duty in the premises, ofour naval officer. The fuel estimates for the year ending June 30, 1863, smount to $14,625,665 ; and besides this, the Secretary reports a deficit of $15,530,000 needed for current ex-penses to pay for vessels, particused, and for mecosary alterations incurred in fitting them for naval purposes, for the purchase of and for the con-struction and completion of twenty iron-clad vessels.

Effect of the War upon the Position and Prospects of the West.

[Correspondence of The Press] MILWAUKEE, Nov. 27, 1351. War is a great modifier. Many as are the evils it engenders, it has its compensations. If there is much of bloodshed, there is, by the same process. much purification of the body politic. A few months ago and the whole country was divided into fiérée political factions, denying each to the other all political virtues. Now the body politic is a unit in expression, if not wholly so in feelings. Political lines are mainly blotted out, and the nation has been brought to know that, despite the fierce invective of the past, the masses of all parties are honest, if they are at times unwisely demonstrative. The "logic of events" has taught us to repose a measure of confidence in the virtues of one another. This is, of itself, a great gain, and it is much to be hoped that the denunciatory habits of the past are laid aside forever. Faith in one another should are laid aside forever. Faith in one another should be the peculiar characteristic of our future politi-cal discussions. There would be no end to the catalogue were we to attempt to enumerate all the changes that the war will bring about. Let us notice a few only of those which are likely to take place in the grent Mississippi valley—this Elan garden of the world. The currency of the West garden of the world. The currency of the West was, until recently, based chiefly upon the stocks of the Southern States, taken by the State authorities under the unwise system that has prevailed here, in security for the issues of the banks. As the rebellion proved almost wholly fatal to the con-vertibility of the stocks, so, as a necessary conse-quence, it has proved fatal to the existence of the banks themselves. Most of them have been closed and the stocks solid for what they would bring quence, it has proved latal to the existence of the banks themselves. Most of them have been closed up, and the stocks sold for what they would bring in the New York market. The immediate loss was great; the suffering also. The result, however, is, that it has purified the currency, and rapidly the whole country is receivering from the stunning blow, and entering again upon an era of prosperity mequalled, we believe, in all her former history. Chicego would hardly, at the present moment, ba recognized as the same place, in a business point of view, that it was a year ago. A moderate revirat of business was, porhaps, to have been expected, under any circumstances, but it has been precipi-tated and immensely enlarged by the contingencies of the war. Chicego is now the contingencies of the war. Chicego is now the contingencies of the war. Chicego is now the contingencies fore New Orleans and other Southern ports were closed. Many of these changes will be somewhat permanent in their nature. It will be many years before the connierce of the West will flow again in its former channels, if it ever does. The deepening the Illinous Canal connecting Take Michigan with the Mississippi river is likely to be immediarely effected, as a work of national importance. The calification of cotton and tobacco is likely to be largely stimulated at all points throughout the West where these products of the Importance. The entityation of extend and tobacco is likely to be largely stimulated at all points throughout the West where these products of the soil will grow. The subject of the entityation of cotton in Southern Illinois is now attracting much attention. There are believed to be at least attention. Intere are oblighted to be at least 5,000,000 of acres adapted for the growth of cotton, and it is certain, if seed of the proper kind can be obtained, that a considerable effort will be made to test the matter thoroughly during the sisting season. Stranger things have happened than that Southern Illinois should become essentially a cot-ton and these or graving country.

Southern Illinois should become essentially a cot-ton and tobacco growing country. The most important benefit, however, which the West is to experience as the result of the war is the re-establishment of an immigration altogether unparalleled in its past history. The social and in-dustrial demoralization of the South will be so great from the present excesses, and the inevitable changes which the present excesses, and the inevitation changes which the war has already and will here-after produce, that large numbers of those who had taken up their residence there, permanently as they supposed, will find it convenient, if, indeed, they are not obliged, in sheer self-defence, to leave there

The bulk of this emigration will be determined ohiefly to the great free West. Already many cases of this kind are well established. As now advised, for this kind are well calabiashed. As now advised, Southern Illinois is likely to be somewhat favored by this class of emigrants. We trust that it may be so, and that the caltivation of cotton by free labor may be exemplified in that, for this purpose, favor-ed locality. The numerous failures, also, that have taken place among the commercial and manufac-turing classes of the East will determine large numbers of those exterprising and energetic men to seek new homes and to found new fortnnes in the teeming West. There has never occurred, in the past history of the country superstant exclusion with the
