PROBABLE HOMICIDE IN TWENTIETH WARD. On Thursday evening a man named Poter Brady was stabled, at the corner of Eleventh and Columbia avenue, Twentieth ward. He was wounded in three or four Twentieth ward. He was wounded in three or four places. His assailant ran down Columbia avenue, and was pursued by Brady, who overtook him at Tenth street. Here he was again stabled, but his antagonist was secured by a conductor of the Tenth and Eleventhstreet railroad, and taken to the Twentieth-ward station-nouse. The prisoner is named Daulel Dotter. He is a single man, about twenty-six pears of age, and belong to Company H, Sixty-seventh Regiment Pennsylvania oods. Numerous statements in regard to the affair are rite. would seem that Dotter and a comrade were in a vern at Eleventh, and Oxford streets. Brady was also there, and an altercation between the parties occurred. The soldiers left and were followed by Brady. It was then that Brady was stabled. He was conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Vesterday morning Alderman Shaw proceeded to the hospital and took the deposition of Brady. It is substantially as follows:

stantially as follows:

He states that the man now under arrest (Dotter) is the man who stabbed him. I think he struck me first, but I do not recollect how the affair first commenced; it began in the house of John Cavenaugh, southeast corner of Eleventh and Oxford: he ray up the attention of I pegan in the honeout John Cavenaugh, southeast corner of Eleventh and Oxford; he ran up the street, and I after him, when he ran isto the sack-yard of Joseph Roats; there is a little one-story house standing in the yard; he ran around one side, and I ran around the other; we met; he had a knife in his hand, and stabled other; we met; he had a kune in his hand, and standed me in the breast and back with it; there was ne one with me at the time, nor with Dotter; after he stabled me, he ran out into Tenth street, and I followed him, when I discovered that I was cut; I shouted for somebody to arrest him, that he had cut me; the man was brought into the place where I was carried, and I recognized him; while there I fell upon the floor from exhaustion; I had drunk two glasses of porter and one of brandy before the occurrence; there were several persons in the business. occurrence; there were several persons in the house at the time the affair commenced; there might have been twelve in all; I followed him out of the house, and ran Mfor him. . {Here the wounded man became exhausted, and was nable to proceed further.]

At ten o'clock yesterday morning the prisoner had a hearing at the Twelith-district station-house, when the ing evider ce was elicited :

Iollowing evider ce was elicited:

J. C. Carnan, affirmed.—I was attracted by hearing the cry of "Murder!" about eleven o'clock I heard a man say he was stabbed; I ran after him as he was going down the strict! I caught him and turned him round; I asked him if he was stabbed, and he told me to look; I did so, and found a hole in his coat; I put my hand in the hole, through the back of his coat; and felt something warm, which I supposed was blood.

The man was afterwards conveyed to the Depot Hotel, where he recognized the prisoner as the man who had stabbed him. The man was afterwards conveyed to the Depot Hotel, where he recognized the prisoner as the man who had stabbed him.

In the absence of the physician who had attended the wounded man at the lospital, Sergeant Ford was sworn, and testified that he had had an interview with the physician who had attended Brady at the hospital in the morning. He stated that he had seen worse wounds that had not proved mortal.

The case was then continued over until seven o'clock in the evening. At that hour the hearing was resumed. The only witness examined was Dr. Cruice, who, being sworn, said that two of the wounds might prove fatal, and that the man, in his opinion, was in a very precarious situation. THE STEAM-SLOOP JUNIATA .- The sloop-of-

THE STEAM-SLOOP JUNIATA.—The sloop-ofwar Juniata is still on the stocks in the large ship-house of the navy yard. She should have been launched on the first of January last, and might readily have been, we are informed, had the machinery been ready. The latter is being manufactured by a Wilmington firm, who have had ample time to complete it.

The Juniata is as nearly finished as she can be for the present. She cannor, of course, be coppered until after launching, but she has been caulked and painted, and her aways" have been laid. The beds for her engines have been inserted for several weeks. But a comparatively small force of workmen is now employed upon her, in sonsequence of so much having been already accomplished. Her spars, rigging, etc., are now being made, and will be ready as soon as the machinery, so that no additional delay will occur.

The Juniata could, no doubt, be clad in iron if necesfary. Her draught would be so materially increased thereby, however, and such an additional labor thrown upon her engines, that the advantage resulting from the project would be very doubtful; while her rate of speed would likewise be much decreased.

In connection with this subject of iron-plates for casing war vessels, we may mention that a Government agent lately left this country for the purpose of obtainlag some reliable data on the subject. A number of inventions have been brought forward, both of improved annor-plates, each drimproved methods of sacuring to the frame of the vessels. Some of them would seem to possess merit, and have been awarded patents. For finstance, a patent has been secured for constructing armor-plates, each having three or more ribs, which are afterwards cut by a lathe, so as to dovetail (by means of Joneuss and groves) into each other. When placed upon erwards cut by a lathe, so as to dov tongues and groves) into each other. When placed upon the vessel's frame, they are wedged together with keys, Apatent has also been granted for a plan of rolling the plates with flanges on the rinner sides, so that they may be secured in position without the necessity of punching bolt holes through the plates. Their edges are so recessed that each fits into the edge of the plate immediately below it. ately below it.

Letters patent have likewise been issued for a method of constructing and arranging the plates in such manner as to obtain the benefit of their maximum strength and resistance, so as render unnecessary the expense of a heavy wooden framework. The plates proposed are of the box form, and clasp the vessel's frame.

None of these descriptions of armor-plates will be used for the new frigate contracted for by Messrs. Merrick & Son. The hammerad plates (which we described a few days since) will be used, not only for this vessel, but for the new gunboats which will shortly be commenced for the Government. The chgines and boilers for the new sloops-of-war to be built at the Philadelphia navy yard are being made at the foundry of Messrs. Merrick. The machinery is to be of a kind similar to that made for the gunpoats built at PREACHING BY AN ECCENTRIC DIVINE,-The ev. Wm. P. Corbit, a very remarkable and individ vine, will hold forth to morrow at the Tabernacle Rev. Wm. P. Corbit, a very remarkable and individual divine, will hold forth to-morrow at the Tabernacle M. E. Church, Eleventh street, above Jefferson. Mr. Corbit is one of the most eminent preachers of the Methodist faith, and is a man of undoubted sincerity, energy, and zeal. He was born in New Jersey, in or about 1820, and became in early boyhood a wagoner in Pennsylvania. Rising in his trade, he undertook the business of carting brick into Philadelphia from the adjacent kilns, and at one time had as many as one hundred men in his employ. His energy was remarked by all who knew him; it is said that, in order to be the first at work in the morning, he used to sleep all night on a chair. Some years ago he was touched by the preaching of the late Bev. Dr. Charles Pitman, of New Jersey, in his lifetime one of the ablest ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church; under his guidance Mr. Corbit joined the church and studied for the ministry. His career as a preacher has been very successful. His famous sermon to the "Thieves and Earlots" of New York city, sometime since, will be remembered by many of our readers. The church, on this occasion, was crowded with the depraved, the debazed, and the curious. Perhaps a like discourse in this city would bring out a similar element.

On attempting to arrest him, the man dree his sabre and made a lunge at the officer. The latter, stepping back suddenly, avoided a fatal blow-butreceived, however, a slight wound in the abdomen. His assailant was arrested and held to answer. He gave the name of Andrew Rhoads. This is the third time that Mr. Lare has made a narrow escape from death while in the performance of his duty. On two previous occasions he was confined to his house for several weeks by his injuries.

PAINTUL OPERATION.—Serg't Sloam, of the Valifornia regiment, who received a musket ball in his hip at the battle of Ball's Bluff, had an operation performed upon him yesterday, by Dr. Samuel H. The skilful manner in which Dr. A. performed the task, after so many unsuccessful attempts had been made by other surgeons is, to say the least, creditable to the medical profession of this city.

ancient slavery was contrary to Holy Scripture. We are SPECIAL NOTICES. TO THE GRAND ARMY OF THE POTOMAC. The following is an extract from a letter sent to Co. D, One Hundred and Sixth Regiment, P. V., now at "Camp Observation," near Adamstown, Md., from this city by Corporal Frederick H. Spalding, who was discharged rom service on the 16th of January, 1862. Read it: "I Banquette-An elevation of earth within a fort, three | was discharged on the 16th of January, as most of you or four feet wide, and less than five feet from the top of the parapet, to enable short men to fire over the para- bad cough and pain in my lungs, which kept me awake nights, and in misery all the time. I arrived in this city on the 18th, and was carried to the house of one of my friends, who commenced giving me WISHART'S PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL. In three or four days the pain in my lungs had left me entirely, and my cough has been etting better ever since, so that I now cough but two or three times in twenty-four hours; and, I have no doubt, by its use I shall soon be well. When I came here I had little or no appetite, but now I can enjoy a meal of victuals as well as ever in my life, and I am gaining strength very rapidly so that I now walk a mile or two each day with but little fatigue, and have gained about fifteen pounds of flesh since leaving camp. I am satisfied there is no better medicine made for camp diseases, and especially coughs and colds, than WISHABT'S TAR COR-DIAL. FREDBRICK H. SPALDING." L. Q. C.
