HOW PRISONERS OF WAR ENJOY

HOW PRISONERS OF WAR ENJOY THEMSELYES.—We have been indoctrinated by some of the returned soldiers from Hichmond as to the in unior of amusing one's self at the enemy's expense and in the precincts of a pri-on. If we are to trust all report, our scidiers made themselves, as a rule, very merry, and, inc'eed, conducted themselves pretty much as they pleased. They received the Richmond papers daily, but were so irritated at reading the abuse and magnified reports therein that they finally refused to touch them. They played cards, with trifling intermission, from morning till night, and having in isolated cases, violins and lutes, organized sundry cotillons and jigs. instance, a prize fight that took place before breakfast, one morning, when two lusty fellows stripped to the waist and engaged in a straight small up hattle, wherein they knocked each other right and left, and, after a general bloodying, shook hands and washed their sorce. Rencontres with the guards were every day affairs, and our lads were given to yells of a highly outrageous and insubordinate character. It was a daily custom to amounce the dawn with nine cheers for the Union. On laving Richmond they awoke all the choice of that town with cheers for McClellan and Lincoln. On the arrival of the news from Fort Henry and Rom oke, our soldiers irritated the despending Secretionists by cheering at odd times, for several days and nights.

Two of the Philadelphians were allowed to wander about the neighborhood of the jail, on parole that they would not go far away. They improved the opportunity by running, leaping, and making friends, and the adiscovered a latent loyalty in Richmond, which, they as sure us, is in no degree neverticions, but a reality. White many of the troops have lost in weight, many have also gained very many pounds of dech.

COMMUTING THE DEATH PENALTY.

COMMUTING THE DEATH PENAUTY.

An act is now before the Legislature, providing that when any Governor of this Commonwealth shall go out of office, leaving in any of the prisons of this Commonwealth any person under sentence of death, for whose execution no death-warrant has been issued, it shall he lawful for the successor of such retiring Governor to commute such sentence to imprisonment in the penitentiary of the proper district, for such period as he shall deem proper, not less than four, nor more than twenty years, to be computed from the time that sentence of death was passed upon such person. This will meet the case of one or two persons now confined in Moyamensing prison under sentence of death.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.—MIT.
Frederick A. Beitenman, a store keeper of Schartelsville, Berks county, has been missing from this city—where he was engaged in the purchase of goods—since Monday, February 24th. He was last seen on Monday morning, in the hotel where he had put up, and where he left his baggage. He is about 47 years old, and wore at the time he disappeared a black coat, black pantaloons, black overcoat, a silk hat with crape, and may have still had a couple of hundred dollars in money with him. As no cause for his sudden disappearance is known, his family and relatives are of course in great trouble.

RECOVERY OF STOLEN GOODS .- A WO.

man, named Mary Moore, a passer of counterfeit money, was arrested on Saturday morning. Detective Levy proceeded to her house, in South Camden, after her arrest, and made a search of the premises. He feund there is quantity of valuable clothing, plate, watches, jewelry, &c., the fruits of several recent burglaries in this city. Some of the articles have already been recognized by their owners, and others will probably be identified at a hearing to be held at the Central Station on Tuesday next. The supposed burglars were already under arrest, and their connection with Mrs. Moore was well-known to the police.

FUNERAL OF A NAVAL OFFICER.—The funeral of Commodore Samuel Mercer, of the United States navy, took place on Saturday afternoon from the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. D. C. McCammon, No. 248 West Logan Square. The remains of the deceased were interred at Laurel Hill. The funeral was attended by a detachment of the brother officers of the deceased.

THE RETURNED PRISONERS .- No an-wer has yet been received by the returned Rail's Bluff prisoners in response to their application for a longer furlough than eight days. They are inclined to remain in the city some time longer, from the fact three-competent medical authority has declared that their health is not fitted to endure the hardships of camp life so soone after their return to liberty.

A BODY RECOVERED.—The body of a

RELIGIOUS

Lecture by the Rev. Philips Brooks. In accordance with instructions from Bishop Pot. ter, of this Episcopal Diocese, the Rev. Philips Brooks, the talented young, and newly-elected, pastor of the Church of the Holy Trinity, on Rittenhouse Square, (formerly in charge of Rev. Dr. Vinton.) is now delivering in that edifice, on Tuesday evenings, a course of lectures on " What it is to Educate-to educate religiously; and what part the Sunday-school teacher can contribute to it." The first of the series was largely attended, and gave promise of a fund of information, and a degree of sound philosophy in those which are to follow, that will make them exceedingly valuable to all who are actively engaged, not only in the work of Sunday-school instruction, but to teachers generally. The initial lecture was in a measure preparatory, and, as Mr. Brooks stated, was rather intended to foreshadow the principles and landmarks of the "Course," than as an exposition of any single branch of his subject. He said that if the painted ideal of what a Sunday-school teacher ought to be, which he was about to present, seemed too difficult, practically to be realized, it was, nevertheless, profitable to set up a standard of perfection, as by so doing the attainments towards it would be higher than if a less perfect model were aimed at. The definitions of lexicographers of the word educate were then given. To educate, said the lecturer, was to develop; but it was also more than this. Toillustrate his idea more accurately recourse was had to the field of nature. We could not, for example, educate wood, or iron, or stone, though we might mould, fashion, and improve these so as to adapt them for higher uses. We could in a certain sense educate u tree, or a piece of ground, by

This he laid down as a fundamental principle. that every precess of education was false that simply tried to work from without. It was the germ that must be sought and wrought upon. To educate, therefore, in the true sense, was to work from within outward; it was to excite motives, rather than to simply impart facts. To do this effectively, it was the teacher's duty to bring his own personal life in a measure to bear upon and influence the life of his pupil

As to the proper method to be employed in teaching, it depended, in a large degree, upon the indi-vidualities of those to be taught. What would educate one nature, for example, would be fruitless upon another. To illustrate this point, Mr. Brooks briefly referred to the varied effects produced upon the minds of a class of boys by a narrative of the life of Napoleon. Upon some minds such a narrative would make a vivid impression, and possibly give character and complexion to their future lives, while in others it would fail to exert any lasting influence, and yet both might be equally intelligent. The same was true of the effects produced upon different mental constitutions, by unfolding to the mind the great facts of astronomy and the other natural sciences. In this connection an interesting and forcible distinction was drawn between the workings of mechanical machinery and the process of mind working upon mind. It was the glory of the former that it did everything exactly alike; whilst it was the glory of the mind that, in working upon minds, it did everything differently. No intelligent teacher, who understood his business. would ever pursue precisely the same course towards any two pupils he was training.

At this point the lecturer took a hurried survey of the systems of instruction employed in ancient and comparatively modern times, to show that their uniform defect had been the want of making due allowance for difference in character in the taught.

Another palpable defect in educating, even at this day, was, that the instruction imparted was not sufficiently positive in its character; in other words, there was too much attention given to repressing the evil traits of character, and too little to cultivating the good. The true idea, he thought, was to so develop the good as to crowd out the bad. This principle, he thought, was clearly indicated in the Bible. In the Old Testament we had the negative form of education exemplified with scarcely an exception. "Thou shalt NOT" was written, and reduplicated all through its pages. But. said he, in the New and better Testament it was written over and over again, "thou SHALT;" and this was indeed the spirit of the whole New Testament. In effect, "thou shalt not be wicked;" in the New we had the command shadowed forth on almost every page, "thou shalt be holy." In this we had the true philosophy of Christian education.

The substance of Mr. Brooks' theory upon this Paul, "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil The next division of his subject was, What it is to educate Religiously. In answering this question, there were three things to be observed on the part of the teacher, viz: first, to recognize in every nature the power and possibility of becoming a Christian. He did not, of course, wish to enter into a discussion of the theological question involved in this statemen: but apart from any settled principle or doctrine, he held that it was absolutely necessary for every teacher to start out with the conviction that the subject to be educated is suscepti-ble of becoming a Christian; that there was something in every nature, however depraved, which touched by God, though the teacher, would devehead was simply an elaboration of the words of lop its possessor into a Christian. Secondly, the religious means by which this work may be done was of vital importance to be understood. For this reason it was the Sundayschool teacher's duty to acquaint himself as thoroughly as possible with the Divine oracles. from the history of the fall to the ultimate objects of the whole redemption scheme. Se, too, it was important for him to secure the largest fund of Christian experiences by reading the history of the best Christians in all ages, and to do this imploring the guidance and direction of the Holy Spirit. It was the teacher's duty to search and see what were the best means for bringing the Spirit of God in contact with the bidden religious element of the child. Resorting again to illustration, drawn from peculiarly skilled, he said that it was by such means that the spiritual fire would be kindled beneath the boiler of the heart, as it were, from which the whole spiritual machinery would then

A marked defect in home education was, that the whole aim or study of parents was directed to the intellectual and moral peculiarities of their children, with a view to ascertaining what positions in life they were best fitted for, whilst the spiritual department was almost wholly neglected; and so it not unfrequently happened that the Sunday-school teacher was the first person to deal with this important element of the child's nature. Some highlynteresting facts from the experience of teachers, caring upon this subject, were here given.

The lecturer proceeded upon the theory that the germ of a Christian life is latent in every human heart, which needed but the presentation of the argued strendously, therefore, in favor of searching out the roots of this latent spirituality. Much was said in this connection respecting the preparation of Bible lessons. No matter how skilfully a teacher might present all the mere external facts of (say) the Nativity, Paul's visit to Damascus, or any other interesting subject, unless he unfolded the interior, or great spiritual truths involved in them, they might entertain but would make no lasting impression. It was the life and objects of Jesus as the saviour of sinners that must be brought home to the understanding of the pupil before the roots of his spirituality could be reached and nurtured into life and vigor.

attending all thi, and some might say in reply that it was an easy matter to tell what ought to be done, but how to do it was the practical point to be reached, and upon which they needed most to be informed. In reply to this criticism he would say, first, that one grand mistake made by Sundayschool teachers generally was that they taught a whole class, instead of the individual members composing it. He admitted, also, that the same mistake was, to a great degree, true of preachers of the Gospel. The teacher, he said, ought to carry his children one by one to the mercy seat in prayer during the week, be with them as much as he could, and study their characters and dispositions. Of course, this would make Sunday-school teaching harder work than it now is, but who would say that it was not right? The lawyer stu-died the wants of his client, the physician the disdied the wants of his client, the physician the diseses of his patient, and so ought the teacher to study the nature of his pupil in order to educate him intelligently. Then, indeed, would he be engaged in a noble work, one which, if faithfully performed, could not be measured by any earthly standard. He was called to help God in working out His grandest experiment—that of bringing good out of evil, and he believed that the most honored of God, of all His creatures, were those who were faithfully engaged in this labor of love among the young.

The usual questions were propounded to the candidatos for admission, together with an interesting widross by Bishop Ames. He spoke particularly of the first resulsite of a ministerial character, "porsonal piety," without which the preaching would be a "sounding brass" He further remarked that he presumed each one had carefully investigated the "word of God," observed the indications of Providence, and wore thus prepared to ltid others in the way. He spoke of the sympathetic chein that united the Christian minister with the whole community where he is laboring, and is exposed to vachair that united the Christian limitater with the whole commity where he is laboring, and is exposed to varied dangers and perils, the greatest, perhaps, of which is being elevated by popular appliance. Discriminate carefully between the zeal of the world, and the zeal produced by the baptign of the spirit. Let a love of truth and of the cause actuate you in your toils, and be expelled to offer no strange fires upon the altar of thy find. He dilleted months neguliarities of Methodism, when He dilated upon the peculiarities of Methodism, giving the reason why he loved that church more than any other branch, upon the same principle that one man loved his own household better than he did the wife and other branch, upon the same principle tota offer manch loved his own household better than he did the wife and children of his neighbor. He rejoiced in seeing blessings descend upon Zion everywhere, but especially where their own was prospering and bringing forth fruit. True, the vast army of God is marching forth for the same object—suppress the aliens—and all fight well; but there is one wing of that army that penetrates the swamps forther, that sendes the mountain more skilfully, marches forth with lighter, more elastic steps, pursues the sinner swifter, and, when taken captive, the shout of victory is shriller in the camp, and God's name is praised. He was not ashamed of the church for the same reason assigned by the Apostle Paul, because it saved men. He had not inherited his religion; his childish feet never frequented the cast-room or the love-feast, and would go timping to the grave, because his manhood arrived before he cket upon himself the vows of the Christian religion.

The Conference then proceeded to take the vote on Lay delegation in the General Conference, which resulted as follows:

FRIGHTFUL EXPLOSION OF A BOMB-SHELL-TWO MEN KILLED.-On Saturday evening, about 7 minútes before 12 o'clock, a terrific explosion occurred at the hotel of Parsons & Smith, at Front and Federal streets, Camden, N. J., caused by the burst-ing of a bombshell, which resulted in the death, of two ungmen. An inquest was held yesterday in the case by Coroner Roberts, when we gleaned the following paring of a bombshell, which resulted in the death, of two young men. An inquest was held yesterday in the case by Coroner Roberts, when we gleaned the following particulars:

About a week ago a 56% pound bombshell was sent as a trophy to Squire Cassady, of Camden, having been fired by the rebels at Cockpit, without exploding—having buried itself some distance in the earth. The powder from the stell was supposed to have been taken out, as none could be seen, and was afterwards sent by Squire Cassady to the above hotel in order that it night be exhibited. It was kept under lock and key by the proprietors, and only shown on certain occasions. On Saturday evening, one of the Cainden fire companies celebrated their anniversary by a supper at the hotel, when the bomb was brought out and laid on the table in the room adjoining the bar, in order that it might be examined by the members of the company. Two young men, named Charles Hammill and Pennington Ackley, were present, among others, and some time after the supper picked the bomb trom the table to examine it. One proposed to the other that they sbould have a little fun, and the article was given to Ackley to hold while Hammill twisted a paper and forced it into the shell. Several others were in the room at the time, who suggested that they had no liking for such sport, and retired, although it was supposed by all that the homb contained no powder. While Ackley was holding it, Hammill applied a match and a terrific explosion tollowed, which was heard for the distance of near a mile. Pieces of the exploded shell flew in all directions. Hammill was struck in the head and instantly killed. His brains were scattered on the ceiling and over all parts of theroom. Both of the hands of Ackler, who was holding it, Hammill applied a match and instantly killed. His brains were scattered on the ceiling and over all parts of theroom. Both of the hands of Ackler, who was holding the shell, were completely ent off. A portion of it also passed through his hip and entered the output s

ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT OF THE JEF-ANNIAL COMMENCEMENT OF THE JER-FIBSON MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The annual com-mencement of the Jefferson Medical College took place at noon on Saturday, at the Musical Fund Halt, in the pre-sence of a large and respectable audience, consisting mostly of ladies. The graduates, preceded by the trustees, faculty, and other officers of the college, walked in pro-cession from the college to the hall at noon. The stu-dents occupied the front benches in the saloon; while the officers of the college, with the invited guests, took seats upon the platform. Each graduate wore a while rosette upon the left lappel of his cost. A storm of applause greeted the students as they made their appearance in the apariment and took their appointed seats. The war has apartment and took their appointed seats. The war ha had the effect of lessening the number of graduates; bu had the effect of lessening the number of graduates; but what was wanting in quantity was made up for in quality. The Jefferson, which was the most popular in the South of any of the Philadelphia colleges, has been the principal sufferer, as was demonstrated at its annual commencement on Saturday, when, instead of an army of from two hundred to three hundred young doctors, there were but seventy-seven, all told. Very few of these were from slave States; while Alabama, Mississtppi, Georsia, Texas, Fioride, and North and South Carolina, had not a single representative among the graduates.

During the address, the speaker alluded to certain improprieties and inconsistencies in the habits and mode of living of our countrymen. Our chiv slrong devytion to worken, our tender care of their come; and well being, were characterized as nobless; airs in the American character, but to chary out this proud homage, the Professor remarked, "we must not give them just cause of offence by any indifference to the requirements of personal neatness. We must not intrude into their gentle presence recking with the tumes of tobacco, or redolent with the products of the still; especially should the physician abstain from thus annoying them when prostrated by languor and morbidly susceptible. We must not, in their visits to our halls and theatres, subject them to soil and pollution of the flowing dress, and even render insecure the slippery footsep by a repulsive self-indulgence, exclusive and characteristic in its often-demonaced prevalence among us. Everywhere let our dress and address, conversation and conduct, be such as would not be looked on as derogatory or unbecoming in the gentleman of the most refined and published mationality."

The charge was concluded as follows: "At this moment of parting, let me once more remind you of the weighty interests entrusted to your keeping. You are charged not only with your own future destinies, but, in a certain sense, with the honor of our profession, which must not be tarnished in your hands; and with the reputation of your Alma Mater, which, we trust, you will always cherish with zealous devotion. ARREST OF A PICKPOCKET.—During a magic-lantern exhibition, at a church at Twelfth and Odgen streets, a few evenings since, one of the light-fingered gentry got among the audience, and, when the apartment was darkened, attempted to relieve a young lady of her pocket-book. The young lady seized pick-pocket, and was dragged into the street by him. Thief then made off, but was captured, by Officer Britten, after a pursuit of three squares. He was brought back to the church to get his hat, which had been left behind in the filight, and was subsequently locked up in the Seventernth-ward Station House. The pocket-book taken from the young lady was found upon the sidewalk. The prisoner, who gave the name of George Scott, was field in $500 bail by Alderman Plankinton. was well received. There is scarcely any branch of business which has been more severely affected by the rebellion than that of teaching the young idea how to kill or cure according to medical rule and under authority of a college diploma. A Case Involving the Rights of

PRISON INSPECTORS.—A case, which involves the constitutionality of a law relating to Prison Inspectors, and their treatment of prisoners, came up in the Suprefice Court on Saturday before Justices Woodward, Thompson, Strong, and Read. The titles of the cases were as follows:

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania ex. rel. Wm. Johnson vs. John S. Halloway, warden of the Eastern Penitentiary. tiary.
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania ex. rel. Charles Lang-Commonwealth of Pennsylvania ex. rel. Charles Langhammer.

Roth writs were hand, a supon writs of habaas corpus, for the purpose of determining the constitutionality of the act of Assembly of May 1, 1861, as follows:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby onacted by the authority of the same:

That from and after the passage of this act, it shall be the duties of the wardens or superintendents of the several penitentiaries or prisons of th's Commonwealth in which criminals are confined, who have been convicted and sentenced, by any court of justice of this State, to which criminals are confined, who have been convicted and sentenced, by any court of justice of this State, to undergo an imprisonment of more than six months, to keep a book, in which shall be entered the name of each person so confined, and a record of every infraction or violation by him or her of the printed and published rules of such penitentiary or prison, with the punishment (if any) inflicted on account thereof, which said book shall be laid before the inspectors at their regular stated meetings for examination and approval.

Sup 9 That avery mysoner or convict, sentenced as ings for examination and approval.

SEC. 2. That every prisoner or convict, sentenced as aforesaid, who shall have no such infraction or violation

SEC. 2. That every prisoner or convict, sentenced as aforesaid, who shall have no such infraction or violation of the said rules recorded against him or her during any month of the first year of his or her imprisonment, shall be entitled to a deduction from the term of his or her sentence of one day for the first month, of two additional days for the second month, and of three additional days for the second month, and of three additional days for the second month, and of three additional days for the said first year of imprisonment; and shall also be entitled, for continued good conduct during the second year, to a similar deduction of four days for each month during which he or she shall not have violated the rules aforesaid, and to a deduction of one additional day permonth for each succeeding year until the expiration of the tenth year, and to an additional deduction of two days per month during each year of the remainder thereof; Provided, that it shall be lawful for the inspectors of said penitentiaries or prisons, if any such convicts or persons shall willfully infringe or violate any of said rules or regulations, or offend in any other way, to strike off the whole or any part of the deduction which may have been obtained previous to the date of such offence.

Sec. 3. That the said inspectors shall have full power and authority to discharge the said criminals whenever they shall have served out the terms of their sentence, less the number of days to which they are adulted inder the provisions of this act.

Sec 4. That the said inspectors shall direct the warden or superintendent to give to each prisoner who may, in consequence of such good conduct, be discharged at an earlier period than he would otherwise have been entitled to, a certificate thereof, stating therein the number of days that have been deducted from his original sentence for good conduct.

The inspectors of the Eastern Penitentiary have de-have been deducted from his original sentence for good conduct.

The inspectors of the Eastern Penitentiary have declined to act under this act, as they consider it vague and of doubtful constitutionality.

Johnson was sentenced before the passage of the act, and Langhammer atterwards. His case seemed to reise the question more clearly. He was sentenced on the 11th of February, 1861, to thirteen months, and it is claimed that his term has expired.

The cases have been brought into court by the Prison Discipline Society, and the objection urged on behalf of the inspectors is, that the Legislature, by this act, have interfered with the judiciary by lessening the sentence. It is also further objected that, to carry out this act, the inspectors would, in fact, be clothed with judicial power to decide how long a sentence eshould be.

After listening to argument upon the points raised, the court held the matter under advisement. THE EIGHTH SCHOOL SECTION.—At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of Public Schools of the eighth section the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

GOOD INTENT HOSE COMPANY'S ANNIVERSALEY,—The fifty-eighth anniversary of the Good Intent Hose Company was celebrated on Saturday evening, at their house, on Sprace street, above Sixth. Early in the evening the friends of the company, to the number of a couple of hundred, were entertained at the house. The members sat down to a sumptuous repast in the second-story hall. George K. Childs presided. Speeches were made by W. A. Delany, T. West Blake, of the Prankin Engine; Mr. Etler, of the United States Engine; Charles Randolph, America Hose; L. Manouvre, do.; Mr. Carr, United States Engine; Mr. Moran, Hibernia; W. Remick, and others. The house was brilliantly illuminated with varied colored lanterns, and decorated with flags. The transparencies in the window were embollished with a big figure 2 and the motto of the company—"Prompt to aid in time of need." This company has a fine carriage, well filled with first-class hose.

PURE COD-LIVER OIL.

The repugnance of most patients to GOD-LIVER OIL, and the inability of many to take it at all, has induced various forms lof disguise for its administration that are familiar to the Medical Profession. Some of them answer in special cases, but more ofton the vehicle neutralizes the usual effect of the Oil, proving quite as unpalatable and of less therapeutic value. The repugnance, nauses, &c., to invalids, induced by disgust of the Oil, is entirely obviated by the use of our OAPSULES. OOD-LIVER OIL CAPSULES have been much used lately in Europe, the experience there of the good*results from their use in both hospital and private practice, aside from the naturally suggested advantages, are sufficient to warrant our claiming the virtues we do for them, feeling assured their use will result in benefit and em, feeling assured their use will result in benefit and served favor.
