THE BANQUET TO HON. SIMON CAMERON. Vindication of his Conduct as Secretary of War.

A number of the friends of Hon. Simon Cameron tendered him a complimentary dinner on the 24 inst., prior to his departure for Russia. The affair took place at the Jones House, Harrisburg, Hon. William H. Kepner, mayor of the city, presiding. A number of prominent Pennsylvanians were presett. After the cloth was removed, his honor-Mayor Kepner, announced the following toast: Simon Cameron - A Pennsylvanian who has never forgotten his native State—an American who has always been faithful to his country and his coun-trymen. His fellow-citizens delight to honor him. The enthusiastic applause with which this sentiment was greeted having somewhat subsided,

General Cameron said : MR. MAYOR AND FELLOW CITIZENS: I take it Mr. Mayor and Fellow-citizens: I take it for granted that I am expected to say something in return for the compinment you have been so kind as to confer upon me; yet I cannot speak to you, my fellew-citizens, in any cold or formal language. Since I have come into this room all the thoughts of business and duty which crowded upon my mind during the day have fied, leaving only the remembrance of the associations and friendships that I have experienced during the long years of my residence in this, my home. I remember that this day forth five years and I came to Harrisburg. day forty five years ago I came to Harrisburg - a poor, delicate, sickly boy - without any reliance but on the overruling control of Providence and the reward which I had been taught to believe would always follow proper actions. The only countenance of those around me which I remem. countenance of those around me which I remember to have seen at that day, was that of my friend who sits beside me on the right, (Mr. C. F. Mucnch,) who was then a boy younger than myself, and whom I met the day after entering the town. He was an apprentice in a printing-office here, to which I went for the purpose of obtaining employment, and which I left with a feeling such as can be experienced only by those who are willing to work, are without money in their purse, and are destitute of friends upon whom to rely, when told "we cannot employ you" I can now remember the name of only one living housekeeper in the town at that time. I refer to Judge Hummel. I made the acquaintance of the honored gentleman at the same time that I became the recipient of his generous hospitality. The first place at which I generous hospitality. The first place at which I stopped to rest my weary limbs, after reaching the town, was beneath the shade of an old willow tree in front of his house. He came out and spoke kindly to me, inviting me into his home, and we have been friends ever since. Sir, how the world has charged since then! how has everything about has changed! A day or two after I saw my friend mench I obtained employment I immediately went to work with such a heart and will as never fal to win success. During the daytime I worked for my employer, and at night I cultivated my mind. A few years of assiduous toil made me the possessor of a printing office. When other men slept I continued to toil, and felt certain that sooner or later I would feel equal, not alone in this world's goods but in the scale of merit and capacity with other men around me. Why, sir, it was no uncommon thing for me to retire at midnight and rise at four in the morning to pursue my daily I have lived to see what was then a hawlet beper or later I would teel equal, not alone in this come the third city of the State. In my position as a newspaper journalist I necessarily came in contact with the political theories and important questions of the day, and never failed to advocate what I conceived to be a wise and beneficial State what I collected to be a wise and benedial State policy in regard to a system of internal improvements. Since that day to the present time I may say that I have at least had something to do with every work of improvement connected with the progress of this city and State. The first efforts of my pen were directed in the furtherance of the my pen were directed in the lattuerance of the great policy of internal improvements which brought forth our canal system. I next labored for years to secure the erection of a railroad from Harrisburg to Laheaster, though laughed at as a visionary boy who talked about earrying ears, wagons, and freight on rails by steam. I am reminded here of an expression made at one of the meetings which we held in favor of that railroad project—(for other time I way in the habit of pressuding my at that time I was in the habit of persuading my friends to go sround the country and convene meet-ings, by which means I might be enabled to talk to the people on my favorite theme of the desirability of railroad communication and its importance)—one of the auditors upon this occasion (the meeting being held at Enzabethtown) was one known as being held at Educate thrown) was one known as Abraham Haraly, a very intelligent man, and one of the nost active in that neighborhood. During the course of my remarks I had happened to say, "I have no doubt, gentlemen, there are many of you present who will live to see the day when a man can eat his breakfast at Harrisburg, go to Philadelphia, (one hundred miles,) take his dinner, tempart his hunjuers there, and return home to reassent his business there, and return home to Harrisburg in time to go to bed, as usual, in the evening." There was a simultaneous roar of laughter from the audience, which had hardly ceased when this old man very confidentially whispered in my car, "Simon, I am glad you told and should it appear to you of sufficient importance pered in my ear, "Sinon, I am glad you told them about going to Philadelphia and back again to Harrisburg in one day, because that will make them take the sheers, (shares,) but you and I know all about that!" [Laughter I I leave you to judge, gentlemen, whether my prediction was verified. After having proved successful in my endeavors in behalf of the railroad from Harrisburg to Lancaster, I became engaged in a project to construct a road from here to Chambersburg: to construct a road from here to Chambersburg; then again to Battimore; then again to Sanbury, the place of my boynood, and also to Reading; all of which, I am glad to state are now prosperous, and in most successful operation. I mention this, gentlemen, not bossifully, but to show what may be accomplished by a determined will and a right purpose.

In responding to the sentiment of our worthy Mayor, my intention, gentlemen, was simply to speak to you familiarly, as friends and neighbors, without referring to my control of the War Department, over which I had the honor to preside but ment, over which I had the honor to preside but in view of a charge recently made against me because of my exercise of the delegated power with which I was entrusted, it may be proper for me say to you a few words in relation thereto. I took a seat last year in Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet, against my own jadgment, without consulting my taste for the position, and, I may say, against my own determination. I resigned that post, when I thought my mission was ended, in organizing, equipping, and supplying, under the most adverse circumstances. mission was ended, in organizing, equipping, and supplying, under the most adverse circumstances, a larger army than had ever been raised at any period of human history. When I did accept the place it was with the perfect understanding between Mr. Lincoln and myself that whenever I thought proper to resign I should be privileged to do so; and, when a vacancy occurred in the appointment to Russia, he offered me the post, and I was glad to accept it. Why, gentlemen, I toiled in that Department as he man ever toiled before; I have told you that in my younger men, I toiled in that Department as no man ever toiled before; I have told you that in my younger years I worked for twenty hours out of the twenty-four for successive months; but that labor was nothing in comparison with the overpowering toil which I under weat at Washington. To say nothing of the extraordinary necessities of the Department, mising from an unforescen and threatening national emergency, the doors of my private dwelling was besieged from daylight to the latest hours of the night; the Department was surrounded on all were besinged from daylight to the latest hours of the night; the Department was surrounded on all hands and at all hours. Certain members of Congress, who figure in the vote of censure, were ever besieging my doors, and often patiently waiting for hours to catch a part of the drippings from the War Department. Meanwhile I managed the delicate and trying affairs of my situation as wisely as I knew how. Of course I committed some errors; but I did not committee wrong with which I am charged in the resolution of Congress. I solemnly assert that neither in motive nor deed can I be justly chargeable with the commission of any wrong in the adminiswith the commission of any wrong in the adminis-tration of those affairs, and I am proud to say here in reviewing my official conduct, I see no act which I would not repeat under the same circumstances. Upon my appointment to the position, I found the department destitute of all the means of defence; without guns, and with fittle prospect of purchasing the material of war; I found the nation without an army, and I found scarcely a man throughout the whole War Department in whom I could put the purchase the adjustic general deserted. my trust. The adjutant general deserted. The quartermaster general ran off. The commissary general was upon his death bed. More than half the clerks were disloyal. I remember that upon one occasion General Scott came to me apparently in great memat tribulation. Said he, I have one occasion General Scott came to me apparently in great meanst tribulation. Said he, "I have spent the most miserable day of my life; a friend of my boybood has just told me I am disgracing myself by staying here and serving this fragment of the Government, in place of going to Virginia and serving under the banner of my native State; and I am pained to death." But the old here was particular, loyal, and wise emough to say that his friend was wrong; and he was right in remaining where he was. But to proceed. You all remember, gentlemen, the day of the President's proclamation calling upon the people of Penssylvania (because the demand was made upon you here in common with other States) for troops to defend the national capitals. tal. My son happening to be in Washington, I sent him thicker with the utmost despatch and maked him to appeal to every man he met in this town and through the country to send down every soldier who would come. Within three days after the issuing of the proclamation four hundred and eighty troops from Pennsy Ivania arrived in Washington. They were the first to inspire the University of the proclamation of the proclamation of the with the awtil crisis then impending. They came there without arms and were furnished from the there without arms and were turnished from the arsenal at that place. Directly after this—within two or three days—three or four regiments were assembled at Cockeysvile, Maryland, by my order. At the same time a number of the bridges on the Philadelphia and Baltimore Railroad, via Wilmington, were burned or destroyed. It was at this time that the mob in Baltimore murdered our transpace achiers in her streets on their way to unarmed soldiers in her streets on their way to the defence of the capital, and the Baltimore and the defence of the capital, and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad refused to carry our troops. At that time, when the loyalry of nearly all the inhabitants was doubted, Mr. Seward, the Secretary of State, in company with the Secretary of the Trossury, called upon me and said "we must have somebody in New York to assist the nublic divers there in collecting York to assist the public chicers there in collecting and forwarding troops," asking me to name any individual whem I considered competent for that purpose. I was acquainted with but a few people in New York, but after a moment's reflection I recollected Mr. Cummings, with whom I had an intimacy when he was a citizen of this State. The two gentlemen then informed me that they had appointed Mr. Cisco, of the Sub-treasury, General Dix, now in the army, Mr. Opdyke, the present Mayor of the city of New York, and Mr. Blatchford, a citizen of New York, and, as I have stated, requested me to name some other gentlemen. I requested me to name some other gentlemen. I gave the name of dir Cummings and associated with it that of Governor Morgan of the State of New DEPARTMENT OF WAR, April 23, 1861. In consideration of the extraordinary emergen-cies which demand immediate and decisive measures for the preservation of the national capital and the defence of the National Government, I hereby authorize Edwin D. Morgan, Governor of the State of New York, and Alexander Commings, now in the city of New York, to make all necessary arrangements for the transportation of troops and munitions of war, in aid and assistance of the officers of the army of the United States, until commu-nication by mail and telegraph is completely re-es-tablished between the cities of Washington and New York. Either of them, in case of inability to conwith the other, may exercise the authority by given.

Simon Cameron.
Secretary of War.

It will be seen that I did not entrust those gentlemen with the expenditure of any money. I was careful to give them no authority to act independent of the military officers of the Government. ometime afterwards I received a telegram, signed by Messrs. Morgan and Cummings, asking for authority to draw money, which I referred, in the usual manner, to the Treasury Department. That is all I had to do with the matter, and at the end of fourteen days, communication having been restored, I revoked their authority, as will be seen by the following note:

WAR DEPARTMENT, May 7, 1861. GENTLEMEN: The extraordinary emergency bich demanded immediate and decisive measures which demanded immediate and decisive measures for the preservation of the national depical and the defence of the National Government rendered it necessary for this Department to adopt extraordinary means for that purpose, and having full confinence in your intelligence, experience, and integrity, you were surhorized to make all necessary arrangements for the transportation of traons. tegrity. You were numbrized to make an necessary arrangements for the transportation of troops, &c.. in wid and assistance of the officers of the army of the United States, until the re-establishment of communication, by mails and telegraph, between the cities of New York and Washington.

Uninterrupted communication between the two cities being now again established, and it being desirable that the duties heretotore attended to by you should be hereafter performed by the officers of the army, to whom they properly belong, I beg to tender to you the thanks of this Department for to tender to you the thanks of this Department for the very prompt and efficient tenner in which you have discharged the duties assigned you, and to request you to cease making purchases, procuring transports, or attending to other duties under atthority given, which could be justified only by the emergency now happily no longer existing.

Respectfully yours, SIMON CAMERON.

GOV. E. D. Morgan and Alexander Cummings,

Esq., New York city.

Now. gentlemen, in regard to the Congressional committee of investigation of which the country has heard so much. I have reason to believe that the original intention of its appointment was to control the War Department and place money in the pockets of its members. The second or third day after the announcement of the committee, its chairman called upon me and desired that I should authorize him to furnish a certain regiment with aims, munitions, cluthing, etc. I refused his application, because I thought from my knowledge of his character that he was unworthy of a trust. After a further colloquy with the chairman, I or-New York city. After a further colloquy with the chairman, I ordered him out of the War Department; and of course I was attacked by that committee. course I was attacked by that committee.

The committee of investigation have made an additional charge upon me in my official connection with the Government, with having bought a greater number of guns than were needed. I did order a large number of arms; but I will take this occasion to answer that charge. It must be borne in midd that I was supplying an army of more than 700,000 men, and that the loss of arms in a single campaign has been estimated by military men to reach as high as fifty per cent. In a glance at the statistics I find that, in round numbers, I ordered nearly a million of muskets, almost one hundred nearly a million of muskets, almost one hundred thousand carbines, and perhaps as many swords.
When I took possession of the War Department I found that there were but few mu-kets in the arsenals, no swords of any account, and scarcely any munitions of war. Within a short time after the proclamation, it became apparent that there was proclamation, it became apparent that there was no difficulty in getting troops, but there was great difficulty in procuring arms. I found the Ordnannee Department without a head; the person having charge there being an olu man, who was conceded by those in whom I had confidence, including Gen. Scott, to be incompetent for the duries of the position. I superseded him, and put in his place one who was believed to be fully competent, but who soon proved, in the opinion of my associates, to be unequal to the crisis. I fell, personally, reluctant to enter into any contract myself, as I had no time for such details, and therefore directed Mr. Thomas A. Scott, my assistant, to act in conjunction for such details, and therefore directed Mr. Thoms A. Scott, my assistant, to act in conjunction with Col. Ripley, and that he should see that every contract was so guarded that, in case of failure at the end of thirty days, the contract should be revoked, leaving to Col. Ripley to determine the quality and price of the arms to be contracted for At this time Governors of States, officers without arms, cabinet ministers, and members of Congress were constantly making application for arms, charging the Ordinance Department with intefficiency, stating that if consent were given they could be procured, and I, therefore, directed Mr. Scott to act in conjunction with Col. Ripley, and to contract with every man who was willing to make a musket or furnish a sword, and from whom the other necessary munitions of war could be obtained, at the same time instructing him to see that the chief of the Ordanace Department should fix the price and determine the character of the arms. The allegation has been repeatedly iterated that I made these contracts with an eye to personal preference. But I have already proven, gentlemen, that the furthest limit of even my unfificial action; in the matter was simply to arider the fficial action in the matter was simply to order the making of such contracts as were necessary, leaving all that regarded price or quality in the hands of the Ordnance Department, and to this day. I scarcely know any of the individuals with whom contracts were made.

The special contract exciting public attention was track with a party by the name of Ruker. was made with a party by the name of Boker. On the 5th of September, under cover from the President, I received a note, which I now read: WASHINGTON, Sept. 4, 1861. Hon. Simon Cameron, Secretary of War:
Sin: Our resident pariner in Europe advises us by last steamer of a lot of upwards of one hundred a quantity of good arms, we would invite your attention thereto.

We offer the arms at a price not exceeding righteen dollars each, subject to the inspection and approval of an armorer whom you shall select to accompany our authorized agent. If the article is not satisfactory, the Government will incur no expense, and if approved, you will seems an article inch necked.

We also control, by advances thereon, over 18,000 cavalry sabres, which we offer as above, at a price not to exceed $7 50 a piece, Very respectfully, Your obedient servants,

HERMAN BOKER & Co., 50 Cliff street, New York. Also of Liege, Solinger, Remachard, Berming-am. Bown. This was at the time when the Queen's proclama-tion had prohibited, among other things, the ex-portation of aims to the United States You re-member, gentlemen, we sent an agent, Mr. Schuy-ler of New York,) out to Belgium to procure arms for our Government. He succeeded in parchasing one hundred thousand guns there, but being una-ble to ship them all directly, be sent a portion to England, where (the proclamation to which I have just referred being soon after issued) he was prevented from transporting or using the arms in any manner. In this extremity, of the large army of soldiers in and about Washington, not two hundred thousand of them were armed. Upon the letter I have just read was the endorsement of the President in his own heredwiching in these President in his own handwriting in these words; "I approve the earrying this through earefully, cautiously and expeditiously. Avoid conflicts and interference. A. Lincoln." The literal meaning of the endorsement was that the world should not know of our military deficiency and weakness until the evil had been remedied, and that care and caution were to be used as heretofore in keeping inviolate the secret of our defect. Fully coinciding with the President, and in obedience with his order. I promptly directed this contract to be closed; and I assure you, gentlemen, without the arms it preduced, we should not have been able to achieve the late filorious victories in the West.

I may add, in proof of the great anxiety of all to obtain arms, that but a very few days before I left the War Department, the Cabinet agreed to adopt a conditional contract made by Mr. Schnyler for 100,000 guns in Belgium, which I successfully opposed, on the ground that we had guns enough contracted for, and, with the encouragement which had been afforded to our own manufacturers; the supply would probably be ufficient for our inture wants. By this means $1,800,000 have been retained in the country, to be expended in those localities from which our soldiers have volunteered, and this occurred after all these contracts had been completed of which so much countries to exceed The literal meaning of the endorsement was that and this occured after all these contracts had been completed, of which so much complaint is now made. The investigating committee of Congress have said that the muskets made at the Springfield armory cost only $12 apiece. That assertion, like many others that have been made in connection with committee of the connection of with supplies for the army, is not the fact. With-out taking into consideration the expense of superintendence, the cost of buildings, machinery, or capital invested, the mere net cost of the gun for labor and material when there is no competition in time of peace, has amounted to $12.60 But had these gurs purchased on my order proved to be twice more expensive than they actually were then, in view of the fact that the army was practically used them, is seless without them, I would have done exactly as I did with the beef contract, to which other gentlemen have seen fit to refer. When we expected large purious of soldiers from Pensylvenic and large privals of soldiers from Pennsylvania and other States, and there was nothing to feed them with, the acting commissary general came to me and said, "I can now buy two thousand beeves if I pay two or three cents a pound more than they should be worth."

two or three cents a pound more than they should be worth."

"Well," I replied, "pay it;" (applaure)—"pay a dollar per pound rather than a soldier should suffer, but be guarded that your contract ceases when a supply can be had at the customary price," which was done." He made a contract for two thousand beeves, and the whole world rung with the appouncement that the Secretary of War had chested the Government in order to enrich some cheated the Government in order to enrich some favorite, and yet the contract was made with my personal enemies. So again, I was censured at the time of the battle of Bull Run for not having sufficient cavalry in the field. Yet I could not speak in my own defence, for the safety of the Government compelled me to secrecy. Plenty of horsemen offered their services, but I had no pistols, swords, or carbinet to give them: and I did not want the or carbines to give them; and I did not want the world to know that such was our condition. My function was to raise an army of the largest kind in the shortest possible time, and to supply them with whatever needful material I could first lay hands whatever needful material I could first hey hands upon. As soon as I could obtain pistols, carbines, swords and holsters, I had cavalry enough. But then the cry was he "has got too many." Of course, then again I was cheeting the Government, by giving my friends all the horse contracts. [Laughter.] Well, Mr. Mayor, the horses have been in the service and the country has been saved. Those who then cried "no more horses," to-day can see advertisements for the purchase of an increased number; and to-day I saw also an advertisement asking for proposals to furnish more advertisement asking for proposals to furnish more Had the material resources of the Government been, in any manner, commensurate with the emer-gency, the war would have been terminated ere this. So far as concerns myself, I would rather gency, the war would have been terminated ere this. So far as concerns myself, I would rather have had a million of guns too many rather than that a single soldier, in any of our buttles, should have been sacrificed for the want of a weapon. I suppose that, had I been the willing tool of every man who wanted to rob the Government, and if, in place of attending to my duties. I had been content to receive men at my house, and treat them to the hospitalities of my social and political position, or allowed them to control me in the discharge of my duties, those men who now attempt, to slander me shlowed them to control me in the discharge of my duties, those men who now attempt to slander me would now be most profess in complianent and profession. More than this, had I remained in the War Department until this vote came off, I should, doubtless, have received the compliment paid to my late and distinguished colleague, Mr. Welles. [Laughter.] He was charged with having improperly employed a man to purchase ships, yet the flouse of Representatives voted down a resolution to consure him by about the same vote that they consured me for having secured the services of an employee. Mr. Welles obtained the assistance referred to long after the excitement and confusion ferred to long after the excitement and confusion attending the commencement of the rebellion had ceased. I did so at a time when the country was slinest totally bereft of a Government, and when we did not know whom to trust.

Now, gentlemen, I could narrate to you in this way listly incidents of efficial connection with the War Department. Were it necessary I would give you some particulars connected with the history of this man Dawes, who appears to be most active in the persecution against me. I understand he is a little weepsauting attempt little. the persecution against me. I understand he is a little prosecuting attorney living somewhere in Messachusetts. I am well aware of the real cause of his ennity, and I will briefly state it. Some propile of Massachusetts, especially about the good city of Boston, own nearly all the stock in the Wilnington and Baltimore Railroad. Notwithstanding that road has accountated more money on account of this way, by the transportation of traces.

count of this war, by the transportation of troops and war material for the Government, than it ever did before in double the longth of time. Twhich fact was chiefly owing to the confidence I enter-tained in its president,) yet the management of the road were displemed because a certain portion of the troops were ordered to Washington via Harrisburg and Baltimore. When the bridges on the Wilmington and Baltimore Road were burned, it become absolutely necessary to construct a new line of travel to Washington. By my direction, the president of the Pennsylvania Raifroad, Mr. Thompson, in connection with the Wilmington road, made arrangements to run a line of boats from Perryville to Anments to run a time of boats from Porryville to Annapolis, and succeeded in getting the project into successful operation. This new route was used until the Baltimore and Ono roud was taken possession of by me for the Government, and until the bridges of the Wilnington roud were require. the bridges of the Witmington road were required. In the meantime, an arrangement was made by the Harrisburg, Reading, and New Jersey roads to reduce the fare from six to four dollars from New York to Baltimore, per soldier. But my action in this matter took money out of the purses of gentlemen in Boston, and Mr. Dawos, who appeared to represent the interests affected, because my enemy. This is the only reason for his opposition of which I am aware. I do not know him further than that he was frequently hanging about the War Department in common with other applicants for special favors. Having my whole time the War Department in common with other applicants for special favors. Having my whole time cecupied in preparing an army out of raw and undisciplined soldiers, of course I may have run counter to the desires of such gentlemen, and consequently they now return the disfavor.

This theme is by no means a pleasant one for me; but after the recent wrong which has been done me I felt that when talking to my old friends and neighbors I would do myself the simple justice to speak plainly. It would be needless for me to attempt to convince you of my honesty of purpose and intention in every official act of my life. I am known to you personally, and I feel willing to abide by, and will fully appreciate, your decision upon my character as your feliow citizen. [Great applicate.] appraise. I I leave you with great reluctance. It has been the dream of my life to go abroad in some position that would enable me to catch a proper glimpse of the beauty and grandeur of the old world; and as the time draws near when I shall bid you a parting adieu, I approach it with pain caused by the separation from old and dear friends. Perhaps I have said enough; it may be too much. I desire to state to you, however, that my relations with the President have always been those of the highest respect for that distinguished gentleman. I entertain as great a respect for him as for any one with whom I have ever been associated. He is an honest, high-minded gentleman, as well as a faithful public officer. [Applause] This rebellion will be ended after a while, and with it we will end the cause of this and all future internal strife, as I bope. [Great applaure.] I have never been an Abolitionist. I am not one now. But if I had the power, I would call into the field every man able to shoulder a musket, whether he be white or black, that this war may be brought to a speedy and certain close. And I believe we will come to that. I do not believe that, after a while, when the hot Southern climate is killing our soldiers, who are fighting for the Government, our people will be content to see their sons and brothers die, when men acclimated to the South are able to defend the convert and of their own strength and

After a short pause General Cameron concluded as follows:
Gentlemen, this is a contest in which we all have Gentlemen, this is a contest in which we all have a direct interest. Pennsylvania has a moral power which no other State in this Union possesses; and, therefore, every citizen of Pennsylvania can do a great deal towards bringing this war to an end. I have no right to give advice, but I shall be glad, in leaving the country, to believe there is to be no party here but the party of the country—the party for the war, and in favor of supporting the Administration. for the war, and in favor of supporting the Administration in conducting the war; because whether men were opposed to Mr. Lincoln or otherwise, by his administration alone is the war to be conducted. If Pennsylvania will stand by his wise and patriotic measures, she can aid the President and control the result. I remember that in the war of 1812 avery man who opposed the war was considered an enemy of his country. I trust that the same beneficial rule will be applied in the present case. [Applause.] If we falter in patriotic devotion, the people of the South will be encouraged to persevere in their rebellious and infamous design; for the war can only be ended by a determined and united policy here in the North. Why, it was only the other day that a letter was seen from the wife of the traiter Davis, stating that "Jeff was cruelly deceived in Pennsylmy own good; and this is another reason for the passage of the resolution to which I alluded. Every Border State Representative who thinks his brother or son or kindred in the rebel ranks does not deserve hanging for his treasen, voted in favor of that resolution

a letter was seen from the wife of the traitor Davis, stating that "Jeff was cruelly deceived in Pennsylvania and New York, where he expected the support of one half of the people, because he was led to believe that more than one half of the people in both of those States were going to join him." That is the current delusion in the South; and so long as we give them aid and comfort by divisions among ourselves, just so long will they be encouraged to fight the Government. Let us all, with one heart, looking solely to but one object, go through this war; and that to but one object, go through this war; and that being over, we can rake up the old political car-casses of days gone by, and again attack each other with the spirit of Whig and Democratic fury. In the first place, let us finish the war. [Long-continued applause.] Short as the interval is before my departure, I confidently expect to be able to carry with me the news of further vital successes, which will prove to the Powers of Europe that the Union is safe, and that the complete redemption of the patient is drawing night. Union is safe, and that the complete redemption of the nation is drawing pigh.

Speeches were afterwards made by Robert A.
Lamberton, Esq.; Hon. Thomas E. Cochran, Auditor General; Judge Pearson; David Fleming, Esq.; A. J. Herr, Esq., District Attorney; David Humma, Esq, and Robert L. Suench, Esq., all higbly eulogistic of General Cameron.
