SPECIAL NOTICES. A SUMMER DITTY.

BY THE BARD OF TOWER HALL. The season, take it altogether. Is hot enough, bot is the weather Besides, this rebel excitati Still keeps us in a perspiration : And, as the month of June approache Although not burned as black as roach We blush with heat, like crabs in kettle, Turned red by contact with hot metal. And more we blush-yes, blush like rubles-To think of those poor Southern boobies-Our countrymen, we blush to call them-Who force old Uncle Sam to maul them. 'Tis thought by cunning men that often Strong heat hard substances will soften; And yet the summer's heat imparts No tenderness to traitors' hearts Their heads, perhaps, are softened more, But they were soft enough before. The beams of Phoebus seem to fire us, And tosst us brown while they inspire us. Hence comes that mest important rule For bards and other men---- Keep cool. If you for Clothing cool and nice (Fine quality, at lowest price,) TO TOWER HALL BAZAAR will turn you,
