THE LATEST WAR NEWS.

The importance of the victory achieved by Gen. McClellan on Saturday last before Richmond, increases as the details come to hand. Some days must necessarily elapse before we can receive the results of the battle as reported from present appearances. The latter will recur their energetic efforts as the Confederacy. Union meetings have been held in Norfolk and Portsmouth, and have been largely attended. A successful reconnaissance has been made on Tuesday, North Carolina, resulting in the capture of a rebel Colonel Geo. E. Pickens, and his wife. It is believed that Col. Pickens, of the Maryland Regiment, is a prisoner at Winchester, and is wounded in the head. A large number of prisoners have been landed in New York city. Good news continues to be received from General Halleck's division. Colonel Elliott's expedition to Knoxville, on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, was successful. The rebels captured 5,000 prisoners and the destruction of 10,000 staves of arms. General Beauregard and Drag were reported as having been on Corinth a short time previous to his evacuation. Trouble is brewing in Memphis, all the newspaper offices having been removed to Grenada, in Mississippi. Another prize steamer has been brought into New York. The steamer "Aurora," from London, and was captured by the United States Gunboat State of Georgia while attempting to enter Charleston harbor with a valuable cargo of arms.

LETTER FROM "OCCASIONAL."

WASHINGTON, June 2, 1862. The fall of Corinth will be followed by the fall of Richmond. The head of the serpent will not only be cut off, and will be cut off. It is left to me to follow in the footsteps of the victor. The battle of yesterday, before Richmond, was precipitated by the rebels, in the desperate hope of breaking the coil of the Generalissimo, and the result was a glorious and glorious. The Union army, solid and confident, and themselves demoralized and panic-stricken. I write early in the morning, before the expected details have been received. The operation has undoubtedly succeeded, it has reached Washington. But enough is known to render certain the complete success of our arms, and to prove that the traitors can no longer keep the field save in small bands of marauding foragers. The Generalissimo, situated in the column of Halleck gives him the opinion that Beauregard will be forced to disband his troops and to seek safety in flight. He alleges that he is completely hemmed in, and that he cannot escape to the south. The rebels have thrown around him. If these theories are sustained by the events of the next few hours or days, the rebel chiefs will hasten from the scenes of their degradations and defeats to avoid the vengeance of the Federal Government. It is believed that they have already made preparations for this event. They will attempt to escape into Mexico or South America, and an idea is thrown out that they may make a last stand in Texas. But all of them must get away. The only way to escape is by the Gulf of Mexico. The only way to escape is by the Gulf of Mexico. The only way to escape is by the Gulf of Mexico.
