

The Press.

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1862.

ON FRIDAY SENATOR FESSENDEN upon having anticipated the tax bill through the Senate. It was rather more than we expected to have passed yesterday, for there seemed to be some time on the part of the members to postpone and ignore it for other and less important matters.

LETTER FROM "OCCASIONAL." WASHINGTON, June 6, 1862. The prediction of a certain abolitionist, filled in, that the rebellion will sustain its last great effort in or near the city of Richmond, its heart broken, its strength paralyzed, its spirit gone.
