OF THE PER 1861.

EMBRACING POLITICAL, CIVIL. MILITARY,
AND SOCIAL AFFAIRS; PUBLIO DOCUMENTS;
BIOGRAPHY, STATISTOS, COMMERCE, FINANCE, LITERATURE. SCIENCE, AGRICUL-TURE, AND MECHANICAL INDUSTRY. THE events and consequences of Civil War, especially duce us to commence the publication of an annual volume, or Oyclopadia, containing a tratiful record of these occurrences, the contemporaneous events in other nations, and the progress made in the various branches of buman knowledge.

The sources of authority from which the statements and descriptions are drawn, will be the actors themselves, or their efficial reports. These embrace events occurring in the North and South. Prepared in such a manner as to illustrate principles and to unfold motives, it will remain for the reader to deduce his inferences, whist the work will be confined to precise, sifted, and clearly narrated details. Thus devoid of every thir glike a pactisan character, aiming at candor and invartiality in its representations, a just appreciation of the extent and effects of the press at unpracedented political troubles will be within the reach of all intelligent readers.

But while events, whether triumphs or disasters, have so absorbed public attention throughout the year, still commerce has not been idle, science has not tarried in her progress, nor has rechanical industry been entirely paralyzed. The fruits of the former and the discoveries and improvements of the latter have been too valuable and too useful to be overlooked. They form now no less a para of this exterpies than the accounts of the overthow of States with their usual scenes of carnage and blood. But if they occupy less space in this first volume, as they do likewise, for the moment, attract less of public attention, it is because the life of the nation, the sacredness of the memoirs of the pass, and the hopeful auticipations of the future, all hang upon the political and military events now transpiring.

the future, all hang upon the pointest and minitary events now transpiring.

The form of a Cyclopedia bas been selected as affording room for the greatest variety of details, without becoming too minute and tedious. The work is already in an advanced stage of preparation, and will be issued as early in the year as its proper completion will permit. The volume will be in the style of the New American Cyclopedia, having not less than 750 pages, royal 8vo.

The work will be published exclusively by subscription, and in exterior appearance will be at once elegant and substantial.
