In New York city there are thirteen persons to a dwelling on the average; in Boston about nine; in New Orleans nearly seven. In Philadelphia there is no establishment similar that occupied by Granville Stokes, the fashioner and clothier, at No. 669 Chestuat street, where summer garments, not equalled elsewhere, either in fit, fabric, or nion, are disposed of at unprecedented low prices. BUTLER ON WOMAN BEATERS .- General Butler has recently made an example of a chivalrous genteman at New Orleans, who flayed the back of a female slave because he imagined that she had given some inormation concerning him. The cavalier washed the raw person of his victim with brine to increase the agony she suffered. Gon. BEGINNING OF A NEW VOLUME. The present number commences the TENTH VOLUMS of the ATLANTIC. The fact that 10,000 copies have been added to the regular circulation of this Magazine since the beginning of this year is a sufficient evidence of the favor with which the public regard the ATLANTIC. The TRITH YOLUMS will contain a great variety of the best articles in all departments of literature. Its pages will be strengthered as heretofore, by thoughtful and patriotic political papers from the best pens in the country. In the department of Novels and Stories, the ATLANTIC will in future be specially well supplied, some of our most popular writers being now engaged on Romances and Tales for its columns. The late Theodorn Winthrop, the author of "Geoil Dreeme" and "John Brent," left a most interesting journal of his travels, which will appear shortly in the ATLANTIO, with the title of "Life in the Open Air." The record is full of adventure. Professor Lowell and Professor Agassiz will continue their popular contributions, so widely welcomed at hom
