Japanese Literature. The Japanese Embassy, it may be remem bered, honored us with a visit in the year of grace 1860, discreetly retiring from public view, a little before the Prince of Wales visited these United States, and was treated hospitably in Washington, rowdyishly in Richmond, operatically in Philadelphia, and peculiarly in New York-Fernando Wood having received him at the Battery, General Sandford treating him to a military review, and the virtuous Aldermen, who had filled their purses out of the Japanese job, giving him a ball in the Academy of Music, of which the falling-in of the floor was the most memorable talling-out. Many speculations arose, after the departure of the Japanese, whether, imitating the example of civilized beings, they would publish any account of their journeyings in the New World :- that they would write was known, for they took copious notes of what they saw and heard, and stated that part of their duty was to condense them into a continuous and connected parrative for the use of the Tycoon of Japan.

They have written and published such a work, and an account of it has been received in St. Petersburg, from the Russian Consulate at Hakodada, in which city it has appeared. It is a popular account of what the Japanese aw in this country, from their arrival at San Francisco to their departure from New York n the United States war-steamship Niagara. It consists of two volumes, illustrated with the portraits of the leading public men whom they saw here, with plans of the principal cities which they visited, and views of the more important public buildings which they noticed or examined. The drawings, executed rudely enough, are full of life and spirit, and among them promidence is given the portrait of a young American lady, with the legend running underneath : "A national beauty of the first water." Unnappily, the name of this damsel is not given by her pig-tailed admirers. The Russian Corsul has not given many particulars of this publication, a copy of which he was not allowed to export to his own country, but generally states that much accuracy is observed in its very numerous and minute details. The Japan Embassy which is now in Europe will prepare a similar account of their We have a description, also, from the Russian Official at Hakodadi, of another work lately published there by a Japanese gentleman, named Inggaki. It consists of two large volumes, profusely illustrated, and bears the modest title of "The Survey of the World." though it is limited to a description of Russis, England, and France. Facing the title-page of the first volume is the portrait of a European lady in a crinoline of stupendous immensity, with ostrich feathers in her hair, and a parasol jauntily crowning all. Among the illustrations are the portraits of the Emperor of the French, in dressing-gown and slippers, with a bowl or cup in his hand; Queen Victoria sitting on a simple chair, with a much-crinolined lady-in-waiting at her side, and Peter the Great of Russia, stifly stuck upon his throne, with a cane in his right hand. There are views, also, of a cannonfoundry and a ship-wharf in Eugland, a theatre in Paris, a group of peasants in Russia, and various other objects. The author devotes a separate chapter to each picture, conveying to his countrymen much interesting intelligence, and showing a judicious appreciation of foreign people, which is far in advance of the bigotted, narrow-mindedness of the Chiin Europe—a natural ounclusion, since it was there that he picked up the chief materials of his work. THAT AMONG the London papers, the Times. Herald, Standard and Post, Telegraph and Observer should bark and bite at us is not to be wondered at, seeing that "'tis their nature to," as the late Dr. WATTS remarked, with more truth than grammar. But that the Daily News, which has generally been impartial. should do so, has much surprised us. The Daily News occasionally bolts from the course as high-mettled chargers sometimes do-aud was especially anti American in the case of the Trent. Lately, it fell foul of a snag, in the shape of General Butler's reasonable and easonable proclamation touching the selfstyled "ladies of New Orleans," who, before its ssue, used publicly to insult our brave National troops in the most discourteous and unadylike manner, but have not so offended, even in a single instance, since its appearance -which fact, by the way, at once shows the necessity for issuing such a document, whether to be regarded as a monition or a threat. The London Daily News of June 16 says:

"It gives us great pleasure to state that as soon as the authenticity of General Butler's proclamation was ascertained at Washington, he was superseded as military commandant of New Orleans." We are thankful for original intelligence, and accept the above, though, unfortunately, it is not true. Neither is it true that General Butler, who has acted with The London Daily News of June 16 says: true that General Butler, who has acted with equal firmness, bravery, and judgment, in his difficult and most important responsibility, has been "superseded as military commandant of the city of New Orleans, by acting Brigadier General George F. Shepley," as also announced by the same paper. On the contrary, it was Major General Butler, who has full command in the Department of the Gulf, who appointed General Shepley to the military commanderst ip of New Orleans. Through great ignorance on one hand, and wilful misrepresentation on the other, most of the statements in the English press about this country are ridiculous, false, and absurd. Yet, we have no doubt, English editors fancy themselves particularly well-posted upon American affairs. This would be a harmless fancy, was it not that the English people naturally take their impressions from their newspapers,

the chaff of fiction. News of Literature. Mr. Clifford Stapley Sims, a member of the Philadelphia bar, has written an interesting work, entitled "The Origin and Signification of Scottish Surnames," which will be speedily published by Mr. J. Munsell, Albany-a gentleman whose name is honorably associated with many valuable books. Only 150 copies will be printed, to be supplied by subscription, and got up, upon superior paper, with wide margins, in Mr. Munsell's accustomed excellent manner. The subscription will be $1.50 for sewed, and $2 for cloth-bound copies. The edition is very limited-we should fancy that the St. Andrew's Society in this city alone would engross the whole of it. We had the pleasure of perusing Mr. Sims' work in manuscript, and cheerfully bear testimony to the research, erudition, and full acquaint, ance with the subject which it exhibits. It is onertaining as well as antiquarian, and is liberally studded with historical and personal anecdotes. Arts upon Edward J. Rebel Letters Lost and Found. The following letters are supposed to have been lost by rebel leaders and found by patriotic citizens. They were handed to us a few days ago, and we print them as they are, vouching for the doctrines and views they set forth, rather than for the authenticity of the letters themselves: J. C. BRECKINRIDGE TO A FRIEND IN PHILADEL-PIIIA.

When I left the Senate of the United States last August, I had no idea that I should ever return to it. I had indulged myself in every manner of misrepresentation as to the objects of the Administration, and the origin of the war, and therefore, when I shook hands with my friend, Senator —, I bade bim an affectionate farewell. I went home to Kentucky and soon discovered that the judgment of my own people was so utterly against what I had said in the Senate that I had no other resource but to join the Contederate army. I volunteered my services, which were cheerfully accepted. My son had previously—very much against my will at first—gone into the rebellion, and I had promised my friends in Washington that I would recall and disgrace him; but my own course had been a sort speeches made in the House of Representatives against Mr. Lincoln help us inconceivably, and every Democratic ticket that is settled, and every Democratic convention that is held upon the basis of these speeches, is more or less aiding and comforting us. The difficulty we have in the seceled States; is, that there is not a sufficient Secession serviment in the free States. If you can add to this sentiment, and continue your opposition to the Administration of Lincoln, you will do everything to humiliate the North, and to help the South. I am told that a large majority of the Federal army is composed of men who voted for me in the last Presidential election, but this cannot be so, because they fought as bitterly against the South at Shilob, where I had a division to command, as if they had been Abolitionists. I believe that they are sorry for ever having voted for me. Therefore, are sorry for ever having voted for me. Therefore, my only reliance is in such men as yourself. Un-less you continue these intrigues we shall be compelled to surrender, and then you will be left to the mercy of the free-soil element. J. C. B.

RICHMOND. -How fortunate you are, my dear connection, in having carried your family to beautiful Paris! You have left behind a glorious job for us, poor devils, to accomplish. I was indebted to you for the position I occupied in the Federal army. The Government of the United States was most kind to mo. ton 1 occupied in the Federal army. The Government of the United States was most kind to me. It conferred upon me every honor that my ambition could desire, and you yourself compelled Franklin Pierce to put me in command of the work on the New Orleans Custom House, when I had no right or title to it, elevating me over the heads of others, who were my seniors in the army. I never knew what polities was until I entered your family. It was you who educated me to dislike the Yankees. It was you who taught me to turn ingrate to the country that had fostered me. It was head that had fostered me. It was head that had fostered me. It was you who educated me to dislike the Yankees. It was you who taught me to turn ingrate to the country that had fostered me. It was you who told me that if I took up arms against the United States Government I should be rewarded and honored. Do not suppose that! reproach you in these remarks, because, being a soldier of fortune, I have placed my sword at the service of the Confederacy. I have fought in several pitched battles the champions of the old flag. I led our forces against McDowell at Bull Run; I led them at Shiloh, and I am now writing you from Richmond, in anticipation of a great battle. We shall be beaten, Mr. Slidell, badly and wofally beaten, and then what is to become of me?

ter the hazard of the die. R. M. T. HUNTER TO JAMES M. MASON, LONDON. I presume you are enjoying yourself splendidly in her Majesty's deminions, and I suppose you receive frequent messages from Mr. Slideil at Paris. You will recollect that I never agreed with you in your foolish and insane ultraism while in the Senate against the people of the free States. I told you on many occasions that they were brayer than you supposed them to be I resured you that in the event of against the people of the free States. I told you on many occasions that they were braver than you supposed them to be. I assured you that in the events of a war the Old Government would be too much for us. This was the reason of my hesitation; but with your characteristic arrogance you insisted that we must conquer. Will you be good enough to look at the picture now presented? Virginia is utterly desolated. It has become the battle-field of the Confederacy. We are here to fight the last great fight. We have lost all Western Virginia, and nearly one-half of Eastern Virginia is impoverished and oppressed by the Confederate armies. Quit situation is indeed pitiable. We have lead, prevariested, and cheated until at last we have ceased to deceive our own people, who see our rags, know our deceive our own people, who see our rags, know our poverty, and bate our bankruptcy. On! my doar, sir-if. I could only be with you where you are; for I am well convinced that a dey is approaching when my only relief will be either in suicide or

HOWELL COBB TO A FRIEND IN WASHINGTON. MECHANICSVILLE, near Richmond, —, 1862.

Well, here I am, and here I have been for months past making a sort of fraud of myself, prating disunion when I never believed it, telling lies to people which they did not credit. I know you will laugh at me for putting on the uniform of a colonel of dragoons. You can imagine how this service operates upon a man of my avoirdupois. I are not a I used to be Fet I am but year favor. service operates upon a man of my avoirdupois. I am not as I used to be. Fat I am, but very feverish, hungry, but nothing to eat, and the fine plantation in Georgia, to which I was in the habit of locking for my revenue, is unproductive, and decayed. The slaves I bragged about have become useless, and my own family write to me, as best they can by these borrid mails, that they themselves are in a deplorable condition. Give me credit for having tried my best to prevent this I speke for popular sovereignty in Chester county Pennsylvania. I supported John Hickman (that arrant Abolitionist) in 1856. I pledged my people to stand by the right of the majority in Kansas to control the affairs of that Territory, and I was fully determined to carry out these pledges until I get into Buchanna's Cabinet. When I discovered that a majority of the politicians of the South were renor, in 1851, they persecuted me to the death, and I confess that I was airaid to encounter another such opposition. Therefore, I yielded. Therefore. I contess that I was arrant to encounter anomer; such opposition. Therefore, I yielded. Therefore, I joined hands with them in forcing Buchanan to agree to all the outrages (which I am now convinced were outrages) in regard to the Lecompton policy. Having done this much, how could I refuse to take up arms against the Union? I did so, and here I m. Many a time in the silent hours of night do I. am. Many a time in the silent hours of night do I think of what I have done, and of what I am doing; but as I am fully committed, I must go on to the end.

ALEXANDER H. STEPBENS TO DR. ARNOLD, OF SAVANAH.

RICHMOND, ——, 1862.

DOCTOR: I have told you frequently in all our past troubles that if over we got into a conflict with the Federal Government we should be defeated. I tried my best to keep off this horrid war. My whole heart was against it. You will bear me witness that I have frequently told you that our safety was in the Union. This was my text and my prayer, and had I been permitted to take my own course I should have stood by Jndge Douglas to the bitter end, as I had promised him I would. Born in the free States, and knowing the people of that section thoroughly, I had made up my mind to make a gallant fight to the end. An Old-line Whig, educated in the school of Henry Clay, I had caught the inspiration of Union from the lips of that great man, and I believed that my own people would follow the in whatever course I took, but when Toombs deserted me, and when Iverson field, and when Seward, of the Chatham district, proclaimed ALEXANDER H. STEPHENS TO DR. ARNOLD, OF SA-Toombs deserted me, and when Iverson fied, and when Seward, of the Chatham district, proclaimed that I was a doubtful man, and could not be trusted at home, I was forced to give up the glorious-little man of Illinois, and to join hands with men that I had hated and despised. I have been at Richmond frequently. I have seen Jefferson Davis, and although he is too proud to admit to me that the whole Confederacy is a failure, yet I can trace in his words and in his acts are elequent confession of this fact. Oh! that the Democratic party of the Free States that voted for Breckinridge in 1950 were only strong enough to compel Lincoln and his friends to make such proffers of compromise to us as we could accept! Then I could go back to my own State and my own people, open up my record before them, and induce them to submit.

PIERRE SOULE TO HIS FRIEND IN PARIS. Mon amie, I am in for it. That poor creature Slidell, has fled. He leaves me here in New Or studded with historical and personal aneodotes.

We had bought so many Northern and Northwestern men with the patronage of the Federal Government, that I flattered myself it might be done again. We had often convinced them that slavery itself was a Divine institution. I have been shamefully disappointed, and I admit it to you with sorrow at my heart. The Northern men fight like very devils. There is no party in the Free States against the war, but those who agree with me. Slavery itself has been made odieus in the Free, and profiless in the Slave States, and I am at last conwinged that the day of its doom has strived. E. L. L. TO A FRIEND IN BALTIMORE. RICHMOND, _____, 1862.

A beautiful pass we haveall come to! Here I am, a Maryland man, fighting against my own State, my services, which were cheertuily accepted. My son had previously—very much against my will at first—gone into the rebellion, and I had promised my friends in Washington that I would recall and disgrace him; but my own course had been a sort of example for him, and I was compelled to follow him. At this moment, I can assure you, that my only hope of an end of the war is upon the men in the free States who continue to stand by my doctrines, ias expressed in the campaign of 1860, and who oppose the Administration of Lincoln, which is devoted to the maintenance of the Federal Constitution. I have been greatly disappointed in Lincoln. I expected to find him an Abolitionist, a fierce Emancipationist, instead of which he proves to be—a good deal of a statesman. If you, and those who act with you in the free States, can keep up the Democratic organization, you will aid us more than any victory we can achieve over the Federal army. As I have said, this is our only hope. The speeches made in the House of Representatives against Mr. Lincoln help us inconceivably, and every Democratic ticket that is settled, and every Democratic toxent that is held upon the basis of these speeches, is more or less aiding and one. franchised and deserted man—one who has been led into a sad mistake, and who, while deeply regretting it, has not been able to secure the forgiveness of the people he has betrayed. JAMES M. MASON TO A FRIEND IN PHILADELPHIA. All my letters from the United States convince me that the cause of the Confederacy is gone. I have been insulted, snubbed, and laughed at. I assure you that all the stiffness and arrogance in my nature has been taken out, and I would give any nature has been taken out, and I would give anything to be permitted to resume my place in the Senate, and to set my old part. You know how unpopular I have always been in Philadelphia. Not many years ago, while dining at a gentleman's house in your city, I took occasion to state that the time would come when I would regard the Northern people as alien enemies, and that even then I believed mixelf to be in a foreign country. I had ern people as aften cleames, and that even then I believed myself to be in a foreign country. I had sequired such a contempt for the North, and for the people of the North, that when I uttered this sentiment I thought it might be realized. In the Senate, I looked upon the Senators of the free States, as my inferiors, and treated them as such I rejuiced in the outrage perpetrated upon Sumner. I gloried over the death of Broderick; but now, at this distance from home, however the Equision people of these States has satisfied me that the English can no more lay their hands upon these English can no more lay their hands upon these people than they can put this hand into the fire of the volcano. I regret to tell you that Mr. Slidell is heart-broken. He assumes a gayety that he does not feel. Every sort of excitement is resorted to by him, and yet his very dreams are troubled with the idea that he may be apprehended at any moment as a convict and a criminal. I shall never return to the United States. My property at Germany is of course forward your goal and Mr. Chem. mantown is, of course, forever gone, and Mr. Chew, my connection, who has persecuted me so bitterly, will now come into complete possession. my connection, who has persecuted me so bitterly, wofully beaten, and then what is to become of me?

I left New York on a sort of furlough, trusting that the Lincolnites would give up to us the Southern States, or else that I should be enabled to be the grand mediator between the two sections; but I am now a cort of vagrant, and having been a lobby agent in Washington, I am suspected by Pavis, despised by Toombe, and even shown the cold shoulder by Benjamin. Ah! if I could get back to New York, or be permitted to go to Washington, how much better off I should be than I am here!

how much better off I should be than I am here GEN. LEE TO A FRIEND IN PHILADELPHIA. I confess to you, my dear friend, that if I had taken your advice I would never have entered into this unfortunate campaign against the Union. I was educated by the General Government; made a favorite by many Administrations, and courted a favorite by many Administrations, and courted by all the statemen of my day. I never believed for a moment, when I was seduced by the fatal heresy of State rights, that the issue would result in war; for, if I had, I can assure you that my sword would never have been drawn against my country; but, having entered into this fight, I am compelled to do my best. I am no politician, but believe me when I tell you that the Northern soldiers fight much better than I supposed they would. They endure privation with heroic fortitude, and they show, from first to last, that they are proud of that country which I have unhappily deserted.

LETTER FROM THURLOW WEED.

What He Observed in Europe-The Benefits

Derived from Americans Visiting Europe-The Feeling of the Public in England and The Joint Committee of the Common Council to tender the thanks of the people of the city to Thurlow Weed, for his labors for the Union cause in Europe, have just received the following reply to the complime lutions authorizing these courtesies, which were passed

GENTLEMEN: I receive, with a grateful sense of the honor they confer, the very flattering resolutions adopted by, the Common Council of your commercial metropolis. I accept them frankly and proudly, as emanations rather of your own generous constructions than as meritel' by of your own generous constructions than as merited by any service it may have been in my power to render our country.

If, during a temperary residence in Europe, Lhaveben enabled, in some degree, to relieve the complications in which our affairs were involved; to do something toward vindicating our Government from unjust aspersions; or to aid in turning back the tide of popular sentiment setting so strongly against our cause, it was owing to the prempt and spereous confidence reposed in me by our distinguished representatives in fingland and France. In bearing testim my, as is both a duty and a pleasure, to the ability and fit city of Mr. Adams and Mr. Dayton, I cannot to bear to add that, rising above considerations which might have disturbed minister, less truly devoted to their, country, they not only accepted unofficial coperation, but discumbarrassed my collea, use and myself, by cheerfully facilitating our efforts. It is a pleasure, sice, to add that, on several occasions and in essential ways, I was officially aided by Mr. Sanford, our indefatigable minister to Belgium. Nor could the Government, in a season of trial and difficulty, have made happier selections of trial and difficulty, have made happier some of its citizens to visit Europe. It is to be regretted that two or three eminent, gentlemen to whom it is understood that invitation extended were unable to accept it, for the field was large and the laborers few. In the designation of Archeleitop Hughes and Bishop McLivaine, however, the Government was peculiarly fortunate. The services of those eminent and enlightened divices and devoted Unisa men—the former in Paris, and their fervid zeal gave weight and authority to their statements and opinions.

tive. Their exaited positions, their high character, and their frivid zeal gave weight and authority to their statements and opinions.

Scoresion, while undermining for ultimate reboillon, was thoughtful of the importance of the favor of Enrope. The South, with its long-cherished purpose, worked as diligently abroad as at home. The North, unconscious of the great crime meditated, slept Active emissaries of Secession, nided too often by sympathizing ministers and consuls, settled the public mind on the other side of the Allantic against as. Public opinion was formed against the Union before our side of the question was presented or heard. By turning truth end fo, end, and reading history backwards, we were held by Europeans as the aggressors! The last three months of Mr. Buchanan's Administration were almost as injurious abroad as at home, for there, as, here, loyal men only occupied the places of disloyal cabinet and foreign ministers too late to mip rebellion in the bud.

Unfortunately, there were causes, as well as pretexts, for the lack of sympathy which we encountered. In Europe. The Governments of the old world remember that, from the nature of our institutions, our own sympathies have generally run with those who struggled to overthrow monarchies, and that we have shown alacrity. An admirable translation of "Cooste," the second part of Victor Higgs new work "Lead Higgs ne

Impatient than England; not, however, from unfriendilness, but because the Emperor assumes, in the absence of employment, to supply his people with food. But we have nothing to fear from Europe, if we are successful in the prosecution of the war. Fort Donelson, Nashville, Winchester, New Orleans, and Memphis are our strongest arguments against intervention, with Governments.

There are, however, but two well-founded reasons for apprehending future embroilment with England. Nor can I doubt the propriety of dwelling briefly but carneally upon a danger fraught with consequences so fatal to the welfsje of both nations. The Trent affair, though happily, because rightfully, settled, has left an arrow with poisoned barb lostening in our flesh and irritating turn nerves. The impression that England, willing to take us at disadvantage, availed herself of the erring judgment or impulsive zail of a naval commander to wage war upon us, has obtained throughout the country. That England expected war and intended war, making, with unparalleled alacrity and in gigantic proportions, preparations for war, is admitted to betrue, But with opportunities favorable to a correct understanding of the views of the English Government, and of the feelings that swayed the English dovernment, and of the feelings that was desired a tupture with them; that we sought occasions to taunt and sand them; and, egregiously unfounded as the supposition was, that the private Secretary of State was the representative of this bostile sentiment.

In justification of these impressions, it was said that, the third addresses to the capital to the challenge of the capital contents of the sentence.

egregiously unionized as the supposition-was, that the prefer Secretary of State was the representative of this hostile sentiment.

In justification of these impressions, it was said that, by "bullying," we obtained advantages in the settlement of the Northeastorn and Vancouver Boundary questions; that we sbruptly dismissed their minister, Mr. Crampton, and their consul, Mr. Barclay; that our sympathies, in their war with Russis, were with their enemy; that we had often threatened to wrest Oanada from them; and, finglly, that Secretary Seward had avoved hostile-intentions toward England.

Some of these grounds of complaint were, as we know, well taken, and all were believed to be so.

We all left that the recognition of the Southern Confedency as a belligeract, by England and France, was an over-hasty and ungracious act. But in, submitting the proposition to the French Emperor, the English crown lawyers enferced it by arguments which, from that stand-point, were forcible. Both Governments supposed that the insurgent States had or could fit out vessels of war, and wished to relieve themselves from the responsibility of treating such vessels as pirates. In this they erred, for, without the impunity thus extended to them, not even the Nashville or Sumpter would ever have youtured to rea!

But notwithstanding these adverse influences, and the tured to sea!

But, notwithstanding these adverse influences, and the existence, in certain high quarters of views not friendly to the success of our form of Government, the Union has many ardent, well-wishing friends in Eugland, and can heve many more if we act justly ourselves, and labor to correct grossly erron one impressions. The paths of peace are the only paths of pleasantness for England and America. In view of the dangers, which I do not exaggerate—dangers growing out of mutual misapprohension of each other's real sentiments—it behoves the Government, the press, and the people of both countries, by enlightened councies, large toleration, and wise forbearance, to soothe rather than stimulate existing irritations. Nor, in forming our estimate of the degree and value of English sympathy during our domestic trouble; is the fact that her Queen and House of Commons modified harsh deep arches and resisted unfriendly legislation, without significance. have many more if we act justly ourselves, and labor to the city, from Coeutres slip up Broad street, with the trunk of a passenger on my shouder, is a well-remembered incident. Subsequently, in 1816, 1817, and 1818, I wrought there as a journeyman printer. Having,

The United States minister, Mr. Carter, had presented a project to establish a colony on the borders of the Madera. This very important enterprise would be submitted to congress at the next session.

The difficulties between Pern and Bolivia would be amicably settled.

The Prefect of Beul had communicated to the Govern-The Prefect of Beul had communicated to the Government that very rich gold mines had been discovered at the celebrated mountain Polla or San Simon. These mines were attracting great attention, and are said to be exceedingly rich. The Congress at the ensuing session, at the eugges ion of the President, will, it is stated, adopt measures to develep the resources of these mines and to encourage the emigration of miners from abroad.

MEXICAN AFFAIRS—THE NEW CABINET. Congress convened at Santiago de Chile on the 1st nst., and the President delivered his message, which was inst., and the President delivered his message, which was well received by that body.

The President, in referring to Mexican affairs, says:

"The extraordinary announcement that the establishment of a monarchy in Mexico, under a European prince, who should assume the title of King of the Mexicane, has given rise in Chile, as in every other part of America, to an intense excitement, manifested in various acts and ways. It seems incredicted that the Queens of Spain and England, or the Emperor of the French, whose power is proclaimed on the ground of popular suffrage, should seriously contemplate such a scheme."

He ngain says: "I have thought fit to send to Mexico a diplomatic agent, to express my desire of seeing a final. He again says: "I have thought fit to send to Maxico a diplomatic agent, to express my desire of seeing a final termination of the pending difficulties, and to tender my good offices to the President of that Republic."

In regard to the new Cabinet there had not been any appointments made. But it was stated that the following gentlemen had been recommended:

Dom Manuel Antonio Tocomul to take charge of the pertfolio of the Interior and the head of the State Department; Dom Miguel M. Guemes and Dom Alvaro-Corarrubias for portfolio of Justice; General Maturana, and Colonel Sesso for War and Navy, and Dom Francis de B. Solar for the Treasury Department.

The Government has also in contemplation the creation of a new Department for Public Works.

It is rumnered that the Rev. Dom Jose Ignacio Victor Eizaguire is soon to visit the South American republics in the capacity of Nuncio-from his Holiness Pio IX.

Dr. Calvin G. Paige, surgeon in charge, Dr. Banjamin fmith, Dr. G. W. Magile, Dr. John Allen, Dr. C. M. Crandall, Dr. Clandler. Ward Masters—Messrs. E. O. Brown, E. G. Harrisca, D. Whitesides, Parcells, Pass-THE FRENCH ARMY.—Target shooting is now practised universally in the French army; not only the kets, take part in the exercise, but also the cavalry regi-ments, armed with pistols only, such as the lancers. SOLD OUT.—The Eurnett House, in Cincinnati, has been sold for $220,000. It is covered by two mortgages, one of $125,000, held by A. Belmont, and another of $75,000, by other parties. The lessee, Mr. Sanders, is not disturbed in his presession by the sale. TRISH UNIONISTS -The gallant exploits of the Irih officers and regiments in the American war are cagerly copied by the papers in Ireland, and the birthplace and early life of each bero is proudly narrated. This has already stimulated a powerful Union Seeling roughout the entire country. ENGLISH PAUPERS.—It was quietly remarked, in one of the recent meetings of the Social Congress in London, that workingmen in England must first become paupers before they could obtain treatment for issanity. Dr. Miller, who made this observation, said it quite seriously. STRANGERS IN WASHINGTON.—There are more persons in Washington just now, from the borner States, than there have ben at any time since the first breaking out of the rebellion. EXPELLED.—The Board of Tructors of Bethany College, at their regular annual session on Thursday last, the 3d instant onenimously expelled Charles W. Russell, member of the robel Congress from that district, from his A NEEDED REFORM .- Adj Gen. Thomas recommends to Congress that chaplains, before entering the army, should be required to file certificates of good moral. character.

THE STRAY BEIRY TRADE —Some idea of the trade in stray terries may be formed from the fact that one house alone, in Cincinnati, has forwarded five hundred bushels per day for three weeks past, to cities east and west. Besides these, yest quantities were carried end sent to the army.
