The committee, after consultation, reported the following resolutions, which, on motion, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this meeting regard all party affiliations as secondary to the great work of suppressing the rebellion, brought about by the connivance and treachery of the Breckinridge organization.

Resolved, That, in the language of the lamented Douglas; there can be but two side to the United States or a just it. There can be no neutrals in this war. There can be none but patriots and trattors.
