THE BOOK OF DAYS.— Parts 4 and 5 of this well- edited, reatly printed, handsomely pictured, and unusually low-priced periodical have appeared, bringing the work down to the commencement of March, in its description and illustration of the year. If William and Robert Chambers had never published any works except this, and their admira- ble Eccyclopudia, still their memory should be green in the hearts of the present and the coming	The Thern           JULY 31, 1861.           6 A. TRAGEDY OF SUCCESS.—This dramatic poem, companion to the Tragedy of Errors, by the able, but anonymous author of the "Record of an Ob- soure Man," exhibits a great deal of poetic ability and power of language. Many pages are exceed- ingly well written. But, the writer wants concen- tration. In the second scene, for instance, Herbert soliloquizes to the extent of elevon pages, at a stretch. Such a poem, of course, was not intended for the stage. Yet the last scene, solemn and ten- der, is eminently dramatic. (Ticknor & Fields, Boston; J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.)	The regular meeting of both was held yesterday atternoon. SELECT B THEO. CUTLER, President, i Petitions, Commu One from R. S. THE REJECTED STONE .- Of this volume, also, by Mr. Conway, a third edition has just appeared. In this also, he strongly argues in favor of immediate slave-emancipation. (Same publishers.)

PARSON BROWNLOW .- Of this tractate, in Bea dle's Dime Series, the portrait is the best thing. The biography is sketchy and flimsy. The extracts from Mr. Brownlow's writings fill most of the work, and give a fair idea of his style. (Philadelphia: T. B. Peterson & Brothers.)

Among the Boston publishers, Walker, Wise, & Co., are distinguished for the good quality of their serious and thoughtful books. Among their recent publications are, a second edition of "Traots for Priests and People" (a series of independent and truly Christian "Essays and Reviews")-by the Rev. F. D. Maurice and other clerical and lay writers, and a Second Series of "The Altar, at Home," consisting of Selections and Prayers for Domestic worship. This last is one of the most perfect books of the sort we have ever seen, and, for Family Worship, cannot be equalled. It is printed with great accuracy and elegance.

"All that we know," Athena's wisest son declared, "is, nothing can be known." Assuredly, he did not dream of homeopathy or vegetarianism. However, we have scores of doctors prac ising the former, and crowds of people living by the latter principle. "Health : its Friends and its Foes," by Dr. R. D. Mussey, undeniably contends, with equal ability and plausibility, that vegetable food is sufficient for man physically and intellectually. No doubt the theory is fine, but-oau it last, with most mortals, in presence of a haunch of venison, a saddle of mutton, a quarter of lamb, a loin beefsteak, not to say any thing of a lobster-salad ? Dr. Mussey gives one rule for travellers and mindworkers-"Never eat when weary or fatigued; first lie down and take a nap." (Boston : Gould & Lincoln. Philadelphia : Smith, English, & Co.)

first lie down and takes hap. (Louis the first lie down and takes hap. (Louis the first lie down and takes hap. (Louis take to all and takes hap. (Louis take to all and takes hap. (Louis takes those in which Mr. Train defends General Butler's New Orleans proclamation, exposes the humbug of England's pretended neutrality, handles " London Times" Russell, cuts up Lord Brougham, oriticises the morality of the Derby Day, exposes the mystery of the Mexican Treaty, and vindicates the character and conduct of the Unionists. Mr. Train is an eloquent, impulsive, irrepressible orator, and has served his country well in England. His facts are always telling, and he crowds his speeches with them. A more accurate speaker does not live. We notice that Petersons have a new novel by Mrs. Mackenzie Daniels nearly ready for publication. It is called "Marrying for Money," will contain 243 octavo pages, and is printed from advance proof sheets received from England.

MANSION HOUSE,

MILITARY — A large and inthusiastic war meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, Manayunk, on Wednessay evening, under the auspices of Captain F. A. Eliot, of Co. F. Zonaves d'Afrique. Judge Kelley made an elequent appeal to the young, able bodied men present; and spoke in bigh terms of the regiment and its officers. On one fact, he said, the ra-oruits could rely, and that was that every officer in the regiment was prempted purely by patriotic motives; and he was proud to see upon the list the name of Captain Frank Eliot, who made as many sacrifices, pecuniary, dometic, and cold, as any maa in the army. Colonel Collis, Captain Eliot, and Sergeant A. W. #### New Periodicals.

From W. B. Zieber, South Third street, we have some new periodicals. Blackwood's Magazine for July, the New York fac-simile reprint, does not contain a sentence against this country. Its most striking article is the further portion of "The Chronicles of Carlingford," by Mrs. Oliphant-a tale which has been erroneonsly attributed to Miss Evans, author of "Adam Bede." There is a lively paper, rather too diffuse at the commencement, called "Across the Channel," in which the differences between English and Continental life and customs are pleasantly exhibited, and, unattractive though the title be, the dissertation on "Snails" is instructive and amusing. The sixth part of Bulwer's "Caxtoniana" is rather heavy reading. A genial notice of poems, by David Wingate, a Scottish collier, errs on the gentle side of over praise. Of the Eclectic Magazine, edited and published by the Rev. W. H. Bidwell, The August number, completing the 56th volume, is now before us. The articles are selected, with taste and judgment, from the leading British periodicals, many of which are almost unknown in this country. The steel-engraving, this month, is very appropriate, being a portrait of Captain Ericston, the inventor of the saucy little Monitor, which has necessitated a change of naval warfare. It was engraved, with striking offect, by Geo. E. Perine, of New York. We have frequently thought that Mr. Bidwell could produce an acceptable monthly pictorial, by republishing, three in each number, with brief two-page biographies, the fine portraits of eminent personages which he has given in his Ecleetic, during the last eighteen years. The first fifty-four volumes-1844 to 1861-may be purchased, with a copious general index.

The striking feature in the London Art Journal during the present year, is its Elustrated Catalogue of the International Exhibition, the twelve-monthly parts of which may finally be separated so as to form a valuable volume. The general attractions of the work continue as usual, consisting of engravings on steel from the best pictures in private galleries in England, (from Turner and Sant, this month,) engravings on wood, and able criticisms upon the Fine Arts throughout the world. It is due to the Art Journal to mention that, since its first number, now a period of twenty-four years, it has always shown a kindly and friendly spirit to American art and artists.

To the Ladies of Philadelphia.

To the Edutor of The Press : SIR: On looking over The Press of to-day (the 28th), I was struck with an article referring to the natriotism of the ladies in one of our sister States exhibited in offering their services as substitutes in the places of the young salesmen and clerks, who wished to enlist in the service of their country, en gaging to remit them half their salary during their absence, and to restore them their situations upon their return. While reading it the thought occurred to me tha we might do more to aid the common cause by exciting our young men's patriotism in something the same manner.

I am certain that there are hundreds of us here who would be willing to contribute everything in our power to aid the cause of "Virtue, Liberty, and Independence," and besides it is our duty. If we do not wish this quiet Quaker City to resound with the shouts of a maddened, victorious enemy; if we do not wish our good old Keystone State handed down to future generations as an illustra-tion of the theory that man is not capable of selfgovernment, we must show our fidelity to the cause by industry and self-sacrifice.

And home is the place where our self-sacrifice may be best exercised. It is true, there is nothing so heart-rending as the severing of those ties which bind fond hearts together; but the time has arrived when it cannot be averted. Then why not; with hearts and minds nerved to the task, give to the couragement of enlistments and the granting of bounties, which was adopted The same committee reported an ordinance to pay in-terest on all outstanding warrants from the date of their presentation until they can be paid. Mr. QUINN opposed the ordinance. He thought it was too dear a way of obtaining the use of money. Money would not now bring five per cent. The cheapest way of meeting the difficulty was the negotiation of a loan. Mr. BAIRD advocated the ordinance, but thought that, perhaps, the best way would be to recommit the matter.

matter. The ordinance was recommitted. The Committee on Highways reported an ordinance for the grading, curbing, and paving of Pennsylvania arenue, between Tweety-ainth and Thirty-second streets, appropriating $4,930 for that purpose, which was passed. A Veto by the Mayor.

THE 95TH PENNSYLVANIA REGIMENT. -We are happy to learn that this regiment, more fa-miliarly known as Gosline's Zouaves, is in an excellent condition, notwithstanding the less of its brave com-mander in the recent battles before Bichmond. Under ions management of Lieptenant Colonel Town. the indic the judicious management of Lientenant Colonel Town, who has the generous support of all the officers and men, its excellent reputation gained by the organization since its formation is fully sustained. The only difficulties in the way of its unintermpted prospective seems to be that, while the men get plenty of everything the Government allows them to est, they have no kettles or other utensils with which to cook their rations properly, and the diarrhice is particularly provalent among them in conseularities is particularly provided theory theor in conse-quence. The position has undoubtedly been fairly won by Col. Town, who proved himself a brave and efficient officer in. the battle of Galces' Hill, where Gosline fell, and left him in full command of the regiment, unsupported by either a field or staff officer—the major being killed, and the ad-jutant and quartermaster incapacitated by sickness for active service. He also commanded the regiment alone in the numerous engagements following that of Gaines' Hill act with a shill and detacting not puncture of the officer.
