[From the London Times, September 9 ] FEDERAL AND CONFEDERATE STRATEGY.

FEDERAL AND CONFEDERATE STRATEGY. It is easy enough to understand the obscurity in which the strategy of the rival commanders in Virginia is now enveloped. Of the Confederate designs nothing is known except by sources, even at Washington; and of the Wederal designs, which are probably determined by the movements of the enemy, no official intelligence is per-mitted to transpire. We are thrown, therefore, for our information on the reports fornished by the New York Duurnals an Interesting assignment of which we vasterday mitted to transpire. We are thrown, therefore, for our information on the reports farnished by the New York journals, an interesting specimen of which we yeakerday published; but, although such accounts are often re-markably circumstantial, and probably not inscourate in details, they present no connected or comprehensive view of the operations of the campaign. In a few words, we may say that the positions of the contoding armies con-tain almost the whole of the evidence by which we can divine the intentions of their generals, and even this evi-dence is by no means complete. It will be possible, how-ever, by a comparison of localities and dates, to arrive at some important conclusions, and to conjecture the objects, if not the results, of the recent movements. Two months ago Genoral Mocliellan, at the head of the main army of the Federal's was encamped at a distance of seventeen miles from Bichmond, on the banks of a river which he held by his gunboats, and which provided him with the means of invested divisions of the Confederate army, so that the investment of his camp wasalmost com-plete, and he still professed to be meditating an ad-vance upon the capital of the "rebels " Around his po-sition. Wree mass et several divisions of the Confederate army, so that the investment of his camp wasalmost com-plete, and he could of recess from that direction; but in those parts also was General "Stonewall" Jackson, a Southern soldier of high remown, and more than a match for Pope. South of these stanles, on the coast of North Carolina, was General Burnside, in command of the Fe-deral troops which had accomplished the Boanoks expe-dition eaving in the spites. All this has now been suddenly and rapidly changed. Micolellan, partly by lend, but mainly by water, has withdrawn his army from its position near Richmond.

McClellan, partly by lend, but mail by water, has withdrawn his army from its position near Biohmond, and is transporting it as fast as possible to the Yirginian bank of the Putomac, behind the Bappahannock river. Date of the Promac, beams the Rappanamous river. To the same position also has Gen Pope retired, and a junction of the two armies has probably, by this time, been effected. It was well understood that McOlellan's position at Harrison's Landing was unlengthe, and that if it were not successfully evacuated the destruction of If it wild has successfully brachess or the sword, would be the ultimate result. There was nothing, therefore, in the retrest itself to provoke much comment, but it was certainly not anticipated that his army would be transferred to the Potomac. Still less was it supposed that he and General Pope, by combining their forces on that and General Pope, by combining their forces on that river, would give overt proof that the expedition against Rich mond had been schnitely abandoned, and that the campaign on the part of the Federals had ceased to be an offensive one. When, however, to these move-ments was added the recall of General Burnside, and the commination at this troops also with those of the other two commanders, it became evident that the Federals, instead of confemplating the capture of the Onefederate capital, were busied in the defance of their own. The result is abart, of the cemplane na to this point har capital, were busied in the defence of their own. The result, in short, of the campaign, up to this point, has been to turn the tables, and to put Washington instead of Bichmoud in peril of attack. We now see that Mc-Clellan had a double motive in retreating. He was glad enough, no doubt, to escape from a daugeroup position, but he was size wanted nearer home for the protection of the seat of Government itself against a victoricus and menacing eneugy. But, though we may draw these conclusions from the movements of the Federals; there is much that remains obscure in the movements of the Confederates. It has been remarked with much uitgraf against defended, though nked with much interest and unmolested, though been remarkee with much duta Arrow the molested, though McOlelian Arhitecture encompassed his position; Southern Datteries commanded parts of the river, and overy cir-cumstance of his situation was known to the Southern commanders. How is this inaction to be explained? Had the Confiderate generals, no longer apprehensive for the seconity of Bichmond, air ady marched northwards with designs upon Washington, and were they content to let their old antager ist withdraw his exhausted troops while they carried the was into the Federal territories? Where was the main body of the Southern forces at the time when the Washington Government took the alarm, and ordered a conventention of every variable dimeted and ordered a concentration of every available division behind the Bappshannock? Above all, where, at this minute, is "Stonew-il" Jackson? It was not he who pursued Pops in his retreat. The report of the New York Tribune distinctly states that the "grand armies" opposed to each other in these four days of skirnish-ing were those of Pope and Lee. Of Jackson we brar that if he should succeed in crossing the . Potomao-higher up and griti-ginto Marpland, the while of that State would probably rise in his favor. But all the de. sume would proved it is in the layor. But all the de-fences of the Rappshannock would then be turned, and McLlellan would be of little more use at Acquia Creek. than he was at Harrison's Landing. It cannot be denied that the pursuit of the Federals by the Confederates from the Rapidan to the Rappshannock has been substantially ineffective. Pore, according to all reports, succeeded in making good his retreat, and he has already been joined by some divisions from the arriag of Rapp de and Ma making good his retreat, and he has already been joined by some divisions from the armies of Burnside and Mc-Clellan. It is a natural inference from this fast that the Confederates are not so strong as they have been thought to be, and that they, too. like the Federals, may fail in Aggreesive operations But, on the other hand, there is apparently a large Nouthern force unaccounted for, and some movement is perhaps in progress which is not yet announced. but which may explain the late pante in official circles at Washington. From these speculations, however, we may turn with far less uncertainty to the broad prospects of the war. To us, and, indeed, to all European observers, it appears a manifest impossibility that the North should succeed in a manifest impossibility that the North should succeed in its purpose of subjugating the South. The case seems to lie in a nutshell. The Federals, after learning the true nature of the work before them by a terricie reverse, commenced the real business of the war with 700,000 men. With ell this enormous force they have, as a matter of fact, failed to produce any material impression en their enemy, or to achieve a single step of importance towards the object of the war On the contrary, their grand army, after an unsuccessful and inglorious expedition against Richmond, has been recalled in haste for the protection of Washington, while the border counties are less safe than they were six months ago. The simple question, then, is, whether the new army now ordered can be ex-pected to accomplish what a more powerful and better ar-my has already faile din achieving, and whether the South, welded into solid strength by a year's successful war, my has already failed in achieving, and whether the South, welded into solid strength by a year's successful war, will prove an caster prey than it was found at first. To these questions we can see but one reply. The Fede-rals may gain—what they have never galled yet—a great battle; and we are told, indeed, for the fittleth time, that an engagement of that declaive kind is now immicent; but we cannot imagine how the result would have any conclusive effect on the war. If Richmond had been captured, even that conquest would not have been equi-valent to the conquest of Virginia, whereas Virginia is but one of a dozen States either inveterately hostile; or so divided in sentiment as to be tonable only by military occupation. The Confederates have succeeded in driving the Federals from Bichmond, and they are now engaged. In Their turn, in threataring Washington. They may pressive the event, as remote a conclusion as before will remain, in either event, as remote a conclusion as before. GARIBALDI'S OWN ACCOUNT OF HIS CAPTURE. The Paris correspondent of the Morning Herald for-wards a remarkable document, which purports to be an account of the battle of Aspromonte written by Garibaldi himself on the let of September, from on board the Duke of Garoa "ON BOARD THE DUCA DI GENOVA, Sept. 1. "They thirsted for blood, and I wished to spare it. Not the poor soldier who obeyed, but the men of the coterie, the poor soldier who obeyed, but the men of the coterie, who cannot pardon the revolution for being revolution (a-thing which diatur has their conservative digestions), and for having contributed to re-constitutegour Italian family. Yes, they thirsted for blood. I perceived this with pain, and L'applied myself in consequence to prevent theirs being sied. I went along the front of our lines, crying out not to fire, and from the contro to the left, when my voice and that ol my aid-de-camp could be heard, not a shot was fired. It was not so on the side of the attacking party. On reaching within two bundred rards they commenced a tremandoms fire, and the party of Barsagileri who were opnosite me. within two bundred rands they commenced a tremandous fire, and the party of Barsagileri who were opposite me, directing their aim at me, hit me with two balls, one in the left thigh, not serious, and the ether in the instep of the right foct, which gave a severe wound. As all this happened at the very outset of the conflict, and as I was carried into the wound was being drensed. I could see nothing more of what took place, as a crowd collected round me while the wound was being drensed. I can, however, state that as far as the end of the line within reach of me and of my aids.de-camp, not a single shot was fired. As no firing took place on our side. It was easy for the troops to approach and mingle with our men, and as I was told that they pretended to disarm us. I replied that they (the regulars) should be themselves dis-armed. Nevertheles, the injections of my companions were so little hostile, that I only succeeded in our having the arms taken from very few of the regulars. Matters went on differently on our right. The picciotit, being the whole line, and, although the bugle gave the signal to coase firing, it lasted for about a quarter of an hour. My wounds were the cause of some little cou-fusion along the whole of one line. Our solities couour. My wounds were the cause of some little con fusion along the whole of our line. Our soldiers, not seeing me, began to retire into the wood, so that by de-grees the orowd arcound me dispersed, and only the most faithful remained. At that moment I heard that my staff and Colonel Pallavicino, who commanded the regular troops, were negotiating on the following coaditions; 1. That 1 was free with my staff to go where I choose, (I replied on board an English vessel); 2 That when once arrived at the sea-side my companions should be set at liberty. Colonel Pallavicino acted as a bold and Intelligent officer in all his military movements; be Intelligent officer in all his military movements; he was not wanting in consideration and courtesy towards me, and towards my men. He manifested his grief at having shed Italian blood, but he had received, peremptory orders, and was compelled to obey them. My arrangements had been parely de-fensive, and I had hoped to be able to avoid a con-flict, from the strong position I occupied, and from the hope that the regular troops had received less sanguinary orders. If I had not received orders; under any circumstances, to avoid any collision with the regular troops, the strangle might have become terrible. Nevertholess, it is better as it is What-ever may be tho result of my wounds, and whatever may or this port. become terrible. Nevertheless, it is better as it is what-ever may be the result of my wounds, and whatever may form the manared for me by the Government, I am con-life is but a trifie if it will fave moss delegancifice of my my fellow citizens. In the bazardous enterprise in which I and my companions embarked, I hoped for nothing and my combanions thuatkes, I hoped for nothing good from the Government of Batszzi; but why ought I not to hope for less rigor on the part of the king, not baving in any way changed the old programme, and de-cided on not changing it at any price? What afflicts me nost is the fatch mistrust which contributes not a little to leave the national unity unfinished. However this may be, I present myself before Italy with my head erect, sure of having done my duty. This time acain my life and both a present in yet in before Italy with my head erect, sure of having done my duty. This time again my life, and that far more precious than mine, of so many gene-rous youths, has been offered as a holocaust to the most sacred of causes, pure from the taint of any vile personal interest. interest. "G. GARIBALDI." A SUBSTITUTE FOR COTTON. [From the London Times, Sept 8] were saved SOn the 28th uit. a remarkable communication was BOn the 28th uit. a remarkable communication was published from the respectable legal firm of Phillips Son of Abchurch iane, stating, on behalf of a client, that a material had been discovered as a substitute for Ameri-can cotton, which possesses not only all the qualities of that staple, but is capable of being produced in any quantity and at small expense. Aithough no doubt could be entertained as 1) the sood faith of Miessra Phillips and their client, it was difficult to believe that these ex-pectations can be realized, or that the "discovery" will not abere the fate of the muli tude of others that in times of emergency are suddenly broached, and which, when they come to an actual working test, are found to break down in some assential noint either of carrier 11 010.

September, 1862. Sin: Since your first letter was to hand I have re-ceived come very advantageous off rs of assistance from various parties, but it has courred to me that a conside-rable period must clapse before the completion of my patent, and, confequently, before I should be able openly to manufacture the raw material; the season would be rapidly passing away; neither should I be able to pro-duce a sufficient quantity for present purposes; nor could the granting of license take affect for some time. All this would be obviated if every manufacturer were able to procure the article-without delay, and, as the pre-sunt is no crdinery emergency and requires no common sacrifice, I beg to state that I am willing to make my in-vention public property upon cartain conditions which are herewith sent. If the conditions are not deemed sa-tisfactory, I am prepared to consider any modification of them. You are at liberty to make this letter public, to-gether with the conditions, if you deem such a course de-sinable. To the Loyal Men of the Seventh Con-gressional District of Pennsylvania. [From the Westchester Republican.]

From the Westonester Republican.] General George A. McCall has permitted himself to be nominated by the Breckinridge party of this district as its candidate for Corgress. As the undersigned participated recently in a public reception given to General McCall, and as their conduct then is construed now, by some, with approbation of his present position as a politician, rather than as an appre-ciation of his services as a soldier, justice to ourselves and to the other loyal men who participated at that re-coption requires that we should define our irue position, We believe that the Breckinridge party in this district.

copion requires that we should define our irue position, We believe that the Breckinridge party in this district, whose standard henrer he has allowed himself to become, is unintuily disloyal. We know that it is opposed to the war, and that its leaders here have, in county meeting, publicly recom-mended their followers to stay at home and vote against loyal men, rather than go to the war and fight against rebries, and that their advice has been by them very ge-nerally adouted.

Long ago, a large majority of the people of this dis-trict discarded the old political isnes, and met in a loyal organization to stand by the constituted authorities of the Government, ready to make the last sacridge for the servation of a Union that has showned worthing a bloss-Fervation of a Jointon that ings into where the ings of the several of the several sev

It is to be hoped, in charity, that a man like General MoCall, who has foughts owell in the struggle for consti-tutional liberty, to which the leaders of the Breckindge party have ever been so bitterly opposed, does not, be-cause o' recent absence, know the character of the men it to whose arms he has thrown himself But, as he has deliberately permitted himself to be made the instrument through whom it is intended that the loy al men of this district shall be prostrated at the feet of the Breckinridge disloyalists, it only remains for
