

THE PRESS

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1862.

We can take no notice of anonymous communications. We do not return rejected communications.

Our weekly paper, THE WAR PRESS, will conclude its first volume with the number of the 15th inst.

Nothing can exceed the abolition of the despotic law that controls matters in the rebel districts of Arkansas and the Indian Territory. Indeed, the governmental management that disposes of all political and even personal concerns in these countries cannot be called law at all; it is simply the arbitrary will of a single man acting at the nod of an oligarchy, as judge, jury, and executioner upon all concerns of life, not only such as are legitimately the subjects of legal enactment.

In addition to these features, THE WAR PRESS will possess many of the traits of our daily paper. The letters of our correspondents, "Occasional," which excite so much attention, from their force and originality, and the great accuracy with which they have anticipated and illustrated military and political events, are all reprinted in its columns, together with articles from the Editor and his assistants, commenting upon the affairs of the day.

It is our ambition to make THE WAR PRESS one of the most beautiful and popular journals in the country. Its style will be lightened and unexceptionable, and, as it is warmly devoted to the cause of the Union, it will support the Administration in this present contest with the rebels.

THE WAR PRESS will contain a full and complete list of the names of the officers and soldiers of the Army of the Potomac, and of the various regiments and battalions of the Army of the Potomac, and of the various regiments and battalions of the Army of the Potomac.

LETTER FROM "OCCASIONAL."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5, 1862. The great shock of the New York battle has passed. We know the worst, and where does it leave the future of our country?

Where does it leave the Administration? Happily, the first is not in the hands of the rebellion, nor the second under the control of the South sympathizing elements of the people. The people in the late elections have declared that the war shall go on till the Union is restored; even those who voted against the Administration took the same ground. There ought, then, to be a unanimous declaration that the position of the Administration be sustained by the men chosen to Congress in the late elections by the so-called Democratic masses. I am not yet willing to assert that there will be a clear working Republican or Union majority in the next House, although I know that we have gained heavily in the Northwestern States owing to the increased number of Representatives elected on account of the increase of the population in those States, most of whom, just chosen, are conscientiously against the rebellion and all who sympathize with it; yet this much I do claim, that the true friends of the Republic in the late elections have voted on a great principle, irrefragable because they are so, and that their adversaries, even if in a majority, will be dismantled, because they do not all believe in the justice of attacking and rebelling the Administration in the midst of this successful war.

It is our ambition to make THE WAR PRESS one of the most beautiful and popular journals in the country. Its style will be lightened and unexceptionable, and, as it is warmly devoted to the cause of the Union, it will support the Administration in this present contest with the rebels.
