RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE. Sermon by the Rev. Daniel March. In view of the threatening aspect of the rebellion in his State, caused by the invasion of Maryland, and the this State, caused of its rebel raid into Fennsylvania, in the early part of September, a sermon appropriate to the hour, was preached in the Ginton-street Presbyterian Church, by the pastor,

At the urget: request of a number of gentlemen who heard the atrmon delivered, it has since been published in pamphlet form, a copy of which we have received and read with interest. It is quite true, as the author remarks in his correspondence concerning the publication, that tarest which it awakened in the minds of the audience at the time, was undoubtedly due, in great part, to the exciting scenes, in the midst of which we had all lived the previous week;" nevertheless, there is much in the discourse of permanent interest, and that can be read with profit, as peculiarly adapted to the great struggle in which we are now engaged for the maintenance of free

EIGHTH ARRIVERSART OF THE YOUNG MEN'S ORRIS-TIAN ASSOCIATION.—The entrance upon its ninth year was intended to be duly celebrated by the Young Men's Obristian Association, at Concert Hell, on Thursday evening of this week, but on account of the weather the proceedings were postponed until Monday evening, th 24th instant. THE APPROACHING THANKSGIVING DAY IN THIS STATE. for the observance of which Governor Curtin has designated Thursday rext, the 27th instant, will be calebrated generally by the churches of this city with appropriate religious exercises. This is the day when even the most rigid disciplinarians among the clergy feel chartered to doff theology in the pulpit for the discussion of affairs of State. Some of them even studiously retain their thoughts and conclusions upon political subjects through-out the year with a view of firing them off at a single broadside in a dcubly-digested form in the Thanksgiving sermen, and the consequence is that this class of discourses, more than any other, has become popular with the public, and is most in demand for publication. THE CATHOLICS IN SWITZERLAND .- According to the census of 1860, Switzerland has 1,483,298 Protestants to 1,040,469 Catholics. But, notwith-tanding this Protestant mejority, it happens, in consequence of the large number cluding the canton of Geneva, the cradle of the Reformed migrants from the adjacent purely Catholic districts of France. THE POPE OF POME -A foreign correspondent of the Boston-Pilot 1893:
On ell sides the revolutionists are raging against Bome, but the Holy Father exhibits a holy caim which reacts on all around him. His Holiness is still at Castel Gandolfo, where he makes daily excursions amongst the cities of the Alban hills. The people of the country literally overwhelm him with demonstrations of their affection and level at y It would be impossible to recount all the ways in which they express their feelings. The other day a poor old woman of eighty approached and offered his Holiners a basket of new-laid eggs, saying: "Santo Padre, it is all I can give you, please accept them, and pray for me." The Pope accepted the eggs, and promised his prayers to the donor.  WNW....NW....WNW NNE.....N A RAINY DAY AT CAMP PHILADEL-PHIA.—Comp Philadelphia, as it appeared yesterday under the influence of a drizzling rain, which had been falling long enough to soak and thoroughly soften the ground, was not as animated a spectacle as during the past fine weather, for beside the very natural inclination duties did not prevent them from obeying the dictates of their own sweet fencies, tending to give it a more lonely aspect. It was almost entirely deserted by the many loungers whom curiosity generally led thither, as well as by those busy traffickers who had not the foresight or means to provide themselves with substantial shanties, c which, by the way, there are numbers in the vicinity of the camp. The air-gun man and his little target were invisible. Neither the strength-tester, with his apparatus, surrounded by sturdy young follows anxious to measure their powers at "only one cent a pull," nor the costumed Scotchman with his droning pipes, were to be seen, and the great array of basks nerchants, with their array of groundnuts, apples, and here who had not good reasons for their presence. The place looked, what it really is a military camp: and everything there from the little storm flag, braving the elements above the quarters of the commanding genecamp-fires, made in oblong holes in the ground, attested the stern reality that these men, with whom the tents were filled, were there for an earnest purpose, and not for show finer day, might suppose: for then one could savily imagine that this vast assemblage was on a fair ground or a "camp meeting." That the spirits of the men, though to an extent depressed by the universal moisture, were not entirey quenched, was attested by the merriment the cry of Bail! Bail!! occasionally raised in different quarters. would excite. It appears that, a few days since, some persons made themselves obnoxious within the limits of the camp by gambling or otherwise trying to swindle the (as they supposed) innocent countrymen. The result was, that they were carried outside the lines on that very uncomfortable conveyance, a carefully-sharpened rail, very much to the delight of their intended victims, and now the affair has become a standing joke, but, like the cry of "Wolf," it has lost its original effect, insomuch that men, instead of running to where they hear or a laugh. The camp is admirably situated for drainage, being distributed in two unequal parts on the tops and slopes of as many gently rolling hills; in the depression between, is a small watercourse in which the men can wash their clothes, &co. This rivulet appears to be principally fid by an unfailing and abundant spring, which apparently is fully equal to its task of supplying these five or six thousands of men with pure fresh water. May one country be as fully equal to the work before it as this

Police Intelligence.—A man named P. McCollum, alias Mr. Miller, was charged before A.d. Beitler, yesterday afternoon, with having procured the same of bank notes of the denomination of twenty five cents, purporting to be the genuine notes authorized by the Commissioners of Lycoming county. Robert Bennett, clerk of the Commissioners, testified that the Board had passed a resolution, directing him to make arrangements to have a quantity of notes engraved to this ef-

Smith, type founder, testified to having sold to the defendant, who gave his name as Miller, an electro-County Commissioners, though, at the time, he did not knew for what purpose they were intended to be used. Subsequently he received a bill, and a request to furnish type for one line, Miller stating that he had been authorized by the Commissioners to procure the necessary ma-terial. Mr. Smith then was forced to believe that the whole scheme was one of counterfeiting. Information to this effect was at once lodged with Chief Franklin, at whose instigation the arrest of McCollum was made. John Thompson testified to having printed four thousand blanks, on the belief that they were for the Commissioners of Lycoming county, as McCollum had stated. Da-Williamsport, and brought him to this city on Thursday night, and that he took possession of the four thousand blanks when they arrived at the express office at Wiliamsport. McCollum was committed in default of $2,500 bail to answer the charge. Delia Dalir, residing in Coomba' alley, was before Ald. Hagar, Jesterday morning, upon the charge of having committed an assault and battery upon a man named Hastings, with an intent to kill. It seems that Hastings was at the house of the Dalleys on Thurslay night, and got into an altercation with an individual there: Delia, it is alleged, throw at Hastings two bricks, one of which struck him on the head inflicting a severe wound. She was held in $1,200 bail to answer.

THE THIRD WARD TRAGEDY-CRIMI-NALITY AND RETRIBUTION .- However pleasant ome varieties of crime may be in their incipient stages they nearly always terminate in misery. A long course of vice is more destitute of true happiness than a life of wirtue can be of true misery. With regard to the recent tragedy in the Third ward, the history of all the parties in relation to the sad event seems to have begun and closed in woe. The peace of a household has been devastated, innocent children have been compelled to commence life with the shame of parents hanging over them, a wife has been deprived forever of her reputation, a murderer of his liberty, and a hueband of his life.

The ir quest being terminated, the two youngest of the unfortunate children of Williamson, the deceased, were most pitiable one, yet they will probably experience at this institution as many comforts and kindnesses as ever they experienced at home. The age of the youngest boy is eight, the little airl is in her thirteenth year. The eldest boy is sixteen, and, working in a mill, is able to maintain himself He need not trust to the charities of the public. These children appear to be intelligent.

The evidence they furnished at the investigation of the Oronorizes not only intelligible, but also intelligently given. They all evinced tender sensibilities in regard to the terrible circumstances in which they found them selves, the girl weeping unrestrainedly and the other The little g'rl, Mary, in particular, is very bright looking, and seems to deserve a better fate than that of being the child of such parents. The house they so lately occupied is now closed, and the avidence of neglect and abandonment is written no less on the outside than on the interior. It consisted merely of three rooms, one over the other. A previous notice: the other rooms are but slight modifications of this one. If we take into account the credulity of certain classes, and the natural leve of the mass for the marvellour, it will not be thought strange that the late residence of the deceased should already be given out to be baunted, and that strange noises, ghostly echoes of sounds heard on Wednesday night, should be said to reverberate throughout the silent court. Bloody stabs will work up into very readable stories With the exception of the Forepaugh case, the present Coroner has never had so many witnesses to examine on any inquest. The evidence altogether was clear and strong. The case itself was shocking in the extreme. The father has been buried at the city's expense, and the whole affair, after justice has been done, should cally be remembered as a been and a warning AN INTERESTING LECTURE.—Last night, Rev. J. H. Aughey delivered a lecture on the recliion and corelative topics, at Commissio Thirteenth and Spring Garden streets. Notwithstanding the limited notice which was circulated of the lecture, the room was units full. The discourse itself was of av ntertaining and bighly spirited character, and elicited close attention. Mr. Anghey related, at considerable ength, his experience in the South, where he has long

At the breaking out of the rebellion he resided in Cantral Mireissippi, and when that State was agitating the question of recession, he boldly avowed his Union senti-ments, and expressed his determination to stand by the National Government. He preached a sermon, in which he urged his people to work against, talk against, and, if needs be, fight against secession.

When the day for voting on the subject came round, he visited the polls and asked for a Union ticket, etc., but was told there was no auch tickets to be had, while an infimation was given him that it would be advisable for bim to vote the Secession ticket. He then took his pencil, wrote one out, and as the result proved, was the only man that voted for the Union in that place. A few days after he was summoned to attend a session of the Vigilance Committee.

By his undaunted determination to remain a Union man he suffered imprisonment. In his prison he found some eighty men, confined solely on account of their Union sentiments. The building was all in one apartment, on the ground floor, and here they were huddled together without chairs, benches, beds, or pallets. The ficor was filthy, and the prisoners were covered with dirt and vermin. The day after his arrival two men were taken out, marched across the railroad to the execution and crawling from under the jail, which was built upon store piles, and open on two or three sides. Mr. Ma-lone, his fellow-prisoner, made good his escape, while Mr. Aughey was recaptured on the second day, while asking for a drink of water at a farmer's house. Mr. Aughey graphically described the tortures of his second imprisonment, and the manner of his second escape. With pathetic spreads in behalf of the Union, and an earnest hope that the war might soon terminate in the further advancement of civilization and liberty, the speaker concluded smid the emphatic approbation of the audience. PROCEEDS OF A FAIR.—The Union streets. eat advance in the price of paper, and in order to reduce the figures as much as possible, there should be some arrangement made by which all the rags from private families and public establishments could be collected together. Bags enter into the manufacture of all hinds of writing, book, and news paper, and no substance has not been discovered that can well take their place. Printing paper of all kinds has risen fifty pe cent, within the past three months, while the tax of paper, ink, advertisements, and everything class con-nected with the business, still further aggravates the difficulty. The rise in paper is, moreover, still going on, and as it is due to the lack of cotton, it is not easy to say where it will stop, under these circumstances. Pubtishers are discussing the policy of raising the price of their papers, or raising their charges for advertising, or both in order to meet this increased cost of production This may be measurably remedied by keeping down the cost of the raw material for paper, by preventing the exhaustion of the supply of rags. The cotton waste, from which, heretofore, the manufacturer obtained a large addition to his stock of rags, domestic and imoried, cannot now be bad.

If the price of paper increases as much during the next three months as it has during the past three, it must have the effect of stopping many papers which are now published by political parties, merely for the sake of having organs. It will all o stop off many other ephemeral publications, such as yellow-covered literature, and even some papers that hold out will so contract their dimensions, by using smaller type, that the supply of paper will be found ample in a very short time. Papers so well established as to fear no reverse will raise the price of subscription, but in the end the smaller and cheeper publications will take their places. Taking three things into consideration, then it becomes neces-sary for everybody to assume the office of a domestic rag. picker. Every one is interested in this; for, although it may not be a very incrative employment, it will cer tainly do much towards keeping the price of paper from

BEMOVAL OF DIRT AND ASHES. -The work of cleansing the streets of the city of Philadelphia, and removing regularly therefrom the ashes, as is now done by the present contractor, is no small task. For this purpose some two hundred and fifty men and about one hundred horses and carts are employed. From the Ist to the 15th of the present month, four thousand loads of ashes have been removed. The ash dumps are located as follows: For the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Fifth, and Sixth wards, west of the Schuylkill river; for the up-town wards, various places north of Norrisstreet and west of Sixteenth street; for the lower wards, various points west of Broad and south of Beed streets. The average distance of the routes is about three miles. During the entire time of the existence of the present contract, over pine hundred dead animals have been re-moved, and nearly one thousand four hundred inlets

The men engaged in cleansing the streets, and remo ving the ashes, are employed both day and night. They are regularly classified, and divided into squads, there being for each a foreman or overseer. These official make their reports daily at the office, and the method for keeping properly the accounts of the parties engaged at the work is exceedingly precise. A book, known as the "complaint book," is kept, in which are noted, from day to day, all complaints of dirt or filth not being promptly removed from any part of the city. These feel themselves aggrieved for want of prompt attention. transmitted to Councils, giving the date of complaint of each care, and the day upon which it was attended to. For some time past great fault has been found with the old ash-carts, which, on account of being uncovered, scatter the ashes along the streets, and blind the eves of pedestrians. In order to obviate this nulsance, the contractor is about bringing out a new cart for transporting ashes, the body of which is designed to be twelve feet long, five feet wide, and three feet deep. It is purposed to carry five or six ordinary ash-cart loads, and is made to fit the city railroad tracks. The box is tight, and covered, preventing the flying of the ashes In loading the cart only one side of the box is opened, and by a simple and nest contrivance the entire load can be at

FOREIGN ABRIVALS .- Notwithstanding the disagreeable weather of vesterday, there was considerable activity along the river front, caused by the recent arrival of several vessels from foreign ports. The ship Frank Boult, from Liverpool, brought a large arsorted cargo, consisting principally of iron, earthen-ware, dry goods, soda ash, and salt. The ship Western Ocean, also from Liverpool, arrived yesterday, bringing a large and valuable cargo of assorted goods. The brig Kodiac arrived from Cienfuegos, with a large cargo of sugar and honey. The brig Scio arrived from Laguayra with a cargo of salt. The ship Westmoreland, from Liare loading at this port for foreign ports. The pirate "Alabama" is, in great measure, the cause of this. ORDERED TO JOIN THEIR REGIMENTS —All the sergeants of the old regiments now on re-cruiting service in this city are ordered to rejoin their egiments at once. They will report themselves at the Baltimore Railroad depot, at Broad and Prime streets, on Tuesday morning next, at 7 o'clock. The commissioned officers, corporals, and privates, will remain in the city to attend to the all important duty of filling up the ranks of their respective commands. Persons wishing to assist can forward these articles, on next Tuesday, to the office of the Ladies' Azsociation, No. 135 South Fifth street, second story; or by writing a few lines of notification to Mrs.

APPOINTMENT .- Dr. Horatio G. Worrail, of Philadelphia, late assistant surgeon of the 107th Regiment P. V., has been appointed and mustered in as surgeon of the 173d Pennsylvania Brigiment. At Centreville, South Mountain, and Antietam, Dr. W. rendered the most important services, as well in contributing to the encouragement of the troops as they entered the care and skill of a most able and successful surgeon. With the experience he has thus already had of camp life and hospital service, Dr. Worrall, we should imagine, would make one of the most successful surgeons in the army. COAL FOR LOCOMOTIVES .- Over three ears have clapsed since the introduction of coal, in the place of wood, in the engines on the Norristown Railroad, and we learn that the expense for fuel has thus seen reduced more than one-half The economy of anbstituting coal for wood is no longer a matter of doubt. That it somewhat increases the expense of repairs to the engines is true; but the increased expense is so small, when compared with the amount gained in the item of fuel, that the advantages of using coal are readily per-

EXPENSES OF PROMOTION. - Many soldiers, while at the various hospitals, are promoted. When they leave to rejoin their regiments, they are often, for sashes necessary in their new position. Some are sent off before the pay arriver, and vexation and disappointment thus result. If a part or the whole of a soldier's pay could be furnished him by the Christian Commission, or some of the Belief Commissee, taking his receipt as a voncher, this would be both a charity and an accommodation.

Coccons.—During the past summer, the trees in our public squares, gardens, and streets, or rather their foliage, became the spoil of myriads of destructive worms, whose depredations might easily have been prevented by a little precaution, which it would be well at this time to note, for the present is the time to remove the nests or cocoons now pendant from the limbs of the trees—and thus our street ornaments and summer shelter preserved in all their beauty, and the footways ercape the vile nuisance inflicted thereon during the last summer. So says a correspondent. ACTION TO ESTABLISH RIGHT OF WAY—HOW

CONCORD STREET WAS FORMED.

William G. Minizer vs. Samuel L. Minizer. This was an action of trespass on the case to recover damages for the interference of the defendant with the plaintiff's use and enjoyment of a twelve feet wide alley, called Baltic place, as a passage way and water course, on the east ide of which he, in common with other tenants and occupiers of houses and lots in the vicinity, had a ways postessed. They articular interference complained of is the defendant's changing it from a footway into a cartway, and its use by him as such for his horses and carriage.

The evidence for the plaintiff showed, that as early as 1817 Baltic place, then called Carpefith's court, was used as a passage-way to a number of tenements that were erected on what before had been the garden of the Bev. Mr. Turner, numbeg northward from Catharine street. That street, at that early period, was a mere roadway, and these houses were bulk some distance back from its line. When the march of improvement reached that portion of the city, and houses commenced springing up, this passage was left undisturbed by builders and still formed an avenus of communication with these hexage, and remained a passage after their removal. Those erections have the city send, houses commenced springing up, this passage was left undisturbed by builders and still formed an avenus of communication with these hexage, and receiled Oarter's alley, which afterwards, on petition of the city-sens, was by ordinance of the district, opened through to Second street, and received its present name of Concord street, Baltic place did not share in this improvement, however, but on the contrary degenerated, and become the receptacle for all the rubble of the neighborhood, especially oyster shells. They were deposited in vast heaps, and gave to the alley an alles which it carries to this day, even now being familiarly known in the district as Oyster-shell alley. It was rever used as a cartway, but always as a footway, and th

THE ARMY CLOTH CASE—VERDICT.

Joseph Dean & Son vs. Robert McKieney. An action to recover damages to the amount of $5,200 for defendant's alleged breach of a contract entered into by him with plaintiffs for the manufactures of light blue army kevseys. This case, during its progress, has occasioned considerable fluttering among manufacturers of army goods who use choldy. Most all who were called to prove that the use of shoddy tended to improve the kerseys either had contracts with the Government, or else had made army kerseys, and were using, or had used, shoddy in the manufacture of the cloth. The verdict that was given yesterday morning is not calculated to increase their comfort to a very considerable extent. After the delivery of the charge of the court on Thursday, the jusy retired, and did not agree until long after midnight. Yesterday morning they rendered their verdict in favor of plaintiff for $250. THE ARMY CLOTH CASE-VERDICT.

District Court-Judge Hare. PRINCIPAL AND AGENT-DEL CREDERE COMMIS-SION.

John Velk, to the use of Abraham Wurmser, vs. Edward Spooner and David C. Spooner, trading as E. & D. C. Spooner This was an action to recover the proceeds of the sale of four bales of India tanged goat skins, amounting to $1.1114, which it is alleged were sold by defendants under a del creders commission, and for which plaintiff or his sasignee has not been paid by the purchaser. The allegation of the plaintiff, who is a mer chant of New York, is, that these skins were consigned by him to the defendants, merchants of this city, in the year 1860, and sold by them to William Amer & Co., unchant of New York, is, that these skins were consigned by him to the defendants, merchants of this city, in the year 1860, and sold by them to William Amer & Oo., under this guarantee or del credere commission, and the proceeds never paid over to plaintiff. The declaration contained two counts on the liability of defendants as such agents, two on the account sales, as an account stated, and account for money had and received. In this connection it may be stated that a del credere commission is where the agent or factor, for an additional premium, when he sells goods on credit, becomes liable to his principal when the purchase money falls due, or, in other words, sells on credit at his own risk. According to the doctrine of some of the cases, he is substituted for the principal may call on him without first looking to the actual vendee.

The defence set up was that the plaintiff was a delate.

but absolutely, and in the first instance. The principal may call on him without first looking to the actual vendee.

The defence set up was, that the plaintiff was a debtor of Amer & Co., the purchasers, they holding his note for $1,000. The goods were sold, on the 13th of September, on a credit of ten days, and on the 20th of the same month this note matured Prior to the purchase, the plaintiff called on Amer & Co with the design of buying more goods, but they refused to sell until his other account was settled. He then stated that he had these skins here, and asked if they could use been. They replied that they could, and would take them on account of the note. He was unable, however, to give their whireabouts, but promised to let them know is a day or two. They heard nothing more from him. Subsequently they called at defendant's, and, ascertaining that the asize were the property of the plaintiff, they purchased them, as before stated. Before this, it appears, however, Valk executed an assignment of his interest in these goods to Wurmser, who, on the 14th, the day after the purchase, notified the Spooners and Amer & Co., of the assignment, and that they were not to pay over the proceeds to any one but himself or duly constituted agent. On the day that the oredit for the greeds expired, Amer & Co. tendered to the defendants, Valk's much, and the balance of the bill in cash, but they refused to accept the pote, saying that they had no authority to receive it. Payment has never since hear yell's note, and the balance of the bill in cash, but they refused to accept the note, saying that they had no authority to receive it. Payment has never since been made, and this suit was instituted to recover from the defendants, it being contended that under the 21 creders commission they were absolutely liable. The defence contended that they were discharged from liability. First, by reason of the plaintiff selling or off-ring the goods to Amer & Co. on account of the note, thus treating them as his own, irrespective of the agency; and secondly, by reason of the assignment before the sale to Wurmser, and his subsequent notice thereof; orbidding them to pay proceeds to any one but himself or agent, which was a revocation of their spency. The court affirmed these points, and plaintiff suffered a non-suit. Serill for plaintiff; Logan for defendant.
