The Adventures of a Gentleman of the Name of Greene. The peace rumor circulated by the statements o one J. Wesley Greene, and the despatches which have perpetuated both the rumor and the statements, have rendered notorious the name of Greene, and awakened speculations in regard to him. A gentleman of equal notoriety flourished some years ago by the name of the Rev. John W. Greene, whose adventures, at least, were equally startling. The Rev. John W. Greene gave himself out as a Methodist preacher, some six or eight years ago, and was as cute in extracting tears from the eyes of audiences as he subsequently proved himself in extracting money from the pockets of street passengers. With him eloquence and swindling led a hand-to-mouth existence, the one being at the end of his tongue and the other at the end of his fingers. At the same time this Methodist parson gave himself out as a Government agent, made a living by getting other people livings, and procured silver for himself by procuring sinecures for them. He was at length arrested on the charge of getting money on false pretences, and, while incarcerated in the Eastern Penitentiary, made himself famous for the manufacture of lamp-shades, wrote a series of articles about his travels all round the world, and laid claim to the name of Hermann Melville, the fascinating romanceist of Omoo and Typee. Upon his release, at the lapse of a year or so, he said that lie applied to a Philadelphia firm for employment in the lamp-shade line, and that, being accepted, at the end of a week he was discharged, upon their discovery of his precedents. Several benevolent individuals, however, taking an almost in voluntary interest in such brilliant powers, united with such strange depravity, concerned themselves in his welfare, and applied to the then editor of one of our city papers. At the office they met the reverend jail-bird himself, and introduced him to the editor. The latter benevolently explained the case to the public. The result of this explanation was that the Rev. John W. Greene collected eighty dollars, with which he repaired to Cincinnati to rejoin his wife. This lady, however, fully informed of his vicious course, refused to renew the connubial compact, and turned her face upon him. The next thing heard of the gentleman was that he was at Sing Sing, probably to fit himself for future usefulness by intimate contact with human vice and misery. Possibly his vice was swindling; at any rate, that was the charge. Since then nothing has been heard of the Rev. John W. Greene. Possibly, detectives with remarkably good memories might indicate his whereabouts. Whether J. Wesley Greene, however, assumes to be identical with the fantastically-imaginative author of Typee we do not know. His statements in regard to peace negotiations would lead us to give him credit for at least a degree of imaginative power. THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA-

ANNUAL ORATION BEFORE THE ALUMNI.-Last evening the Hon. M. Russell Thayer delivered the annual oration before the Alumni of the University of Pennsylvania, at the hall of the institution, in the presence of a select audience of ladies and gentiemen. Charles E. Lex, Esq., introduced the orator, who was received with much applause. Mr. Thayer commenced his oration by a short sketch of the life of the ancient Virginius, whose deeds of valor and glory were the pride of ancient Rome. His special object in making allusion to the career of this distinguished man was to show how great, in the life of a single man. are the fluctuations of empire, the changes of opinion, and vicissitudes of fortune. The speaker's mind had been led into a dissertation of this kind by observing with what rapidity the events in our own history follow one another. There are men living to-day who remember the French revolution of 1789, who recall the rise of Bonaparte, and his dazzling career of victory and success. There are those still alive who beheld his sudden overthrow; the 'second revolution, and the later struggle between republican opinions and the principles of monarchy which shook the thrones of Europe. There are those moving among us who were witnesses of the recognition of American Independence, the league of confederation, the adoption of the Constitution, the termination of three national wars, and alas! that he was and national life which now devastates the l proceeded to the discussion of his theme-"The Reation and Duties of Citizenship." The family relation, he said, is the foundation of Government. If the relation of the citizen to the State is considered as resembling that between a member of a family and the head of the family, then will the State prosper.

It is the habit of men to forget the principle upon which Governments are founded. Many mingle in public affairs not from pure motives of patriotism. and thus the public vitals become corrupted. Indifference to public affairs will cause the ruin of any nation. When the governed and the governor have distinct motives of action-when the true relations of the citizen to the State are neglected-dissolution may soon be expected. It has state should be con ceived by every Government desirous of promoting the welfare of the people. are governed. It would be wall, then, for them to respect their constituents, and that general opinion should always be treated with deference. Those who abuse political power have justly merited the condemnation of good men in all periods of the

The duties of the members of the same Common wealth are like the duties of the members of the same family. Were this remembered, how much unity would be where there is now so much disunion and distraction! The effects of party on the administration of Government were touched upon at length by the lecturer. He quoted from Washington, setting forth the evils of an excessive party zeal. The first duty a citizen owes a Government is obedience to the law. He who would resist the law has advanced but a step further than he who brings into contempt the administration of public affairs. [Ap Respect for the constituted authorities is a duty which every citizen owes to his Government. In our country the habit of attacking those in power is sufficiently great to cause alarm. The Roman Senators always commanded respect wherever they went, and the dignity of their station was never attacked by the citizens of the State. It is the duty of the good citizen to discountenance this spirit wherever it shows itself. An honest criticism of public men and measures is one thing, and a confirmed habit of detraction is another. The one is right and fair; the other an evil much to be la-It is the duty of the citizen to support the Government in its efforts to carry out public measures. That would be a queer Government where the principle was recognized that the citizens were not expected to give support to such laws as may not suit themselves. Mr. Thayer at further length spoke of the influences of education on popular government, and paid a glowing eulogy on the University of Pennsylvania. His remarks elicited throughout the

ELIHU BURRITT'S LECTURE AT BRYANT. STRATTON, & Co.'s COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.-The lecture of Elihu Burritt, the Learned Blacksmith and Self-taught Philologist, at Bryant, Stratton, & Co.'s Commercial College, last evening, was a repetition of that delivered about four years ago at the inauguration of that institution. The lecture last evening was extremely well attended, standing room being scarcely obtainable.

Mr. Stratton introduced the lecturer, prefacing the introduction with appropriate and forcible remarks relative to the design and tendency of the system pursued at the commercial establishment. pursued at the commercial establishment.

The lecturer then arose, and commenced his lecture by remarking that the earth being made first, it was made expressly for man. Everything grateful to the senses of the body, and those far sweeter senses of the soul, was made for man. The very bees sipping the dews from the first flowers of Paradise, were born to be of utility to him. Landscapes, cloud-scapes, and water-scapes, flooded Adam's soul with the joy of his terrestrial existence. It was not Nature that dipped her pencil in the rainbow; it was not Nature's hand that formed the eye of man, and placed behind it the delicate machinery of color and placed behind it the delicate machinery of color and comparison, which transformed the white surface of the flower into a miracle of beauty.

Humanly speaking, the human forces which influenced Cain and Abel so differently arose from the different formation of the organs of the brain. fluenced Cain and Abel so differently arose from the different formation of the organs of the brain. When Adam first opened his eyes, he was surrounded by objects which appealed to every faculty of his mind, and awakened them into activity. The thousand marvels of instruction which Nature furnished gave him a million intimations of the will of God. The placid rivers which threw their silver arms around his sylvan home filled and thrilled his soul with the poetic breathings of poetic Paradise.

The lightning which clove the mountain's summit, but to Adam an awful phenomenon, and for centuries afterwards, was but the red flash of the sword of God. The true avolication of its terror-striking qualiries afterwards, was but the red flash of the sword of God. The true application of its terror-striking qualities has been the discovery of later years. On several occasions it has pleased the Divine mind to help the human. As the real state of their personal wretchedness came home to the hearts of our first parents, the leaves of the fig-tree presented themselves to their eyes, and a sudden and dire necessity was the mother of their invention. A direct interposition of Providence here came to their relief. God made both unto Adam and Eve coats of leaves. The rude bludgeon of Cain afterwards blossomed and brought forth war-elubs. It is doubtful whether iron, was ever applied to common uses before the and brought forth war-elubs. It is doubtful whether iron was ever applied to common uses before the Deluge. Up to that era the art of ship building was entirely unknown. Considering the utter demoralization of that period, the population could not have exceeded the population of Great Britain about the year 1700. God gave to Noah specific directions for building the ark, indicating the very timber, and the means of rendering it by the use of pitch impervious to water. When the wild animals he had preserved from the old deluged world had propagated themselves throughout the new, one of his sons became a hunter. Westward ho! became the pr? yerb, and his descendants at length advanced. came a hunter. Westward ho! became the pr? verb, and his descendants at length advanced.

Every step of progress then rapidly led to another. Articles of necessity, such as food, drink, raiment, and shelter, led to the constant manufacture of articles of convenience, such as beds, chairs, couches, &c. All these may be produced at home, without an lota of commerce, with no intercourse with other nations, near or distant. Trade is thus two thousand years older than commerce, which, in a certain sense, has nothing to do with man's aboriginal wants, but with his acquired tastes, and with the invented necessities of refined existence. With the confusion of tongues, and the dispersion of the human race, commenced the laws and extension of commerce.

The Syrian shore was settled by the Phonicians, and the first craft of commerce launched upon that sea. Every vessel-load of articles made the seaport to which they were brought the centre of attraction. to which they were brought the centre of attraction. Thus men were congregated, tastes became more varied and refined, comforts became necessities, and luxuries comforts. Temples and porticoes were erected for purposes of religion or of pleasure, and men, generally, entered by degrees into that nobler sphere of the senses by which nations are bound together, and opposite sides of the globe rendered escential to each other. This is what is provided for in the very anatomy of the globe. The distribution of harbors, the rise and fall of rivers, and the different construction of various soils, were all provided of harbors, the rise and fall of rivers, and the different construction of various solls, were all provided for long ere the first man opened his eyes. God first divided and dispersed nations that they might be perfectly united, and the blessings of such unity perpetuated forever.

The changes and the designs alluded to constitute the very backbone of commerce. It is a truth a grand truth, that God has made of one blood all nations of men, and this is what every merchant and every merchant's clerk should take a glowing pride in, and thank God for. The earth has its spinal column and its osteology as well as the human frame, and every profession, as much as the physiclogy of the diagnosis of the earth on the one hand, and Paul's sermon on Mar's Hill on the other, the conscientious student will ultimately perceive that free trade is the only kind provided for by the ordaining wisdom of Providence.

Every vessel that spreads its sail for another land spins another thread amidst the golden web of commerce. Commerce spurns blockades, claims the highway as its own domain, and this country of Providence was the first to recognize that claim and press this ecognition upon other nations.

The lecturer traced at length the rise and exten attention. Though somewhat deficient and extension of commerce, and was listened to with profound attention. Though somewhat deficient and constrained in gesture, his carnestness of speech atoned for this. "The Higher Law and Mission of Commerce" could not well have been clucidated more forcibly, and the fixed and intelligent countenances of his audience fully testified to their approbation.

GALA NIGHT AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC. -The town is agog at the announcement of the appearance of Miss Western and Grover's New York and Washington combination, at our most fashionable resort, this evening. The principal artiste of the company, Miss Western, is young and versatile, the handsomest female on the stage of this country at present, and second to none in ability. A few years since she was scarcely known, but, like a meteor, she has arisen from the horizon and leaped to the zenith of histrionic fame. The play, "East Lynne," is entirely new to this city, but has been praised in the warmest manner by our cotemporaries of Boston, Baltimore, and Washington, the only cities where it has been produced. The entire company, to be engaged in the representation of "East Lynne, or The Elopement," tonight, is certainly a very efficient one, if we may udge from the names of some few who are universally eminent and particularly popular in this city, Misses Kate Denin, Viola Crocker, Mrs. Germon, and Messrs. Barron, Davenport, Barrett, &c. The advertisement, in another column, is worthy the attention of the amusement-seekers this evening. Let the young debutante have a crowded house to-night. THE JUNCTION RAILROAD, -One of the main reasons for the construction of the junction railroad on the west bank of the river Schuylkills from Gray's Ferry to the Columbia bridge, is in or. der to form a connection between the Reading Railroad, Pennsylvania Railroad, and Wilmington Railroad, so as to transport over the last named line the anthracite coal from the Schuylkill mines, and the bituminous coal from the Westmoreland, Broad Top, and other Western pits, to New Castle, Del., where a great coal-shipping port is to be established. The road is a descending grade the whole distance, and the transportation of coal will be cheap and easy. At New Castle the shipment of coal would be less interfered with by ice than at Port Richmond, which, in winter, would be a great advantage. It would not interfere with the shipping business here in spring, summer, or autumn, as the saving of railway freight by shipment here would be an important item to all coasters seeking a coal freight. But in winter or in foul weather they could stop at New Castle and avoid trouble. At present, the great coal resources of the Pennsylvania Railroad are lying dormant, Pecause the company has no facilities at tidewater for shipment : but once let the connection be made with the Wilmington line, by this junction road, and a great impetus will be given to the bituminous coal trade of Western Pennsylvania. With the capital and power of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, New Castle may easily be made as great a coal port as Richmond. This has not hitherto been so necessary as it will become immediately upon the completion of the Philadelphia and Eric road, which will bring hithe the coal-from many a new mine, and constitute a base of business for that work. Before the lapse of another year we shall see a degree of life and activity infused into the old town of New Castle that will fairly equal that of its English rival upon Tyne. BURNING OF A COAL-OIL FACTORY. Shortly after four o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the coal-oil establishment of Benjamin J. Crew, located at the southwest corner of Twentythird and Arch streets. The combustible nature of the contents of the place caused the flames to spread with great rapidity, and but a few minutes elapsed before the whole concern was completely enveloped. The establishment was quite extensive, and consisted of one-story frame sheds. The firemen were soon upon the ground, and several steam engines took a position upon the wharf, immediately in the rear of the burning buildings, and drew water from the Schuylkill. The oil, however, floated on top of the water, and continued to burn fearfully. The operations of the firemen drove the flames towards obliged to add, that great insurrection against order | Twenty-third street, on the opposite side of which a lumber yard is situated. Here there was great men had to change position. Several companies got to work in front, and forced the flames in an opposite direction. After several hours' labor the fire was extinguished, but not till the whole establishment, with the exception of the office and countinghouse, had been destroyed. Between two and three undred barrels of oil were consumed. While the fire was at its height, one of the stills exploded, making a loud report, and shaking the houses for several squares around the scene of the conflagration. Although there were numerous people in close

A new coat of plaster has been placed on the outside, which adds much to the beauty of the structure. The walls and celling of the interior have been scraped and newly painted, while the pews have also received attention from the painter. The sanctuary of the church has remained with very little change since it was painted and frescoed by the late Signor Monachesi. The beautiful fresco of the "Opening of the Seals," and that of Moses and of Christ, on each side of the altar, had begun to show changes from the effect of the weather working through the thin brick wall in the rear of the sanctuary. An artist has retouched all these, leaving the form, features, and appearance of the angels and cherubim in the centre piece without change, The effect of the newly-applied brush, however, is visible in the figures of Christ and of Moses. The latter seems to have more of the Pan-like look which is usually discoverable in the figures of the Jewish leader and lawgiver; while the countenance

Some additional improvements are yet to be made in the sanctuary, and on the windows of the church. These accomplished, and St. John's, under the Rev. Mr. Dunn, will be as fresh as it was thirty years ago, and worthy the Cathedra which yet occupies a place

WOODS AND WATERS.—A trip out of town, a run into the country, smacks of sweet in every season, but is delicately racy now. Autumn has encircled us with scenes of sombre glory, and the leafless woods of winter kiss the sun with lips, of snow. Along the plank roads the snow-bed, crisp and frail, scintillates and glitters under your munching, crunching footsteps; an attenuated veil of silver mist floats lazily up from the steaming plain of ice; the golden sun-spangles sow themselves in air and earth, and sprout up gloriously a million fold, and each sense becomes dazzled and bewildered in the blinding beauty of the scene, so fair and rare. But when evening comes-when the dusk and darkling woods grow darker and more dusky still, and the vast twilight shadow cloaks both wood and water, the pleasure-seeker walks per force in meditation homeward, contrasting the reso nance and redolence of morning with the beautiful but death-like hues of night.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES IN THE FIELD. -William H. Lambert, of this city, who enlisted in the ranks of the Anderson Cavalry, after reaching Louisville, Kentucky, where that regiment now is, received a discharge, by order of Major General Halleck, to enable him to accept a commission from Governor Olden, of New Jersey, as first lieutenant and adjutant of the 27th New Jersey Volunteers Both the colonel of this regiment (Geo. W. Mindil and Lieut. Lambert are graduates of the Philadelphia High School. The colonel has served with marked ability upon the staff of the late and lamented Kearney. We doubt if a single regiment has left this city without a representative from our honored institution of learning.

THE POLICE. [Before Mr. Recorder Encu.] The Case of Dr. J. E. Newton-The Doings of a Medical Charlatan.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. J. E. Newton had a final hearing before Recorder Eneu, on the charge of committing an assault and battery on a little girl named Eliza Jane Berger, the particulars of which were published in The Press on Monday last.

Lewis C. Cassidy, Esq., appeared for the prosecution; George H. Earle, Esq., for the defence. The room was pretty well filled with intelligent gentlemen, who seemed to evince a deep interest in the progress of the case. The suit is instituted under an act of Assembly for the suppression of fortune-telling. The charge of fortune-telling has not been preferred against the defendant. Some of the newspapers were in error on this point. pers were in error on this point.

There was only a single witness examined. This was Joseph Somers, of the Detective Police force. He had been subponned to attend, but did not know for what purpose until he entered the Recorder's office. Mr. Somers has been rather unwell for sevential the transfer performed by office. Mr. Somers has been rather unwell for several weeks. Hearing of the miracles performed by Dr. Newton—how he made the lame to walk, the blind to see, and the deaf to hear, and all done in an instantaneous manner—he determined to try five dollars' worth, this being the entering fee. The following evidence of Mr. Somers will be read with more than usual interest:

Joseph Somers sworn.—I am one of the detective police of Philadelphia; I went to Dr. Newton's house three weeks since; I had some ailment, I knew not what; something the matter with my kidneys, I supposed; pain in my back and bones; had an interview with Dr. Newton; having been conducted to his presence, waited until my turn came;

an interview with Dr. Newton; having been conducted to his presence, waited until my turn came; after explaining my condition to him, he told me to lay myself upon a lounge with my face downward; he commenced feeling my spine, running his hands up and down; presently he got on with his knees and used great force, pressing me down and giving me great pain; after this operation was over he said that I would find relief; he told me to put a brick at the bottom of my spine and I would find more relief. Question by Mr. Cassidy. Well, sir, did you find clief? Question by hir. Cassidy, Well, sir, the you muturelief?

Answer. The only relief I found was the Doctor relieving me of five dollars. [Buzz of laughter.]

Q. Were there others there who were operated upon—if so, how many? Describe the operation.

Answer. There were about twenty persons there; he had attended to ten or twelve before he came to me; he operated upon two persons, of which I took, more than ordinary notice. One of these was an old gentleman from Chester county, who was hard of hearing; he had come to be cured of deafness. The Doctor pulled his ear up and down, this way; [here witness gave a practical illustration on his own, by suiting the action to the word]; then the Doctor rubbed under the old gentleman's ear; then he got a rubbed under the old gentleman's ear; then he got a probe and inserted it in his ear; then told him to blow his nose hard. While the old gentleman was doing this, the Doctor blew as hard as he could into his ear. This being over, the Doctor said to him that he was cured—yes, he was cured. I believe that the old gentlemandid go away under the impression that could hear better. Q. Will you detail the operation in the other case Q. Will you dotail the operation in the other case that fell under your observation?

A. This was the case of a little child apparently eight or nine years old; the lady who had it said the child had not walked since it was eighteen months old without somebody having hold of it by the hand; the Doctor then commenced—he shut his eyes and ran his hands up and down the child, particularly on the back, which he smoothed; then ran his hands up and down its limbs; then the Doctor opened his eyes and said, "this child has worms—a great quantity of worms—a bunch of them as big as that," (pointing to a large-sized paper weight); he took the tity of worms—a bunch of them as big as that,? (pointing to a large-sized paper weight); he took the child by the hand and walked with it round a table, then let go his hold and said: "Child, walk;" "child, walk;" "mother, let go child's hand;" "child, walk." The child seemed to be in pain; it cried; the Doctor said it would soon be pacified; told the mother not to be alarmed, that the child was only surprised at the change. A lady now had an interview with the Doctor and said she had something the matter with one of her lower limbs. She and another lady went into an adjoining room; whether she was cured went into an adjoining room; whether she was cured or not I do not know.

Q. What else did you see about the room?

Q. What else did you see about the room?

A. There were plenty of crutches; speaking trumpets left behind by parties who had been cured of deafness; handages laying round loose or hanging on the walls; I don't know whether any of the trumpets ever belonged to any body.

The witness was cross-examined by Mr. Earle, defendant's counsel, but no new or material points were elicited, except perhaps the following: I am now under the treatment of Dr. Spencer; he says my disease has originated from dyspepsia; I never visited Dr. Newton but once; I certainly felt no beneficial effect from his treatment; I understood that his cures were instantantaneous—that is the that his cures were instantantaneous—that is the reason I went to him; not being cured, I did not think it necessary to go again; I was aware that five dollars was the entering fee, and two dollars per visit afterwards.

Mr. Cassidy said that he could have had a large number of witnesses present, but he did not think it at all necessary, as probable cause had been fully shown. He, therefore, asked that the defendant be bound over to appear at court.

Mr. Earle desired to make a few remarks, and he gave a half an hour's dissertation on medical science, showing the additions that have been made to it, such as the galvanism, &c., &c., that once was laughed at. This branch of the science, as practised by his client, is not a new thing to intelligent visit afterwards.

tised by his client, is not a new thing to intelligent medical men—it is the "motive-power" treatment and most wonderful in its effects. His client had effected some most wonderful cures, which he would ove if the case should ever co Mr. Cassidy replied briefly, and the Recorder decided to hold the Doctor to bail, to take his trial. cided to hold the Doctor to bail, to take his trial.

Perjury.

Isaac G. Goines, a colored man, an herb doctor by profession, was arraigned before Recorder Enue yesterday, on the charge of perjury, for which alleged offence he was ordered to enter bail in the sum of $1,000 to answer.

It seems that on the 23d of last June he entered bail for the appearance at court of Daniel Forty, who was charged with purloining the sum of $65. Good freehold security was required. Goines, in offering himself, swore that he owned the house he lived in at that time, at 1715 Palmer street; that the property was clear of all incumbrance. Daniel did not appear on the day of trial, nor has he since been found. It is said that he fled the city. In sueing out the bail it was ascertained, for the first time, that Goines did not, nor did he ever, own the house. Hence his arrest. The owner of the property testified at the hearing yesterday.

The jealousy Case—The Cause Dismissed.

The jealousy case, reported yesterday, came up last evening, before Alderman Beitler, for a final hearing. A single witness, Mrs. Elizabeth Andred, testified as to the finding of a written note, inviting somebody to visit Ford's saloon. These being no evidence as to infidelity on the part of the wife, the case was dismissed. The Alderman, however, in pronouncing this decision, remarked in a pleasant style, that he thought she had acted rather improperly, though there was no positive evidence of any

Under the superintendence of Detectives Carlin and Henderson, the sink on the premises recently occupied by Doctress Teresa Rossner, No. 147 Green street, has been cleaned. We learn there are bushels of evidence of the unnatural crime, to answer which the Doctress is now in prison, awaiting her trial. Such affairs are positively shocking to all moral feelings: they are revolting in the to all moral feelings; they are revolting in the

[Before Mr. Alderman White.] A Soldier Gets Robbed of $20. Catharine Clark was arraigned before Alderman White yesterday morning on the charge of robbing a soldier of the sum of $20 at or near a tavern on Water street, below Walnut, on the previous evening. [Before Mr. Alderman Welding.] The Continental Theatre—The Common-wealth vs. Wm. Wolf. wealth vs. Wm. Wolf.

This case was heard yesterday afternoon, before Mr. Alderman Welding. The first witness examined was Robert Fox, the prosecutor, who stated that Wolf agreed to sell the premises for $500, when possession was gieen him, for which $250 was paid cash, and a note for the balance was given for thirty days. Mr. Fox gave an exhibition in the establishment on the night of the 9th inst. The next day when the place was onened a party came in and took posses. the night of the 9th inst. The next day when the place was opened a party came in and took possession, telling Ms. Fox's employees to leave the premises. that Mr. Wolf had had no property in the place, and had no right to sell anything.

John C. Curran was then sworn, and testified that he went to the Continental Theatre on the morning of the 10th inst; a party came in and demanded money from him, and stating that if the demand was not complied with by a certain hour, they would take possession of the place; that Wolf had no property in the place to dispose of; a crowd was coming in at the time, and he (Curran) left the premises in bodily fear.

The case was then continued, and Wolf was held in $1,000 for a further hearing to-day. Mr. Bull

THE DOUGLASS-MITCHELL CASE—CONCLUSION OF THE DEFENCE-OPENING OF PLAINTIFF IN RE-Douglass vs. Mitchell. The case of the defence

BUTTAL.

Douglass vs. Mitchell. The case of the defence was resumed yesterday morning, and before the hour of adjournment had arrived, was concluded. Additional witnesses were produced to testify as to the extreme neatness and particularity of Mr. Mitchell in all his business transactions. Among these was Judge Sharswood, with whom Mr. Mitchell studied law, and he termed his neatness as finical. Others followed to the same effect, but their testimony developed no new fact.

The feature of the day's testimony, however, was that of Wilkinson Jones, a colored man, with whom Mr. Douglass resided for two years. He detailed a conversation which he alleges that he heard one night when Mr. Douglass had been out rather late and the witness had retired. When he heard his knock at the door he pushed the key out to Mr. Douglass' wife, and she let her husband in. As they came up stairs Jones stood at his room door, and heard, as they passed along, Douglass say to her that he had good news to tell her. This attracted his attention and excited his curiosity, and he listened intently for what followed. To use the witness own words: I didn't know what news it was, and I stood at my door to catch what I could. I heard him distinctly say to her that the man he held two notes against was dead; that caused me to listen more. His wife said: "Doug, you will get yourself in trouble." He said: "Doug, you will get yourself in trouble." He said: "Doug, you will get yourself in trouble." He said: "Doug who wer, showed that he was on bad terms with Douglass, that he had had numerous law-suits with him, and that he was no friend of his. This was all admitted, and stated very frankly. The balance of his testimony was not so ingenuous, however. In answer thankfully received and meet with prompt attention.

PROTRACTED MEETING.—At the Broadstreet M. E. church a series of interesting meetings have been commenced. Preaching takes place every evening at half past seven o'clock, and all friends of the objects of these meetings are heartily invited to attend and participate. Profracted meetings have ever been the occasions where the deepest and most sacred interest has been evinced, and the attendance prevalent in the present occasion is sufficient evidence that religious influence is wide-spread throughout all classes of the community.

An Interesting Exhibition.—The cadets of the Pennsylvania Military Academy, located at Chester, will be reviewed this evening at Musifence closed.

Mr. Rawle then opened for the plaintiff in rebuttal. He said they would meet the theories of the defence with stern, incontrovertible facts. They would prove that the plaintiff was a free negro, born in South Carolina, where he lived and carried on a suc-South Carolina, where he lived and carried on a successful and prosperous business until January, 1848, when he came to Philadelphia with his wife and family, bringing with him several thousand dollars. His possession of this money would be proved by parties who saw him have it, and by a broker to whom he took it to be exchanged. In that year he bought a house in Ronaldson street. During the years 1848, '49, and '50, he worked as a journeyman barber, and, while thus employed, became acquainted with Mr. Mitchell, whom he frequently shaved.

In 1849 he went to New Orleans, from whence he sent money to his wife; and in May, of 1850, he went to California, and, soon after his arrival there, commenced remitting money to his wife, which, in the course of ten months, amounted to the sum of $3.329.03. The drafts came by Adams' Express, and are lost in the missing tin box. His wife deposited this money in the Western Savings Fund. He returned home in 1851, bringing with him $2,500 in gold.

turned home in 1801, bringing with him $2,500 in gold.

During his absence his business affairs were managed by John C. Mitchell, Eaq., who was a cousin of Thomas S. Mitchell, and soon after his return he invested, through Mr. John C. Mitchell, hearly $2,000 (drawn out of the saving fund) in the purchase of two ground rents. Being about to return to California for a short time, he left behind him a power of attorney, drawn and witnessed by John C. Mitchell, in favor of his wife, and in December, 1851, again sailed for California. Soon afterwards Mrs. Douglass invested $1,600 in John C.

Mitchell's mortgage to a third person, which was assigned to the plaintiff. In March, 1862, he returned, and Mr. Mitchell, seeing that he was dissurtisfied with his mortgage, immediately paid it off. On the 1st of December, the loan of $3,000 to Thos. S. Mitchell, it is alleged, was made. A few days afterwards he sold, to Mrs. McCants, the house in Ronaldson street, a small property in New Jersey, and the two ground rents, for about $4,500, and on the 4th of January, 1863, loaned Mitchell the further sum of $2,500, for which the promissory note was given. given.
Mr. Rawle said that they would show that these notes were not written on Mr. Mitchell's paper at all, but on paper belonging to Mr. Douglass, and, therefore, the theory of the defence, that Douglass, and obtained seems of paper with Mr. The content of the defence at all, but on paper belonging to Mr. Douglass, and, therefore, the theory of the defence, that Douglass, and, therefore, the fleory of the defence, that Douglass had obtained seraps of paper with Mr. Mitchell's name scribbled on, and fraudulently inserted over them obligations, would be scattered to the winds. They would prove this by producing the manufacturer of the paper, who saw the notes at the former trial, and who also saw some paper drawings of a new invention of Douglass' in cutting, (Douglass had been a tailor,) and the paper of both were alike. The missing bond had on his, (the manufacturer's) paper mark, and he identified it by that, as being the same mark that was in the paper drawings. They would also show by a certain book of forms (Dunlap's), belonging to Mr. Mitchell, and in the possession of the defence, that the $2,500 note had once been penned on the fly-leaf of that book.

They would also prove admissions by Mr. Mitchell to persons of eminence and respectability in this city that he had a large amount of money of Douglass', several thousand dollars, in his hands. One gentleman was present in Mr. Mitchell's office on one occasion, when Douglass and his friend Depue were there, and his attention being attracted by Mr. Mitchell on the debt, he asked, after they left the office, who this Mr. Douglass was, when Mr. Mitchell replied that he was a singular man, had been in California, and by his thrift had accumulated a large sum of money, which he (Mr. Mitchell) had in his possession. Other points were dwelt upon in the claborate opening of Mr. Rawle, but the above will give the reader a fair idea of the nature of the rebutting testimony of the plaintiff. As that will be give the reader a fair idea of the nature of the re-butting testimony of the plaintiff. As that will be fully reported in our columns we do not deem it ne-cessary to burden our report of to-day any further. When he had concluded it was so near the hour of Quarter Sessions. The Court of Quarter Sessions was engaged yesterday with the trial of Hannah Mitchell, charged with the larceny of $80 in United States Treasury. notes, and a silver watch worth $25, the property of Samuel Mott. Hannah was tried a few days ago on this charge, but the jury was unable to agree.

The allegation of the defendant is that she and the prosecutor, Mott, had arranged to go to housekeeping together, and he gave her the money to purchase he necessary articles of household-furniture. The ase was not concluded yesterday. Supreme Court of the United States, Wash-ington, D. C.

FARMS FOR SALE. During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Satsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it. READ THE FOLLOWING CAREFULLY.

About twelve months ago I had a severe attack of Diabetes, attended with other difficulties too numerous to mention. My desire for drink was constant, and although I drank gallons per day, my thirst was never allayed; I was only able to sleep at short intervals, which seemed like a trance. The mucous surface of my mouth and throat had become so parched and feverish, that I was in constant misery. I was also suffering from all the horrors of Dyspepsia, loss of appetite, Nausea, and frequent and severe attacks of vomiting; and so prostrated was my general system, that I was scarcely able to move about. I had availed myself of the science and skill of distinguished medical men, both of the Allopathic and Homeopathic school, and exhausted their catalogue of remedies, but found only temporary relief. In this condition, when every ray of hope seemed parallyzed, I heard of the discovery of Professor Bolles in the use of Electricity, and the wonders he was performing in curing disease, and placed myself under his treatment; and, to the astonishment of myself and friends, in two operations my Diabetes was controlled, and other difficulties soon disappeared; my appetite has returned, sleep undisturbed, and, in fact, I feel like one made anew.

I would further state that I have seen other remarkable cures performed by Prof. Bolles, and would advise the diseased to call at 1220 Walnut street, and be restored to health. I shall be glad to give any one information calling on me.

In attempting a definition of my disease, I can only give some of the many symptoms which, taken altogether, were the most horrid; and even medical men did not know my disease from pathological symptoms. How ever, Professor C. H. Bolles, by whom I was cured, located my disease in the pelvic viscera, in five minutes after I entered his office, and offered to warrant a perfect cure in eight applications. And I frankly admit that in eight applications of Electricity, administered by Professor Bolles, 1220 Walnut street, Philadelphia, I am perfectly cured; and to me this is most astonishing, for I had exhausted the catalogue of old-school remedies, and grew worse all the time.

I had long believed that in Electricity resided a potent agent for the cure of disease, if a right application could be made; and now I can comprehend, from its powerful effects on me, for a speedy cure, although no shocks were given. All was pleasant, and accomplished as if by magic.

I will give most of my symptoms, for the benefit of suffering humanity. I had dyspepsia, bad marasmus, or wasting of the tissues of the whole body; at times a difficulty of breathing, some palpitation of the heart, much bronchitis, trembling of the limbs after exercise, aversion to business and company; at times gloomy, inability to collect my thoughts vigorously on any subject, a loss of memory, pain in various parts of the body; suffered much from lumbago, deranged secretions of the kidneys and other glands of the system, constant dragging pains in the lumbar region, and severe nervous dizziness.

ANOTHER CURE OF PARALYSIS OF THE LOWER
LIMBS (Paraplegia) AND APOPLEXY COMBINED.

Read the following:
PRILADELPHIA, March 31, 1982.
PROFESSOR BOLLES, 1220 Walnut street: The remarkable cure which I have derived from your method of applying Electricity compels me to thus acknowledge the great obligations I am under to you for snatching me, as it were, from immediate death. About two years ago, while a resident of Cincinnait, Ohio, I was visited with an attack of paralysis of the lower extremities, which rendered me almost entirely unable to stand upon my limbs. I employed some of the most celebrated physicians to be found in that section, but received no apparent benefit, and after a lapse of about eighteen months was taken with a spasm, which one of my physicians pronounced a fit of apoplexy. Two weeks clapsed from that time before I besame the least conscious of anything that had transpired, nor could I concentrate my mind or converse upon any subject without becoming very visionary and excited, until I placed myself under your valuable treatment. After my arrival in Philadelphia my attention was called to your treatment by a pamphlet handed me by my father, which contained the names of some gentlemen whom I had been formerly acquainted with, and whose statements I could rely upon. I immediately made up my mind to place myself under your treatment. I have now been the recipient of four treatments, and I now feel perfectly satisfied that I am restored to a sound condition, and thefore feel it my duty to gratefully acknowledge the benefits which I have received through your treatment.

Very respectfully yours, &c.

N. B.—It will be well for the diseased to recollect that Prof. B. has given a word of caution in his pamphlet to guard them against trusting their health in the hands of those in this city claiming to treat diseases according to his discovery. This caution may seem severe on those using Electricity at hyard, but it is the severity of truth, and designed for the good of humanity. See advertisement in another column.
