TICKNOR & FIELDS, BOS-PUBLISH THIS DAY. I. RICHTER'S GREAT ROMANCE. TITAN: A Romance. From the German of JEAN PAUL FRIEDRICH RICHTER, author of "Flower, Fruit, and Thorn Pieces," etc. Translated by Charles T. Brooks. With a fine steel portrait of Richter. 2 vols. 12mo., be-The present is the first English translation ever made of TITAN, long recognized as Richter's greatest and best romance. The author was ten years engaged in its composition, and all his other works were preparatory and tributary to this. It is his crowning life-work, and the master-piece of his striking genius. The TITAN has elicited the strongest testimonials from eminent literary authorities. "Jean Paul's works are the galaxy of the German lite-ary firmament. I defy a man to lay his hand on that entence which is not vital and ebullient with wit."—De Quincey "Over all he sees, over all he writes are spread the sunbeams of a cheerful spirit, the light of inexhaustible human love. The avowed object of all his literary labors was to raise up again the down-sunken faith in God, Virtue, and Immortality."—Longfellore. "We defy the most careless or prejudiced reader to pe ruse his works without an impression of something splendid, wonderful, and daving. * * * His faculties are all of gigantic mould."—Carlyle, "The more 'Titan' is read, the more it will be ac-moveledged a work of exalted genius, pure morality and erennial beauty."—Mrs. Lee. 11. MISS PROCTER'S POEMS. POEMS. By ADELAIDE ANNE PROCTER, Complete in one volume, blue and gold. Price $1. This latest addition to the Blue and Gold Library comprises all the published poems of Miss Procter, who has become so great a favorite in England and this country. In it may be found both series of "Legends and Lyries," but one of which has been reprinted in this country, and Miss Procter's later volume, "A Chaplet of Verses," recently issued in London. The London Athenaum says, "Now that Mrs. Browning is dead there is no English living poetess to take her place, comparable with Adelaide Procter. Her genius secures for her poems, the bighest literary rank among her contemporaries as a lyrical writer. Either of the above books for sale by any book-seller, or sent postpaid on receipt of the price, by the TICKNOR & FIELDS, PUBLISHERS. 135 WASHINGTON Street, Boston, Mass. IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT! Will be published in Philadelphia and Now York, on ... Saturday, January 3, 1863, to supply an important want, the first number of THE ENGLISH AMERICAN, a weekly newspaper—size, double royal. Except the first two numbers, it will be partly printed in England, and give a complete digest of general English news. In this respect (its being partly printed in England) it will be an interesting novelty, and of great advantage to those who wish to be fully posted in English matters. Its grand object, however, will be to secure the contributions of the choice men of each country, by which instrumentality a golden chain may be formed to bind the two nations together by the ties of peace and good will. The fadvantages according from a perpetual UNION, both in this gether by the ties of peace and good will. The advan-tages accruing from a perpetual UNION; both in this country and with the English Proper, will be fully pointed out by the Editor, who, whilst an Englishman, has traveled over eight thousand miles through this great country, and is accordingly acquainted with its vest recourses. mas travered over eight mousand mines through this great country, and is accordingly acquainted with its vast resources.

The Editor, who has had a taste of FOUR MOATHS OF PRISON LIFE IN RICHMOND, will treat his readers to a faithful description, of deep interest to the nation and Englishmen to know what the rebels are, and how they deport themselves to and before their prisoners. This subject, prefaced with the Editor's views on the week's fight before Richmond, and the opinions he holds as regards the men of the respective armies, will form chapters extending over the first three months issue; and as he has been for more than eight years the proprietor of an English newspaper (nearly ruined by the rebels unjustly detailing him), it will be seen that he has had sufficient experience to enable him to successfully conduct the new project. As 'the paper will be partly printed abroad, the importance of giving orders at once-for the first three months, at least-will be evident, as the time and expense of having the paper transported over three thousand miles will show that orders cannot be executed at the last moment. Only a limited number of unordered copies will be on hand for new quarterly subscribers; therefore give your orders without delay. A large number of the publisher's fellow-prisoners have subscribed. Reference to the following is given:
