THE CITY. The Internal Revenue. OCERATIONS OF THE LAW-AMOUNT OF COLLEC-TIONS IN THIS CITY. We have gathered with great care and labor numerous statistics and facts which will tend to show the operations of the internal revenue law, and the probable amount that will be collected in this city. The figures given below have been compiled by the collectors themselves for the information of the chief commissioner, and will differ but a trifle from the final result obtained at the close of the year's labor, ending September 1st, 1863. The only uncertainty is in reference to the income tax, which in some of the districts will be very light. FIRST COLLECTION DISTRICT. This district embraces the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Eleventh wards. Jesper Harding, collector; Washington Keith, assessor. The distriot is a very wealthy one, and the receipts will reach a high figure. The number of licenses granted will be exceedingly large. We are unable to give an estimate of what the probable receipts will be, but some idea may be formed when we state that the sum of $22,754 was collected during the month of September, and $77,000 during October. These sums were paid over to the collector by the assessor. The total receipts cannot fall short of $600,000, and will probably be much more. Owing to the vast number of stores, offices, and other places of business in the First district, the income tax will not be so heavy. One clothing establishment, during the months of September and October alone, paid in $7,700; while a distillery will pay annually about $50,000. There are also numerous other large establishments in the district which will yield to the Government a handsome income. SECOND COLLECTION DISTRICT omorises the First, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth wards; John H. Diehl, collector; Thos. W. Sweeney, assessor. This, undoubtedly, will prove the wealthiest of the whole five districts. The amount of gold and silver here to be taxed will be much greater than any other section, while the income tax reaches a large amount. The gas works are within this district, and will yield an annual income of $94,000. The largest brewery, probably, in the country is also located here. The following statement, prepared by the collector, will exhibit the probable receipts of the district for the year ending Sept. 1st, 1863: CLASS A. Auction Sales..... We have heard of a number of daring exploits performed recently at all early hours after the shades of night have fallen. The operations seem to have generally been confined to the northwestern part of our city, in the section where the Girard College is located. Several ladies have been robbed by a well-dressed man, who wears India-rubber shoes to facilitate him in approaching his intended victims so noiselessly from behind as not to attract any attention. At the request of certain of the police, we have refrained from saying anything publicly on the subject, as it was thought that quietness would facilitate the arrest of the daring robber. The time has arrived when The Press readers should be warned. About two weeks since, at half past eight o'clock in the evening, a Miss Mason was quietly walking along West Green street on her way home. In one of the sections of Bucks county the amount of ground travelled over by the assessor, in fulfilling his duties, was 146 miles. In consequence of this fact the collector, John W. Cowell, and assessor, Edward T. Chase, have not been able to prepare a correct statement of the probable amount of receipts. One or two of the assessors have not yet handed in their returns; but it is thought the revenue that will be derived by the Government from this district will not fall short of $250,000. She says that the whole affair did not occupy more than a minute.

The latest case that we have heard of occurred on last Saturday evening near Fourth and Apple streets. On a great occasion like the present, the proclamation of freedom to all slaves in rebel States, it might reasonably be expected that a great celebration would take place to-day among the anti-slavery residents of this city. Many of these have belonged to that chosen band, who, with patient labor and superhuman energy, have for thirty years battered earth's greatest wrong until it top-ples to its base, yet, humbly devoid of self-glorifica-tion, fly the thanks of their fellow-men, and pursue the quiet tenor of their way, filled with the peace of God, which passeth all understanding. CHERIFE'S SALE RY VIRTUE OF Before Mr. Alderman Ogle. I

False Pretence and Larceny Case.

A lad, apparently about 18 years old, named Herman Bloomingdale, was arraigned yesterday afternoon on the charge of obtaining goods under false pretences. A considerable amount of evidence was given in, of which the following is perspicuous condensation: George E. Hart, of the police, arrested the defendant on Tuesday night, on the charge of obtaining goods under false pertences, and then selling the same to other parties. It seems, according to the evidence, that the lad went to the store of Messrs. Boyer & Muffly, on Market street, on two occasions recently, and in the name of his father purchased several pieces of black paper muslin and Italian cloth, which he sold at a liberal discount to Messrs. Richard Auman, Solomon Mastbeam, and others, representing in one instance that his father had purchased the goods at the auction store of Myers & Claghorn, and in another instance that he was selling them on commission for his father. The case was continued until last evening, when the young man who attends the store from which the goods were obtained gave in his evidence as to selling the goods to the boy in the name of his father.

Samuel L. Plumingthal charged the defendant with larceny. He had employed him several months since to attend his store. He missed some hanks of sewing silk and pieces of muslin, but never once thought the boy had stolen them. Since his arrest, yesterday, he charged him with having purloined the goods from him, and he made a full acknowledgment of having taken several pieces of muslin and Italian cloth. Under this state of facts the alderman committed the defendant to answer the charges of false pretences and larceny. The defendant seemed to be much downcast at linding himself in an unenviable position, and the prison-house in the perspective. Before Mr. Alderman Ogle.] Resolved, That we deeply deplore any efforts to save slavery rather than the Union, or to make any new concessions, whatever, to the glave-masters, save slavery rather than the Union, or to make any new concessions, whatever, to the plave-masters, believing, as we do, that slavery is always injurious to the best interests of society, and dangerous to the libertics of all classes, and believing, as we also do, that to give new guarantees to slavery would be exceedingly offensive to the God of nations in view of the tendencies of the institution, as shown in the history of our own country, and in view of the vials of Divine wrath now poured out upon the land.

Resolved, That when we consider how often our armies have suffered reverses, and how little evidence is furnished, either by the people or their rulers, by professing Christians, or by our citizens generally, of a disposition to repent and break off from the prevalent sins of the land, we feel more than ever called upon to humble ourselves in the dust and pray that God would arise for our help and redeem us for His mercy's sake.

We have been speaking above of white persons. Among our colored population a grand celebration will take place to-day, at Big Wesley church, Lombard street, below Sixth, commencing at 2 P' M., and continuing through the afternoon and evening. Among the speakers will be Revs. John Walker Jackson, and Wm. J. Alston, with Messrs. Wm. Nicholson, Thomas N. C. Hinton, and Prof. A. M. Green. Musical selections will be given in the intervals of the addresses, and a most elevating and happy hour will doubtless be enjoyed by those participating.

Last evening, under the direction of Chief Franklin, several pretty large loads of made-up army clothing were brought to the Central Station. We are only prepared to say, at this stage of the proceedings, that a manufacturer of army clothing, who employed a large number of operatives, found his garments short in point of number. Among other expedients resorted to, he put a private mark upon a part of the trimmings, so that he might know the clothing if he should ever see it again. In the course of time he found another manufacturer selling army clothing equal, in point of quality and make, with his own, but at a far cheaper rate. On making a minute examination he discovered his private mark upon the coats his brother manufacturer had for sale. This was made known to Chief Franklin, who sent his detectives yesterday afternoon to "work up the job," and the result of their labors was seen at the Central Station last evening. Enough coats had been recovered to fit out at least one company of soldiers. The people who had taken the clothing out to make up sold the goods to manufacturer number two: Big Haul of Stolen Army Clothing. teenth ward. There were two pickers in operation at the time. One was attended by John Miller, the foreman of the night hands, and the other by Mary Ann McCaully. Mr. Miller states that he saw a piece of lint fall from the gas burner which was over the picker, and immediately all the light material which was lying about the floor took fire. There were water pipes through the building, with spickets, and buckets in the different rooms. Miller and Mrs. McCaully took these buckets and endeavored to extinguish the flames by throwing water upon them, but the fire progressed too rapidly, and the clothing of Mrs. McCaully was soon in a blaze. Miller then told her to save herself, and he supposed that she ran down stairs. He continued to battle with the flames, but found that he was unable to manage them. His clothing was also on fire, and he attempted to make his escape. He discovered his retreat down stairs cut off by the dense volumes of smoke, and then went up to the third story, from the window of which he swung himself to the ground by the hoisting-machine. He was terribly burned about the head, face, and wrists, and, while suffering the most intense agony, ran all the way to his residence, No. 1537 Seybert street, in the Twenty-fourth ward.

Mrs. McCaully was either suffocated, or burned to The fire broke out in the picker room on the se-Prison Statistics.

 A writ of Alias Venditioni Exponas, to me directed, will be exposed to public sale or vendue, on MONDAY Evening, January 5, 1883, at 4 o'clock, at Sansom-street Hall.

All that certain three-story brick messuage or tenement, and lot or piece of ground thereunto belonging, situate on the north side of Market (Jate High) street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, in the said city of Philadelphia; containing in breadth on the said Market street sixteen feet, including one foot three inches of a certain alley extending northward from the said Market street to the depth of thirty-five feet, open for the accommodation of this and the adjoining premises to the eastward, and in length or depth northward one hundred feet. Bounded southward by the said Market street, castward by a messuage and lot now or late belonging to the estate of William W. Howell, deceased, northward by ground formerly of Elizabeth Chandler, and westward by a lot formerly of Humphrey Jones, now belonging to William McCartly and Thomas Davis.

Seized and taken in execution as the property of Charles B. Truitt and Robert W. D. Truitt, and to be sold by Philadelphia, Sheriff's Office, December 22, 1862.

[CHERIFF'S SALE BY VIRTUE OF the most intense agony, ran all the way to his residence, No. 1537 Seybert street, in the Twenty-fourth ward.

Mrs. McCaully was either suffocated, or burned to death. She had evidently tried to make her way to the front of the building, and her moans and screams were heard for fifteen minutes. No relief could be afforded her, however, as the immense volume of smoke stifled the firemen, and kept them at a good distance from the mill. The body of the unfortunate woman was subsequently found by Richard Kelch, a member of the Good Intent Hose Company, who went into the second story by means of a ladder. The body was lying near the front door, upon a small portion of the floor which had not been burned. It was removed to the Eighth District station house, and Coroner Conrad notified to hold an inquest. The deceased was a widow, and lived in the same house with Miller. She leaves three children, one of whom, a girl about nine years of age, has been deformed from infancy. A son is in Girard College, and the other child was at home.

A boy and girl, who were in the picker-room at time the fire broke out, escaped in safety, as did also the other hands employed in the mill.

The building was filled with material for the manufacture of yarn, and there was also an immense stock of yarn on hand. The floors were saturated with oil, and the fiames burned so fiercely that it was impossible to save the mill, although there were about thirty streams from steam engines playing upon it at one time. The whole structure was completely wrecked, and the contents are a total loss. Nothing remains but the walls.

On Willow street, east of the mill, and separated only by a partition wall, stands a long two-story brick building, known as the Keystone Wood Turning Mill, and occupied by Hoover & Antrim. This was saved, but suffered somewhat by water. All the adjoining property, comprising coal-sheds, dyehouses, &c., escaped through the exertions of the firemen, who were at work until after daylight.

The contents of the mill, including mac The commitments are 1,545 less than in 1861. Number of prisoners remaining Dec. 31, 1862, 571. The courts yesterday were almost entirely barren The courts yesterday were almost entirely barren of business. A warrant of arrest case was heard by Judge Sharswood, in the District Court No. 2, and the District Court No. 1 was obliged to adjourn at an early hour, without trying a single case. The United States Circuit Court, Judge Cadwalader, was in session, and the case of Jenks vs. The Collector and Assistant Collector of the Fifth Collection district, was called up, but by agreement was continued. The other courts were not in session. Evening, January 5, 1863, at 4 o'clock, at Sansom-street Hall.

Marshal's sa For the past few days the "City Bounty Commisthe men of Colonel Segebarth's regiment. This is a good move, and should be continued as long as the appropriation for this purpose holds out, as the Government still needs all the recruits that can be obtained.

The Citizens' Bounty Committee, which holds the money subscribed by the citizens of Philadelphia, have stopped paying the bounty, although they have still a large amount of funds on hand, which was contributed for this specific purpose. A meeting has been held by them, to determine whether they shall go on paying bounty or give the money back to the contributors. This course would be a rather riksome job, and would be of no special benefit. Why not continue paying the bounty to those regiments which have been recruiting? It would facilitate recruiting, and thus lend the Government considerable assistance in organizing the grand army. Colonel Segebarth is still lying at Cooper's creek, in Camden, and only needs about three batteries to complete his organization, which, when full, will number nearly cighteen hundred men. The good citizens of Camden intend furnishing the regiment with a New Year's dinner to-day, and a fine ment with a New Year's dinner to-day, and a fine SALE OF PRIZE COTTON.—Yesterday, by SALE OF FRIZE COTTON.—Y SSICICIAY, by order of the United States Marshal, part of the cargo of the steamer Pawnee was sold at auction, at Michener's store, 142 North Front street, consisting as follows: 33 bales and 2 sacks, or 10,526 pounds gin cotton, at 72c.; 22 bales, or 10,636 pounds ungin cotton, at 16c. The terms of sale were cash, and payable in treasury notes. The attendance was small, on account of the disagreeable and stormy weather. RETIREMENT OF PRESIDENT ALLEN, OF THE GIRARD COLLEGE.—Yesterday President Allen, of Girard College, took his farewell leave of the pupils and Roard of Managers of that institution. The event was celebrated by a grand banquet, at which speeches were made by Messrs. Chas. E. Lex, Wm. Welsh, Gustavus Remak, and others. Complimentary resolutions, passed by the Board of Managers, and handsomely engrossed, were presented to Prof. Allen, who has been connected with this institution thirteen years.
