THE CITY. Major General Butler in Town. RECEPTION AND SERENADE AT THE CONTINENTAL. This popular general arrived here yesterday on his way from Washington to Boston, whither he departs this morning. Accompanying him were Mrs. Gen. Butler, with Lieut. Col. Whildren, Dr. McCormick, Major John M. Bell, and Captain Puffer, of his staff. It being understood that he would publicly address his visitors, about two hundred and fifty gentlemen assembled in a reception room of the Continental Hotel, and at eight o'clock the General, escorted by Postmaster Walborn and Mr. William D. Lewis, left his private parlor and entered their midst. Beyond the portals, stood, in approach the redoubtable enemy of their sex. General Butler is a man forty-four years of age, five feet eight in height, with broad shoulders, and a slight tendency to corpulency. The front and crown of his large head are bald, and his brown hair hangs stragglingly and long. The por-traits presented in photographs and pictorials give an excellent idea of the face in repose, but in conversation it lights up with humor. Fun is evidently a large component of his nature, a charac-

SPEECH OF MR. LEWIS. In introducing the General, Mr. Lewis said: FELLOW-CITIZENS: I have the great pleasure of having been deputed to present to you the patriot, statesman, and soldier, in whose honor you have assembled here to-night. You see before you a man whose name is coextensive with civilization, and whose name is coextensive with civingation, and one to whom, more than to any other person, was due the safety of the capital in those perious days when, but for his firmness and energy in seizing Annapolis, and taking charge of the connections between the North and the city of Washington, the whole Government might have been subverted. You all know with what ability he afterwards quelled the mob spirit in Baltimore, and since then, in a larger field, by more illustrious acts, in the Department of the Gulf, the firmness with which nishment was meted out to traitors who dared to punishment was meted out to traitors who dared to tear down the flag of our country, is known to you all. [Applause.] It is not my intention to dwell upon these things, but merely to recall to mind the great services done to the country by him who now stands before you. I need not, but as a matter of form, to name to you our friend, fellow-citizen, statesman, and patriot-hero, Major General Butler.

teristic which our Secession brethren would hardly anticipate. The somewhat heavy countenance which his pictures delineate is belied by actual view.

The skin is delicate, and the thin and irregular nose finely chiselled. He was introduced to the company

by Mr. William D. Lewis, with the following remarks:

[Applause.] To these words General Butler made the following reply: REMARKS OF GENERAL BUTLER. I hardly know, sir, how, in fitting terms, to reply to the truly flattering eulogy which you have been pleased to pass upon the services I have rendered. There is only one thing, so far as I know, about them which deserves any portion of that eulogy, and that is the intention with which the act was performed; an intention, in so far as I might, to do the best that lay in my power, for the country in what was deemed her nour of peril. On the 19th of April, 1861, I was in this house under very different circumstances. Communication was cut off between you and the capital. The bridges between this city and Baltimore were burned. It was supposed that the communication at Perryville would be seized, and, aided, advised, encouraged, and strengthened by your citizens, and by one especially whom have always delighted to give due honor upon all fitting occasions-I mean the president of the Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad-I was enabled to land at Annapolis. So that, owing to the liberality, patriotism, and far-sightedness of the citizens of Philadelphia, to one of your largest corporations, which seemed by that act almost to have belied the old legal proverb that "corporations have no souls," was enabled to do that which you are pleased to speak so well of. From that day to almost this hour I have been in such service for my country as those having the right to order have been pleased to command me, and there can be no higher reward than the plaudits of my fellow-citizens. I have tried to deserve the well-wishes of my friends, and in endeavoring to get them I have been very careless of the opinions of my enemies. [Applause.]. You have been pleased to allude to an act of a high executive responsibility which, in the per-You have been pleased to allude to an act of a high executive responsibility which, in the performance of duty, it became a painful necessity—an act which caused more complaints and praises than any other—the execution of Wm. B. Mumford. [Applause.] Owing to the uncourteous terms in which the so-called Confederate Government demanded an explanation of the affair, it was rendered impossible that any explanation, or report even, could be made. By offensive language, that Government shut up all ossible communication on our part. Then it was assumed that some wrong was done, and the proclasued in consequence. It may not be indelicate here to speak of that act for a moment more. On the 28th of April, if I forget not, the Mayor of New Orleans, writing by the pen of the Hon. Pierre Soule, informed Commodore Farragut that "there was no citizen base enough to take down the flag of Louisiana from the City Hall, but that the city being at mander could take down the flag, and substitute the flag of the United States, in token of the surrender of the city." The Mayor further our wishes, we would not be interfered with in the act of taking down the flag. Accordingly on the next morning the flag of the United States was raised upon the United States Mint, and after floatdrunken gambler, in the presence of the fleet, in broad daylight. The symbol of our nationality, which we all reverence, was torn in shreds, and every one that could tore off a piece as a trophy. That act in its consequences might have been most of the flag. It might, as a military proposition, have brought upon the city instant bombardment [applause], but, through the very proper caution of Commodore Farragut, a shot or two was fired, and no response was made. Mark you, it was not the fault of Mumford that New Orleans was not laid in ashes, and the men, women, and children crushed mercy for the town that we should take hereafter that I felt it necessary to punish, according to the just laws of war, after a confession of guilt, Wm. B. Mumford. [Applause.] Whether rightly or wrongly, the act still commends itself to my judg

Again, sir, feeling the utter worthlessness of the man that treason had attempted to exalt into a patriot, I was inclined to spare him, but that was not permitted me. The Thugs, rowdies, and gamblers assembled before the execution and resolved that he they ruled New Orleans or the commanding general of the United States, [applause,] and from that day I have been betrayed into saying more than I anticipated. [Cries of "go on," "go on."] I look upon the campaign in the Southwest as substantially ended. The rebel plan of the campaign was to concentrate all their force on Rosecrans, and, after defeating burg, and afterwards to regain New Orleans. We have not yet quite appreciated that noble and brave soldier, Gen. Rosecrans, and his great victory at Murfreesboro. [Applause.] If there is anything that a soldier desires more than anything else, it is that his fame, nobly won on the battle-field, even if he led his men to the charge himself, shall be cherished me to shake you by the hand.

me to shake you by the hand.

The speech being ended, the General went through the ludicrous ordeal of hand-shaking peculiar to our country, and after a severe exercise of his right arm by every one present, retired to his rooms. Among those introduced were a small party of ladies, who were escorted in, after the masculine presentation ceased. His greeting was: "They say in New Orleans that I eat young ladies for breakfast," but beyond this he made no allusion to his reputed antagonism towards the sex. yond this he made no allusion to his reputed antagonism towards the sex.

After a short intermission, the General proceeded to the balcony of the hotel, where he was vociferously received by a large crowd in Chestnut street, after being introduced by Mr. Morton McMichael. In a very few words he thanked those present for their greeting, and observed that the most grateful reward of a public man is the applause of his fellow-countrymen. For this he received a "Bully for you" and cheers, and on wishing them a goodnight, a voice replied, "No you dont." He departed, not-withstanding, and gave the remainder of the evening to social converse with a few visitors.

Gen. Butler has evidently received a splendid and emphatic endorsement from the people of Philadelphia.

VISITS TO GEN. McCLELLAN.—On Tuesday Gen. McClellan and lady held a recention of the property. McClellan, and were visited by a large number of friends. Yesterday visited by a large number of friends. Yesterday about noon Mr. Theodore Cuyler, late president of Select Council, accompanied by Messrs. The usual introductions and hand-shakings took place, after which a their conversation was entered upon. In allusion a short conversation was entered upon. In allusion to the resolutions of thanks to the General, passed by Councils, which were presented to him handsomely engraved and framed; he remarked that the reception of the gift was the proudest moment of his, life, and was the more prized in coming from old associates. The visit, being unofficial, was quite brief.

THE POLICE.

[Before Mr. Alderman Pancoast.] Interesting Developments in an Arson Case.

Mr. George Snyder and his son, George L. Snyder, were arrested by Officer Gardiner, of the Fifteenth ward, on Tuesday night, and arraigned before Alderman Pancoast yesterday, on the charge of arson. The evidence simply before the magistrate was that a hole had been made through a wall of the shop occupied by Mr. Snyder into the thirdstory room of an adjoining house, occupied by a part of the family of Mr. William Ker, at Twentieth and Pearl streets. This affair happened just before dark on Tuesday afternoon. The damage from the fire was not very heavy. The accused were committed; to await their trial. Sergeant Lovaire thought it was a case demanding an investigation by the fire marshal, and yesterday afternoon this indefatigable public functionary proceeded on his public mission, and obtained all the facts, which fully exonerate Mr. Snyder, the father. The interesting particulars, as developed by Mr. Blackburn, the fire marshal, are as follows: At the northwest corner of Twentieth and Pearl streets there resides Mr. John Hazlett, a periodical and newspaper dealer, &c. He and his family occupy the second story of the house as a dwelling. The third story was rented to Mr. George L., made maps, globes, &c., for the use of the pupils of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Instruction of the Blind. The father and son also used the shop as a place to sleep in, but took their meals at a neighboring boarding house. Interesting Developments in an Arson Case. Blind. The father and son also used the shop as a place to sleep in, but took their meals at a neighboring boarding house.

The next house on Twentieth street is occupied by Mr. William Ker and family, the third story of this house being occupied as a sleeping apartment by several young ladies. Between this room and the workshop of Mr. Snyder, as above stated, is a nine-inch brick wall. Now, it seems that young Snyder had a friend, who visited him occasionally. He was a young man fond of playing pranks. These two persons conceived the idea of boring a hole through the wall, between the workshop and the room occupied by the ladies of the fa-removed without danger, by burning. To facilitate them in this work, they heated a Poker Red Hor, and put it through the hole. The picture took fire instantly and the burning flakes fell upon a table, upon which there were several bonnets, dresses, and other light articles of ladies wear, and speedly and other light articles of ladies' wear, and speedily the whole place was in a blaze. This was more than expected. Snyder and his friend were in a quandary—their feelings, we leave to the imagination of the reader. They flew off on the wings of fright, one one way, and the other another way. Sny'er, however, stopped and rung the bell of the residence of Mr. Ker. The wife, Susan Ker, came to the door. to the door.

"I guess your house is on fire," said the affrighted young man, who was deathly pale.

"My house on fire!" responded Mrs. Ker. "How do you know that?"
"Why, because I can see it from our shop." "Why, because I can see it from our snop."
"How can you see through a nine-inch brick wall?" replied Mrs. Ker.
"Why, ah, the, yes, mam, there is a hole in the wall, and the smoke is coming through."
"Ah! I see it all; that comes of your pounding so "Ah! I see it all; that comes of your pounding so much lately."

The smoke began to curl out from the upper windows, and the alarm was given. The flames fortunately were speedily extinguished.

Mis. Ker remembers seeing some plastering on the floor in the third-story room, on New Year's day. She attributed this to the fact of the pounding against the wall. Little did she, or anybody else of her household, dream of the object the parties had in view in making that hole. The fact that Mr. Snyder and son had been warned to leave the shop was thought to be the inducement to make the aperture through the wall, to set fire to the neighbor's house. Many other things conspired together to make out a case of arson, and, on complaint of Susan E. Ker, the father and son were taken into custody, and dealt with as above stated. Mr. Snyder, the father, was not present at all, nor was he cognizant of the facts as detailed above. He will, of course, be discharged. Last evening the young friend alluded to was taken into custody. On examining the wall, quite a number of places were discovered where the parties had been trying to make holes through the wall for some time past. The charge of arson may fail to be substantiated, as there was no intent to do so; a charge of malicious mischief will probably be instituted. The above facts, we may state, were obtained from young Snyder, voluntarily on his part, and they only go to substantiate the benefit of havingla fire marshal who understands his business, and that charges may be preferred against innocent people, as was the case in this instance so far as relates to the father.

Pickpocket, Arrested.

William Fisher was arrested yesterday afternoon for picking the pocket of a lady dressed in black, who was riding in one of the Fifth-street cars, near Columbia avenue. The accused having accomplished his object, and being partly detected, rushed out of the front door of the car, jumped off the platform, stumbled, and dropped his booty. He ran for nearly three miles, but was captured after a long chase by the conductor of another car on the same line. The lady who was robbed was in company with two others. The pocket-book was picked up and restored to her. These three ladies got out of the car at Sixth and Walnut streets. The Chief of the Detectives requests us to ask her attendance at the Central Station, Fifth and Chestnut, at half past one o'clock to-day. The conductor and driver of the car are also requested to appear at the office.

Trunk of Clothing Recovered.

The wife of the rebel Gen. Rains, recently killed while fighting against his country, passed through Philadelphia on last Friday, under a flag of truce, to visit Tennessee. She was robbed of her trunk full of clothing, at Walnut-street wharf. It was a miscrable-looking affair, but it contained dresses, &c., of the most costly kind—valued in all at about $500. She had no time to stop in the city, and information of the robbery was given by officers of the railroad company. Yesterday Detectives Taggert and Levy recovered the trunk with all its effects, and sent it to the office of the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company.

[Before Mr. Alderman Dousherty.]

[Before Mr. Alderman Dougherty.] Disorderly House. Mary Franklin, otherwise known as Mrs. Carson; was arraigned before Alderman Dougherty yesterday afternoon, on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, in the vicinity of Locust and Tenth streets. It was in evidence that liquor is drank at this place, contrary to the act of Assembly in such cases made and provided. A number of witnesses were examined. This suit was instituted by a person charged by the defendant with having stolen a dress. After a hearing the accused was required to enter ball to answer at court.

Answer at court.

Larceny of Pitch.

Before the same Alderman, two men, giving the names of James McClellan and James Gaffney, were charged with stealing a barrel of pitch, the property of C. F. Clothier. The parties were arrested by the harbor police. It seems that while one of the prisoners was rolling the barrel up the hill on Archistreet, from Delaware avenue to Water street, he was detected by an officer. The other prisoner was standing some distance off, and give a whistle when he saw another officer coming towards him. The fellow then ran, and took. The arrested at this place. The accused were ordered to give bail in the sum of $800 each, to answer at court.

READ THE FOLLOWING CAREFULLY.

About twelve months ago I had a severe attack of Diabetes, attended with other difficulties too numerons to mention. My desire for drink was constant, and although I drank gallons per day, my thirst was never allayed; I was only able to sleep at short intervale, which seemed like a trance. The nucous surface of my mouth and throat had become so parched and feverish, that I was in constant misery. I was also suffering from all the horrors of Dyspepsia, loss of appetite, Nangea, and frequent and severe attacks of vomiting; and so prostrated was my general system, that I was scarcely able to move about. I had availed myself of the science and skill of distinguished medical men, both of the Allopathic and Homeopathic school, and exhausted their catalogue of remedies, but found only temporary relief. In this condition, when every ray of hope seemed paralyzed, I heard of the discovery of Professor Bolles in the use of Electricity, and the wonders he was performing in curing disease, and placed myself under his treatment; and, to the astonishment of myself and friends, in two operations my Diabetes was controlled, and other difficulties soon disappeared; my appetite has returned, sleep undisturbed, and, in fact, I feel like one made anew.

I would further state that I have seen other remarkable cures performed by Prof. Bolles, and would advise the diseased to call at 1200 Walnut street, and he restored to health. I shall be glad to give any one information calling on me.

Rose Mill, West Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, May 1st, 1850.

Rose Mill, West Philadelphia.

Episcopal Church, No. 1633 Helmuth street, Philadelphia:
In attempting a definition of my disease, I can only give some of the many symptoms which, taken altogether, were the most horrid; and even medical men did not know my disease from pathological symptoms. However, Professor C: H. Bolles, by whom I was cured, located my disease in the pelvic viscera, in five minutes after I entered his office, and offered to warrant a parfect cure in eight applications. And I frankly admit that in eight applications of Electricity. administered by Professor Bolles, 1220 Walnut street, Philadelphia, I am perfectly cured; and to me this is most astonishing, for I had exhausted the catalogue of old-school remedies, and grew worse all the time.

I had long believed that in Electricity resided a potent agent for the cure of disease, if a right application could be made; and now I can comprehend, from its powerful effects on me, for a speedy cure, although no shocks were given. All was pleasant, and accomplished as if by magic.

I will give most of my symptoms, for the benefit of

be made; and now I can comprehend, from its powerful effects on me; for aspeedy cure, although no shocks were given. All was pleasant, and accomplished as if by magic.

I will give most of my symptoms, for the benefit of suffering humanity. I had dyspepsia, bad marasmus, or wasting of the tissues of the whole body; at times a difficulty of breathing, some palpitation of the heart, much bronchitis, trembling of the limbs after exercise, aversion to business and company; at times gloomy, inability to collect my thoughts vigorously on any subject, a loss of memory, pain in various parts of the body; suffered much from lumbago, deranged secretions of the kidneys and other glands of the system, constant dragging pains in the lumbar region, and severe nervous dizziness.

I believe it is my duty, as a lover of humanity, to recommend this discovery of Professor BOLLES to ithe afflicted of all classes. There seems to be no gnesswork, no confusion, no matter of doubt in his treatment. He proceeds on fixed principles, and according to fixed laws, which seem to me infallible and harmonious. He warrants, by special contract, the most obstinate, chronic and acute cases, and charges nothing, if he fails. I advise all of the diseased to try his treatment.

EDWARD T. EVANS,

PROFESSOR BOLLES, 1220 Walnut street: The remarkable cure which I have derived from your method of applying Electricity compels me to thus acknowledge the great obligations I am under to you for snatching me, as it were, from immediate death. About two years ago, while a resident of Cincinnati, Ohio, I was visited with an attack of paralysis of the lower extremities, which rendered me almost entirely unable to stand upon my limbs. I employed some of the most celebrated physicians to be found in that section, but received no apparent benefit, and after a lapse of about eighteen months was talended to your retatment by a pamphlet banded me by my father, which contained the names of some gentlemen whom I had been formerly acquainted with, and whose statements

N. B.—It will be well for the diseased to recollect that Prof. B. has given a word of caution in his pamphlet to guard them against trusting their health in the hands of those in this city claiming to treat diseases according to his discovery. This caution may seem severe on those using Electricity at hazard, but it is the severity of truth, and designed for the good of humanity. See advertisement in another column.
