Mr. Ingersoll then spoke to the following effect:
As Mr. Vandyke has remarked, this is the 8th of January, the auniversary of the day when, fortycight years ago, Andrew Jackson did more for his country than we should obtain for ourselves in a country than we should obtain for ourselves in a century of civil war. There were no telegraphs in those days, and on the 9th of January, at that period, men did not read of the great victory at their preakfasts. The news came by the slow process of nost-coaches and men on horseback; but when learned, it electrified the land into a burst of joy. This victory was won by slaveholders; by a Southern army, with Southern officers, and commanded by a Southern general. These are the men whom the press and the Republican party would teach us to hate as our worst foes. If Mr. Lincoln had led in every engagement since the beginning of this war. hate so the wars does. It should not led in good all our defeats had been victories, he would not in a century of such warring win the honor or profit for his country that was gained by Jackson on the Sih of January, 1815.

This war finds us the Disunited States, our arms Sih of January, 1816.

This war finds us the Disunited States, our arms dishonored, our prosperity departed, and our treasury empty. Our soldiers are unpaid, and looking only for "green backs," which they will change for paper promises to pay by the majestic Government of the United States, in sums as large as five cents. Mr. Lincoln's friends have brought this on us. I will look forward. What is the cure for the fills that here us? I say there is but one; there is no other. It is vain to talk or think of any other than the Thion. Without the Union we can be nothing. If we cannot have that, let us have a reconstruction of the country or a reunion. The 4th of March, 1861, found us a nation, a united country. We were states with a nationality. We are now broken; we cannot make a nation. A nation has a growth, and we have grown much since the Declaration of Independence. We cannot break the country, and must reunite it as it was. We must restore the country before we can again start upon a career of prosperity. There is but one way in which we can recommence a nationality by the sword, and that is to reconstruct our map. The mere State lines, upon which we now depend to define boundaries, would be abolished. The natural boundaries of rivers and mountains would then only define States, for these could be planted with cannon, and aid in furnishing defence. Break this country in two, and we might be involved in a thousand years of war. The European maps have been centuries in making, and are by no means yet completed. The various foundaries of European States have been defined only by the sword. In case of a separation between the North and the South the Northern States would only by the sword. In case of a separation between the North and the South the Northern States would also separate from each other; incessant warring would ensue, and several nations would spring from low, then, is reunion to be established? We are How, then, is reunion to be established? We are told that the South will not again join us; that men, women, and children there, are influenced with passion, and have resolved on independence. If they yield to this passion, and cling to their resolve, I grant that the Union cannot be restored. But if the Democratic party should hold possession of the Government, it would say, gentlemen, name your terms. In doing this they could name no terms that would not be as advantageous to us as to themselves, for a benefit to North Oarolina, or any Southern State, would react as a benefit upon Pennsylvania, or any Northern State.

Where will you find in the South a sextesman who where will you find in the Southa statesman who will assume the responsibility of saying "we reject all terms with the North." None would risk eternal hostility with a section three times as powerful as their own. The North is pro-slavery. Through the voice of its people in their recent Democratic elections, it has pronounced for the protection of slavery, and of the protection of the gentlemen of the South in their human property. The Democratic party will soon rule the nation. Will any Southern statesman then say "I will make no terms with this powerful North." Gentlemen, if we separate from the South we shall all, you and I, be Abolitionists! ! [All stood aghast at the fearful thought, and the speaker sank into an impressive pause.] Make us a foreign nation to the South, and we shall be opposed to the institution of slavery! I look on negro property as being sacred as any other property, and I sympathize with the South in their desire to preserve it. The South cannot be so unwise, if we offer to rejoin them, as to say "we will not." It will those for exceptions of the south of the property. any other property, and I sympathize with the South in their desire to preserve it. The South cannot be so unwise, if we offer to rejoin them, as to say "we will not." It will, therefore, agree upon fair terms to the restoration of the Union.

Mr. Lincoln is opposed to the Union. He knows that if he signed a treaty of peace with the South, allowing it to secede, that day would be the brightest of his life. Were a rejunction to take place, he well knows that he and his party would no longer be heard of. He tells gentlemen of the South to come into the Union, and at the same time strips them of every dollar they possess. Mr. Lincoln has more than two years yet of his term unserved. By conventions of the people only, therefore, can we cut the knot. How is that to be accomplished? Many States are yet Republican, and none are wholly Democratic. We cannot thus at present obtain conventions of the people. We are here in Pennsylvania with a Governor and Senate against us, and a House in our favor. That latter body should therefore refuse supplies. If I were a member of the House of Representatives at Harrisburg, I would say, until you give us a bill to call a convention of the people of Peansylvania we will give no money; we will withhold supplies. This has often been done in England. The country being now nearly in ruies, conventions of the people are the only mode of initiating measures for a settlement with the South. The example of Pennsylvania in this would be followed by other Stales.

Mr. Ingersoll then expressed himself indignantly stainst the seizure by Government of railifoads Interest of Pennsylvania in this would be followed by other Stales.

Mr. Ingersoll then expressed himself indignantly against the seizure by Government of railroads throughout the country, and also upon the arrest of the editors of the Pubriol and Union at Harrisburg. He then urged the necessity of a raily by the Democratic party, and gave place to Mr. Geo. M. Wharton, who, in remarking upon the new Democratic headquarters, felt almost ashamed to say, as an American citizen, that none there present could have, three months ago, attended a meeting of the Democratic party. Now, however, the people of four Northern States have spoken in tones that have reached the Government at Washington. He professed himself a member of the Democratic party, because it was the party of law and order, freedom of speech, of the press, of locomotion. When Democratic speakers openly opposed the Government, and were subject to arrest, did the party attempt to resist by force? No, they waited for the ballot box. They knew that a pressure would be brought to bear upon the Government which it would be resist. lored? No, they waited for the ballot box. They knew that a pressure would be brought to bear upon the Government which it would be unable to resist. Mr. Wharton observed that we had hitherto received the Constitution as expounded by men who had made the country the envy of the world, but of late years a construction had been placed upon it which laid it open to ridicule. Can any one read Mr. Lincoln's proclamation without a smile? He says, "I issue this hy virtue of the authority given to me by the Constitution of the United States. I am Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy. I do not go and fight in that capacity, but I declare all the negroes of the South fiee." [Laughter.] Feeling that some little gap in all this was open for question, he inserts, "by military necessity." The Democratic party are not lovers of the Constitution by "military necessity." but through a love of freedom. If the doctrine of military necessity is to be carried out, there is no telling where it may end, and it is time for clubs and conventions of the Democratic party to meet and protest against the action of the President of the United States. As Mr. Wharton closed, Mr. Ingersoll announced that the room would not long remain in its present comfortless condition, but would, in future, be well warmed, and furnished with seats, newspapers, &c. On motion of Mr. Vandyke, a committee was ap-pointed to draft a constitution and bye-laws for the club, and the meeting adjourned.

LECTURE BY REV. J. COTTON SMITH, D. D.—The next lecture of the popular course of lectures in progress at Concert Hall, for the benefit of the Church of St. Matthias, will be delivered on Tuesday evening, the 20th inst., by the Rev. J. Cotton Smith, D. D., one of the most eloquent divines in the city of New York. A NATURAL CURIOSITY.—Messrs. Charles Oakford & Son, the large Hatters and Furriers of this city, under the Continental Hotel, have secured a "customer" that is now attracting almost as much attention in one of their large show-windows as their elegant new styles of Hats and Furs. We allude to the immense Couger, or American Tiger, now exhibited by them, which was recently brought from Pike's Peak, where, among other horrible acts, this animal, some two months ago, performed the Operation of killing and eating a large-sized man in-side of fifteen minutes. Even in his present mummy State, he is a hideous-looking monster.

FINE PHOTOGRAPHIC PICTURES IN ALL WEATHERS .- Mr. Hipple, the skilful photographer of this city, is prepared to take the finest executed pictures at his popular ground-floor galleries, No 520 Arch street, in all weathers. The pictures of this rising young Philadelphia artist are universally admired for their richness, strength of likeness, and grace of attitude.

FINE WINES AND LIQUORS.-Mr. C. H. Mattson, dealer in fine family groceries, Arch and Tenth streets, has constantly on hand a supply of Superior liquors, of his own importation, of undoubted purity, expressly adapted for medicinal pur-1º0ses. His rare old Port, Sherry, and Madeira, of the choicest brands, and his best quality of Brandy, are highly recommended by our first physicians, for

WALNUT STREET THEATRE. - Miss Lau-18 Keene, the popular manageress and actress, has er farewell benefit to night, and presents two come dies—the new comedy, "An Unequal Match;" by the author of "Our American Cousin," and Goldsmith's glorious coincily of "She Stoops to Conquor," This is positively the last night but one of Miss Keene and her great combination company. SIGNOR BLITZ, ASSEMBLY BUILDINGS, TENTH AND CHESTNUT. - The incomprehensible wonders enacted by this remarkable magician combel many to believe him in league with the prince of darkness and other infernal deities, so strange and impossible are the various delusions he nightly per-

ARRIVAL OF GENERAL BUTLER'S SUITE IN Town.-Rumor yesterday afternoon told of the Arrival of General Butler's suite at the Continental. Immediately we were on the qui vive to see it. We had heard a great deal of the man in New Orleans, and of his taking ways, notwithstanding an unpre-Possessing countenance. We thought it must be his external dress or address that was the secret of his Winning habits. We consulted Charles Stokes & Co.'s Illustrated Almanac of Fashion for 1863, and found that so far as the coat was concerned, it must be double-breasted, and the buttons in groups of three, and that was all we could learn. His suit was not to be seen; but in Charles Stokes & Co.'s establishment, under the "Continental," we saw a great humber of suits of all kinds, from a Major General down to a butler, sure enough, and with that we had

20 be satisfied. DEPARTURE OF GENERAL BUTLER. Major General B. F. Butler left the city this morning, for the North. He went away without parade or fuss, and as he passed down Chestnut street, he atopped in at the Brown-Stone Clothing Hall of Rookhill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605, above Sixth Street, sufficiently long to look around at their magnificent stock of garments for Gentlemen and Youths, and to try on a new suit made for himself. The General manifests as much discretion in the purchase of his wearing apparel as he does skill and nerve in the management of a captured city. CRANBERRY SHORT CAKE. - Take half cup of flour; mix with cold water; roll out so that when baked it will be an inch in thickness. To prepare your berries, take one quart of cranberries, put them in a quart of water with one tablespoonful of saleratus; when they begin to crack open pour off all the water, add a little fresh water, and stew until done; add, while cooking, half enough sugar to sweeten. Split open your short cake as soon as baked, spread on enough of the berries to cover well, sprinkle on more sugar, enough to sweeten it, a little ground cinnamon, and put butter in small lumps on the whole; put the other half of your cake on the top, prepare in the same way, and set the whole in a hot oven for five minutes. It is unnecessary to say that the cake can only be enjoyed in its fullest extent, when the gentlemen partaking of it are dressed in the elegant garments prepared at the Emporium of Granville Stokes, No. 609 Chestnut street, Phila FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL. THE MONEY MARKET.

PHILADELPHIA, January 8, 1863. The Stock market was in a fever this morning, and prices were rampant. The announcement of the seven per cent. stock dividend by the Reading Railroad Compa ny created considerable discussion as to who would be sidered by the company as entitled to the dividend, the holders of certificates or the purties in whose name certificates were issued. A committee was appointed to confer with the company, and the difficulty will, no doubt, be settled. Until that time, all stock will be sold with the dividend on. The dividend is payable next February. Gold took a start and ran up to 1363, the un fivorable news from Yicksburg and the continued pros pect of more legal tenders operating on the market. Old demands rose to 135, but fell off to 13314. Gold fell towards the close to 12514@13514 fibid, market rather weak. Government securities are more firmly held. Money plenty at 5@6 & cent., on call; the same figures for good security. Subscriptions to the new national six-per-cont. five-twenty loan continue to improve. The New York Evening Post of to day says:

The New York Evening Post of to-day says:

The stock market is tremendously excited, and all descriptions of securities are in demand at almost any price. We have never before witnessed such excitement. The chief cause for all is the acceptation, by the Committee of Ways and Means, of the financial bill of Mr. Spaulding, which was introduced by him on Monday last. Speculators forget that it will possibly be six or eight months before the currency can be got ready for circulation, allowing that the bill will pass both houses. We are, however, advised that of the members of the House four-fiths of them are in favor of the bill, but the Senate is not so suce.

Many Senators believe that more currency should of necessity be issued, but they are opposed to such an amount as $500,000,000. We are informed that should the bill pass the House, the Senate would amend it by reducing the amount of "greenbacks" to be issued to perhaps $150,000,000—one half. Still, no correct opinion can now be expressed on the question. The Board opened with a better demand for Government and Border state stocks. The coal shares were also better. Camcan now be expressed on the question. The Board opened with a better demand for Government and Border State stocks. The coal shares were also better. Camberland sold as high as 1334, with that price bid for more. When Pacific mail was called the excitement became intense, and the stock was run up to 142%, and closed at 142 bid. Exchange on London, 60 days, is firm at 149@1491/2.
