THE PRESS.-PHILADELPHIA. THURSDAY, JANUARY 29, 1863.

Gold is Up-the Currency is not Down. To the Editor of The Press:

Sin: The history of opinions informs us that great cirors are adhered to as firmly, and sometimes as honestly, as great truths. It is our lot in this world, and our duty, to avoid error as carefully as we would seck the truth; even more so, for the ways of error are far more numerous and easy to travel than the ways of truth. Popular errors, when of sufficient importance to have many advocates, generally have a long race before they are brought down and destroyed. There is one at this moment attracting wide attention, and causing a great outory. It is proclaimed in dailies, monthlies, in grave State papers, in speeches, and oracular deliverances on all sides, that the currency of the loyal States is desloes, that the currency of the loyal isenes is de-preciated to the exact extent of the price of gold. Many, very many, intelligent people assert this with as much confidence and sincerity as they would say that two and two make four. They assume it as an undoubted element in their financial reasonings, and the whole financial position of the country is considered from that point of view. The nation is pronounced to be, on that account, on the very brink of financial ruin.

This is a monstrous mistake, founded on a fallacy not less monstrous. We have certainly real troubles and difficulties enough, in our present national posi-ion, to encounter, without allowing this alarming and mischlevous apprehension a place in our minds. Long familiarity with subjects of this kind leads us to the conclusion that there is absolutely no ground for the assertion that our currency has depreciated to the extent that gold has risen, nor indeed to any inurious extent.

What is the import of this asserted depreciation? It imports that the banks and people of the loyal States are receiving every week, in payment of debta, not less than two hundred and fifty millions of dollars, in a currency depreciated forty himfors of dollars, in a currency depreciated forty to fifty, per cent.; that is, worth at most one hundred and fifty millions, losing for the time at the rate of up-wards of fifty-two hundred millions yearly. It imports that the operations of the New York clearing house, which encode an buydred millions works in a successful to the second and the successful to the second se That the operations of the New York citraling noises, which exceed one hundred millions weekly, represent only fifty or sixty millions, and that the rest is only moonshine. It imports that a man who, with this currency, purchases real estate at the same price he could have had it for three years ago, to the amount of $100,000, really only pays $55,000 for it; and that, although the man who receives the $100,000 can with this same currency go into the real estate market and purchase productive real cstate at about the same rate he would have given several years ago, or although he can purchase the best of six or seven per cent. mortgages at the same rate he would have paid for them in gold three years ago. Farms in all the best agricultural districts of the country can be pur-chased with this currency as cheaply as before the suspension of specie payments. The real estate of the country, the main item of national wealth, and certainly worth twenty times our whole stock of gold, can then be purchased and paid for in this eur-rency, alleged to be depreciated at least forty five per cent, at rates as favorable to purchasers as before the which exceed one hundred millions weekly, represencent., at rates as favorable to purchasers as before the assumed depreciation took place. If this doctrine be well founded, real estate has depreciated in the same there have been flutuations in city property as well before as since the suspensions of payments in gold, the great bulk of the real estate in the loval States has undergone no depreciation since the rebellion commenced, whereby it can be purchased at the same prices as formerly in a currency now depreciated nother is it supported at its present valuation by speculation, nor by a currency so depreciated. So far, then, as can be ascertained from our thou-sands of millions of real estate in country or in city, no depreciation of the currency has occurred, nor has the amount or quality of the currency exerted any appreciable influence on the price of real estate. It is asserted strenuously, by those who should be more careful of their conclusions and admissions before committing themselves to a doctrine so injurious to our national credit, that a great inflation of prices has occurred as a consequence of the large issues of paper currency. This assertion is made in part on the lath of a doctrine which has been much taught by a certain class of theorists in political. economy during the last half century. In the whole-range of industrial and commercial economy there is scarce a more complicated subject, both as to facts and theory, than prices. Of all the influences which and theory, that proces. Or at the function we want to bear upon prices, there are perhaps none whose effects are so general, and yet so small, as changes in the quantity of currency. It is so much easier to attribute any increase of prices to the currency than to ascertain the real facts of every fluctuation in the function in favorite mode of every fluctuation in price, that, it is a favorite mode of saving the labo minute and careful investigation. No one will deny that every article of trade every both which it is old in the character of inductive to the product of inductry, has its own haw of price, its own fuctuations of market value, ruling mainly the rates at which it is sold in the channels of consumption and trade. These special laws which pertain to each commodity, and on which its price essen-tially, and most of all, depends, must, in the first place, be consulted, and the actual facts and influ-ences pertaining thereto be ascertained before attempting to discover the effect of the secondary influences arising from such causes as those of the fluences arising from such causes as those of the currency. It is not the paper currency which has raised the price of cotton, or coal, or sugar, or wool; the causes of the advance in these articles are well known. The paper currency is not responsible for the advance in labor, which it is equally well known is caused by the withdrawal of nearly a million of laborars for the suppression of rebel-lion; nor for the advance in very many articles, its the price of which the cost of labor enters as

and cash is exacted in transactions of great fre-quency and large amount. The changes and uncer-tainties of business create distrust and caution, and these increase the use of currency.' Advance in prices, always incident to war, in that numerous class of articles of which the Government is under the necessity of making large purchases, swells the volume of currency. In this present war, in which more than a half million of men and an 'army of of-ficers have been under pay, there has all the time been in many parts of the country an actual defi-ciency of currency. If our soldiers had been regu-larly paid, a large circulation, in addition to that which has been employed, would have been required. The legitimate demands of business and the collec-tion of the taxes, taken together, require a much larger sum of currency for constant use than has been generally supposed ; but that amount will be fluctuating, and the fluctuation will not correspond in intensity or in quantity in different places. This constitutes the chief practical difficulty. It requires regular commercial knowledge and the skill and ex-perience of practical bankers to mange a full circu-lation of paper money to prevent its being in excess. With bad management, a smaller amount may have the evil results of excess; with proper management, a larger sum of numer as be an undoubted advantage. There is reason enough why men should be jealous of large issues of paper currency by the Govern-ment. It is a power easily abused, and one which has too frequently been abused. But in the present condition of our country we should be az-careful not to cry out before we are hurt as to cry out when we are hurt. The high price of gold is doubtless a monetary evil, and cash is exacted in transactions of great frefew persons attended the appeal. Several tavernkeepers from up county made their appearance to ask an abatement of the United States tax stating that they could not afford to pay a license of $20, as they had been notified they would have to do-their business not justifying it, but they might be able to pay $5. One man stated that he had not sold two gallons of gin in six months. Mr. Chase informed them that he could do nothing for them. The high license that liquor sellers are required to pay under the United States tax law will have the effect to close up some of the numerous taverns up country. Some of them have already quit sell-ing liquor publicly, to avoid paying the license. Several persons were on hand to inquire wheth-er a liquor license would authorize them to carry on some other business also, such as dealing in coal, lumber, &c. They were informed that it would not-that it only authorized the sale of liquor and nothing else. The deputy assessors appear to have understood their duties very well, and have made but few errors in their construction of the law. In making their assessments they had many delicate questions to decide as to who were manu-facturers, dealers, &c., under the law, and the amount of tax or license they would be required to pay. As a general thing, the assessors have been quite liberal in their construction of the law, not believing that it was intended to have a rigid con-struction in every case. do-their business not justifying it, but they might

to cry out before we are hurt as to cry out when we are hurt. The high price of gold is doubtless a monetary evil, which is not only a serious inconvenience to many classes, but a heavy loss to them. By far the great-est evil it inflicts upon the community now, how-ever, is the impression that our currency has gone down. This leads men into numberless false conclu-sions, and induces them to act as if the credit of the country had sunk in the same proportion. Nomore effectual method of attacking public credit could be devised. It is in this way undermined by the false admissions of its friends more effectually than it could be overthrown by the open assaults of its ene-mies. The time is perhaps near enough when it may require great effort to sustain our national securi-ties. Ought we not to be very sure of our facts and doctrines before we admit that our national currency has fallen fifty per cent. below its proper level ? The natural laws of trade, and banking, and currency, often furnish remedies for the evils which occasion-ally befal them.

[Before Mr. Alderman Beitler.] The Fifth-Ward Election Case.

The case of conspiracy instituted against the inspectors of the Filth ward, for issuing a certificate of election to William Meeser, setting forth that he had been duly elected to the Common Council, was again before Mr. Alderman Beitler, at his office, on Seventh street, last evening. Mr. Sellers, for the Commonwealth, said that he had no further order as offer. We then summed man of Seliersville has a contract to furnish several hundred tons of hay for Government purposes, and has hands employed day and night, a great portion of the time. At Quakertown, Charles Kemerer has recently put up a press near the station, and is do-ing an extensive business. The hay is purchased of the farmers in the localities named, for about $13 per ton. There was a large crop of hay in those sections the past summer, and a ready market is thus afforded for the supplies that the farmers have on hand.

often furnish remedies for the evils which occasion-ally befal them. When men speculate too freely, or overtrade and issue their individual paper in too large quantities, a high rate of interest is apt to prevail when these come to be paid. When merchants in foreign trade import too largely, a high exchange will be the penal-ty and cure. The high price of gold, however much to be regretted, is a defence against greater evils. There can be no doubt that our money market is in danger of the intrusion of a large amount of Ameri-can stocks held in Europe. If this influx were not held in check, the result would be calamitous to our money and stock markets here, and to all the inteheld in check, the result would be calamitous to our money and stock markets here, and to all the inte-rests, public and private, connected with them. It is enough for those who are immediately and seri-ously damaged by this high price of gold to grieve over it; but holders of the currency ought to admit that its paying and purchasing power is fully equal to that of gold three years ago, making allowance for facts and circumstances and changes which neither gold nor currency had any influence in pro-ducine. ducing.

Seventh street, last evening. Mr. Sellers, for the Commonwealth, said that he had no further evidence to offer. He then summed up the points on which he desired the binding over of the parties, the main ones being, that the asses-sors had made no official return of the taxable in-habitants of the Fifth ward—the sheriff did not issue a proclamation for the election of such an officer, and that it should have been the duty of the inspectors of the election to have rejected all votes for said office, as is directed by the act of Assembly, 1839, which says, that if upon opening a ticket it is found to contain the name of a person for any office not ordered under the provisions of the law, said ticket shall be rejected. Mr. Biddle, counsel for Mr. Hart, one of the de-fendants, gave at some length his views of the law, and contended that it was the duty of the inspectors to make a full return of all the votes cast; anything short of this would not be legally made; and as there is not a particle of evidence of conspiracy, he asked for the discharge of the defendants. Frederick M. Adams, Esq., made the closing speech in behalf of the prosecution. Alderman Beitler, after musing for a moment, said he would hold the case under advisement for a few days, and then he would announce his decision. He might state in this case, that it is said a much ARRESTED BY ORDER OF THE GOVERN-MENT.-Mr. A. D. Boileau, proprietor and editor of the Evening Journal, of this city, was arrested at an early hour yesterday morning at his residence, No. 903 Franklin street, by a detachment of the provost guard. The arrest was made by order of the Government, and the prisoner was immediately sent to Washington. Mr. E. W. Carr was also arrested and confined in the guard-house, but was subsequently released. We understand that Mr. Carr was arrested through a misapprehension of the officers of the Government, as he was supposed to be a partner in the publication of the Journal. Yesterday afternoon the paper contained an editorial anuncement of the arrest, giving what it states were the reasons prompting the Government to exercise its power against disloyal sympathizers. The Journal says: "Mr. Boileau was arrested because he was a Democrat, and because his paper is a Democratic paper." Disinterested readers of the Evening Journal will have no difficulty in discerning the reason for this arrest. Considerable excitement was created in the vicinity of the office during the after-noon. Notwithstanding the slushy weather, a large and somewhat boisterous crowd assembled in the neighborhood, and were evidently disposed to make some sort of a demonstration. A number of soldiers belonging to the provost guard took possession of the office at about 4 o'clock, and all sales of the paper were immediately stopped. The acting editor of the paner was nowhere about nor could any one tel into the price of which the cost of labor enters as a chief element. Such is the whole range of the pro-ducts of our domestic industry. Iron is wholly the product of labor, the raw materials in their natural condition having little comparative value; its ad-vance, then, is to be attributed to the cost of labor, vance, then, is to be attributed to the cost of labor, to heavier duties, and to the premium on gold. Lum-ber has advanced because the hardy men, who have heretofore prepared it for market, have left the wild regions where it is obtained, and are absent from their occupation for the defence of the country. The whole range of imported commodities has been af-feeted by increased duties and the rise in gold. The extraordinary advance in exchange has increased the price of the commodities usually exported by offering such a large premium on foreign funds. When all these considerations, and all the facts to which they point, are duly weighed, where is the propriety of insisting that the currency of the pre-sent time in the loyal States is depreciated forty-five per cent., or, as is asserted, to the very figure of the per cent., or, as is asserted, to the very figure of the per cent., or, as is asserted, to the very figure of the premium on gold? This assertion deserves the broadest denial which can be offered to it. We deny that there has been any advance in prices owing to depreciation of the general currency; we deny that there has been any depreciation of the currency to correspond with the advance in gold. We insist that the rise in gold is an independent event, totally unconnected with the general currency. It is as easy to assign the reasons for the advance of gold as those for the rise of any other commodity which thas increased in price. When the banks were paying gold it could not com-mand a premium, for the banks supplied the demand-at par. When the banks suspended the holders of gold immediately asked from one to two per cent., and those who needed gold were obliged to give it. As the demand increased in gold in-creased the price. The demand increased for several creased the price. The demand increased for several

1. The export of gold was constantly diminishing the stock on hand. It carried off sixty-nine millions in 1882.

2. Gold was constantly required for payment of duties, and the importers were compelled to pur-chase in the market what they could not demand of the banks. 3. The Government required a considerable quan-tity of gold for payment of interest on the public debt, for, various other purposes at home, for pay-ment of purchases abroad, and for payment of naval expenses and salaries of ministers and consula 4. The aspects of the war and the expectation of large issues of paper currency induced many people to hoard or keep it on hand for emergencies. 5. The sale of American securities returned to us io hoard or keep it on hand for emergencies.

5. The sale of American securities returned to us from Europe created a large demand for exchange, the rise of which proportionately affected gold.
6. So many influences operating on one commodity caused a rapid advance; the speculators and brokers, who fatten on fluctuations, and are quick to perceive such conjunctions of circumstances as affect the articles in which fluey deal, such as stocks or gold, were prompt to step into a movement already so well supported. These shrewd dealers soon found that they had also the hearty cooperation of the holders of American securities, who fasten and holders of American securities, who fasten the y data stocks the injury of our money market, of similar securities held abroad. All these influences tend not only to produce a rise in gold, but to keep it at a high figure. As stocks go up, gold goes up with them, because parties in the foreign interest can afford to purchase gold if speculation advances stocks sufficiently to cover the whole or a portion of the premium on gold.
7. At the present stage of the gold market, it has perhaps no one support more powerful than the very general and very erroneous belief in the depreciation of the reasury issues and bank notes. The confident and persevering announcement that the general paper currency has depreciated from forty-five to fifty per cent. is alarming even to those who hesitate to credit so absurd a position. This alarm spreads: A currency which could fall one-half in a year may go to nothing in another year. In proportion to the facts, which prove that the premium on gold exhibits the advance in price.
6. Only one class of men can reaist the force of there affacts which prove that the premium on gold exhibits the advance in price.
7. At the prove that the premium on gold exhibits the advance in price. This class of men, unhappily for our mational finance; the second and the reast of the confident is the second approximating hous the advance in price of gold, and not the de-precisition of the paper currency—that class of theo. Its who believe that gold has the extraordinary quality of neither rising nor falling in price. This class of men, unhappily for our national finances, is neither small nor insignificant; it is a class desti-tute neither of intelligence, nor of influence. It is at this moment exerting an influence on public affairs so mischleveous that not even rebel armies more threaten the safety of the country. For centurics—ever since the revival of industry and commerce in Europe—have the market rates of gold been quoted in the price currents and in places of exchange. During all that time gold has been, in the language and in the estimation of merchants and bankers, bought and sold, with variations in price much more numerous than in many other commodi-ties. Gold is still so bought and sold in all the money markets of the world. We have been informed from day to day, by the press of New York, ever since the suspension, what was the premium upon gold. Its selling rate has fluctuated violently for the last six months—sometimes as much as five per cent, in a single day. According to the idea of those who say that gold does not change, but that currency does, it follows that some thirty to fifty millions of gold out of the banks in New York, urgently needed and sought after by many classes of persons, does not and cannot rise in price, but some five hundred mil-lions of currency throughout the loyal States does it the course of a day may, according to this doctrine, find, at the close of the day, that the one hundred mil-ilions of a parens to fluctuate. The New York banks which receive one hundred millions in the course of a day may, according to this doctrine, find, at the close of the day, that the one hundred mil-filons si the close of the day, that the one hundred millions gold having advanced five per cent. whils the day's receipts are, in fact, worth only ninety-five millions, gold having advanced five per cent what had become of Mr. Carr. Mr. Witte, Mr. Carrigan, and other well-known Democratic leaders, visited the office, and ventilated their opinions on the "outrage." Mr. Wm. D. Baker essayed to make a speech to the soldiers of the guard about Aboli-tionists and contractors, unpaid soldiers and Government plunderers, white men's rights and black men's privileges. Mr. Baker announced himself. "the editor of this paper," and dared anybody to arrest him. He owned that the course of the paper had been very foolish, and if he had been permitted to be editor-in-chief no such event would have happened, for, he said, he knew there was a way to at-tack the Government without giving it a ground upon which an arrest could be made. The cashier of the establishment was not long in concluding that it was, on the whole, a safe plan to bundle up all the stray pennies of the office and carry them to a safer place of custody. A detachment of police maintained order outside the office, and no disorderly scenes occurred. The Provost Guard slept in the

could be produced, with a greater cost and permanent good.
"To secure the completion of this work at the lowest possible expense, I have sclected a skillul man to superintend the construction of each, who is required to take a solemn obligation to make a true return of all material used, and labor performed, to finish the same; thereby presenting every safeguard I could devise, to protect the city from excessive charge, fraud, or peculation. A number of the bridges are already completed; the others are in progress of construction, and will yet require considerable outlay to finish."
It is due to the Commissioner to state that during the year he has kept the streets of the city gene-during the temporary absence of the owner, and drove away. He was subsequently arrested in the Tenth Police district. He was committed. Breach of Ordinance.

Breach of Ordinance. Patrick Larkens was arrested by Reserve Officer Kerr, yesterday afternoon, for breach of ordinance. It seems that the defendant was driving a two-horse wagon on the rail track. A car was just ahead of him. It stopped either to let a passenger out or in. Larkens, instead of turning off the track, stopped his horse, and thus brought the wagon directly on the flagging. The officer spoke to him several times, and ordered him to move. The driver did not make any effort to do so until the officer was about to ar-rest him. The defendant was fined the usual penalty.

penalty. Entered on Duty. Dennis Mead, the recently-appointed constable of the Fifth ward, will enter on his duties this morn-ing, at the office of Alderman White. It seems the constable elected in October did not enter up his securities, and the constabulary force of the ward was, therefore, left vacant. Mr. Mead was appointed by the Hon. Judge Ludlow to supply the vacanov.

Court of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions—Judge Ludlow. In the midst of the progress of the nuisance case, before reported, yesterday morning, the District Attorney appeared and asked that the Grand Jury be sent for and instructed as to the receipt of certain documentary evidence in support of a bill of indict-ment then before them, charging certain parties with misdemeanor. The application was granted, and on the appear-ance of the Grand Jury Judge Ludlow, after hear-ing the District Attorney in support of his motion, instructed that body on the manner in which bills could be presented for their action, and as to their duty in hearing and considering the evidence offered in support of the charge. The judge said that they were bound to creceive and hear the testimony, of-fered, and to determine on it according to their sense of duty and the obligations of the oath they had taken to discharge that duty impartially. After this able and clear instruction the Grand Jury retired, and the nuisance case was resumed. It was on trial all day, and was not concluded at the bour of adjournment. THE SUBSCRIBERS WILL CONTI-L NUE the DRUG BUSINESS, as heretofore, at the Old Stand, No. 724 MARKET Street. WM. ELLIS & CO., Druggista, jal-tf 734 MARKET Street.
