THE DRY GOODS TRADE-HOW HIGH PRICES AFFEOT BUSINESS .- It has been generally remarked that the present winter has been more listinguished for its galety and cheerfulness than its predecessors for many years back. This is the more remarkable in view of the absence of so many. in the army, the depression in business resulting from the war, and the high prices demanded for all articles of foreign and domestic consumption. Seldom has there been so much life manifested in all the walks of life. The theatres and places of amuse ment generally have been thronged nightly, and there are at the present time more such places in successful operation than at any previous time in the history of the city. Labor commands good prices, and workmen are in demand in all kinds of business. Money is plenty (such as it is), and we hear of no suffering among the poor or grumbling among the rich. The avenues of trade are not stopped, but prosperity and success attend almost every business pursuit. The shops have presented large and varied assortments of goods, which are as quickly disposed of as they are received.

CURIOSITIES OF THE CITY DIRECTORY .---The twenty-sixth annual issue of McElroy's Philadelphia Directory, just issued, contains nearly eleven ousand more names than the Directory of 1862. The present work contains about 114,000 names, the Hall. The defendant was required to enter bail in the sum of $5,000 to answer. Held to Bail. collection and publication of which have entailed an amount of labor inconceivable to those not con-

The present work contains about 114,000 names, the collection and publication, of which have entailed an amount of labor inconcervable to those not conversant with the business. The collection of the names alone occupies from thirty to forty men during the entire months of October and November. The mass of names thus collected, amounting to nearly 500,000, must them he compiled and collated, and the duplicates destroyed. This is rendered necessary by the fact that, in a very few cases, can a person's residence be discovered at his place of business, and, vice versa, it is a rare thing indeed that one member of a firm can inform a collector where his partners reside. Finally, when the work is completed, it calls forth more griumbing and discontent than any other kind of publication. As an example, Mr. Smith tells the collector who calls on him, that he does not wish his residence put down; Mr. Jones asks to be put down only as a gentleman, and Mr. Brown refuses to give his name entirely, stating that he thinks "directories are only good for thieves and detectives." When the book, because his residence is not put down; Int. Mr. Smith says he won't have the book, because his not gentleman, (in which perhaps he tells the truth.) but is only a blacksmith. Finally, Brown's friends, not being able to find him in the book, charge him with being a skulker, and he in turn pitches into Mr. McElroy. The hardest part of the labor connected with the publication, however, is the reading of the proofs. Proof-reading is at all times a tedilous business, and afterwards remain uncertain whether fifty thousand of them are correctly spelled, is indeed discouraging. As usual, the Smiths prevail in this year's issue, but to go over a hundred thousand names, and afterwards remain uncertain whether fifty thousand of the proofs. The hardest part of the groups between the subscription to reach ing the proper John. The aristocratic branch of this family, the Smyths, are only 19 in number, and the discouraging. As usual, the Smyths, are on Held to Bail. Isaac. Isaacs, the Second-street clothier, arrested on the charge of swindling 'Mr. Rhodes, of Douglass-ville, Bucks county, as was stated in The Press, on Saturday, had a hearing before Alderman Beitler, at his Seventh-street office. He was ordered to find bail to answer at court. The defendant said he was willing to hand the money back to the prosecutor if he would return the coat. The alderman would not listen to anything of the kind. Besides this, the magistrate stated the prosecutor had purchased a load of oysters that were a loss to him, besides his loss of time. Mr. Rhodes declared his determination to push this matter to court as promptly as possible. (Before Mr. Alderman Boswell.) Two Drivers in Collision. James Mooney was arraigned on Saturday before Alderman Boswell on the charge of obstructing a passenger railway and committing: an assault and battery on the driver of a car. The facts developed at the hearing are briefly these: The defendant was driving a coal cart on the railroad track on Thin-teenth street, below Vine. A car came along, and the driver of it called to the driver of the cart to clear the track. The cart driver, it is alleged, instead of getting off, picked up a piece of coal and threw it at the other driver. He then sprang from the cart and made an attack with his whip upon the cart and made an attack with his whip upon the cart art court. He was also fined for breach of ordinance. In this place we may mention, for the benefit of parties most interested in such cases, the brief of a trial that recently cocurred in the Oriminal Court, Judge Allison presiding. A wagon was on a passen-ger-railway track, and a car came along. The usual signal was given, but the driver of the wagon did not get off, alleging that he did not know the tail of the wagon. The driver then threw as stone at the car horses, and made an attack upon their driver; the latter beat him to such an extent as to prevent him from making any further beiligerent demonstra-tions. The car driver was sued for an assault and battery. [Before Mr. Alderman Boswell,] slightly to articles manufactured from flax, because the latter are not much more expensive, and are a great deal more durable. There was a time when it was considered rather "mean" to wear cotton shirts, use cotton sheetings, &c. and the same prejudice against cotton still exists in the verdant bosoms of some old-fashioned folks, but is gradually dying out, and the Southern staple is daily acquiring stronger claims to its royal title. If the war continues much longer, we need not be surprised at seeing the best brands of cotton shirtings selling for fifty cents and upwards, and, even were the struggle to have an early termination, articles manufactured of cotton will not be likely to fall to their old prices for a few years.

The crop produced on Southern plantations since he commencement of the war is not a large one; he stock on the hands of the manufacturers and the commencement store of the manufacture and brokers two years ago is almost exhausted; the manufacturing and commercial world is crying out for a fresh supply, and until matters resume the old routine, and for some months after, there will not be much decline in articles manufactured wholly or in part of the great Southern staple. Even spool cotton, an article of trifling importance, it is true, that was formerly sold affour cents, is now ten, and cannot now be profitably produced at the latter price. Table, if is frue, that was formerly sold at jour cents, is now ten, and cannot now be profitably produced at the latter price. In dress goods the prospect of a large assortment and variety of style—the ideal of gratification with ladies of shopping propensities—is not encouraging. The demand for silks has been unprecedentedly large during the winter, and at the present season, when merchants are supposed to be engaged "taking stock," they find that the unusual activity, among those who wish to invest their surplus funds in fashionable or unfashionable dresses, interferes ma-terially, but not unpleasantly, with their arrange-ments. At no time in the past ten years was a greater activity noticeable in the retail stores be-tween the seasons than at present. We have heard ladies say, when asked why they are so eager to purchase at this early stage of the season, that they advance of 50 per cent. one month hence. And they ate right, no doubt, for we are assured by first-class authority that the advance will be greater than the people, that is the "shop mere."
