The Ice Breaking.

We are disposed to give a great deal of importance to the rumors that are coming to us from Northern Alabama, Georgia, and North Carolina. There seems to be a rebellion against the rebellion. The State had since the opening of this month, will Legislatures have recently passed conscripdispose of all, or nearly all, the measures tion bills of the most oppressive character, necessary to facilitate and strengthen the extending their conscription more particularly into the districts of Tennessee that | Within a few days, there is less disposition have hitherto been devoted to the Union. to delay legislation on the part of the This is being enforced with unrelenting few leaders of the minority, lately severity. We should suppose, from the SO charming narratives that occasionally creep into our Northern journals from the Southern papers, that the Southern people were united, that such things as dissension and a want of harmony were never known, and tion that the only way to finish the rebellion that throughout the South there was no is to sustain the Administration. After trying other feeling but a general determination to die, rather than submit to a hateful Yankee tyranny. Whatever the Southern newspapers may think, it is evident their feelings are not shared by Mr. JEFFERSON DAVIS. He does not believe in the fascinating rhetoric of his followers, nor is he quite disposed to close his eyes to selfevident facts. In many parts of the South, and more particularly in the States where the Union sentiment lingered the longest, there have been armed outbreaks against the Southern nower. The con been resisted, and men have been slain in the effort to enforce it. This is common. The cases are not isolated. The disaffection extends through wide districts-affecting whole States, and requiring the strong arm of the military power to enforce obedience. In Northern Alabama and Mississippi a reign of terror is said to be existing. In North Carolina and Georgia there are other evidences of disaffection and rebellion. Here they have assumed a more formidable shape, and the general in command of the department speaks of "expeditions" having been sent against them. These expeditions, no doubt, did their work very effectually. What could be expected from men far away from any Union army, surrounded on all sides by the flames of treason, and under the iron hand of military despotism? Their history is one of those sacred and sublime and sounds. examples of heroism that the world never sees. It must have been the desperation of loyalty that prompted them to such a mad undertaking ; but let us honor their memories and their courage, though their names may never be known to us, and the story of their self-sacrificing valor never written, as we honor heroism and devotion in whatever cause exhibited. It is not so much as mere records of bravery and devotion and self-sacrifice, that we speak of these occurrences in the that we speak of these occurrences in the Brazil; F. The long night of slavery has passed-the sunlight of Freedom floods a thousand hills and streams, and this vast, bleak, ice-bound rebellion is melting. The people have experienced war and suffering and hardships; they see that no possible result can come from it beyond the agprandizement of bad, ambitious men; the perpetuation of an infamous institution: burdens of debt and dreadful memories that generations will not efface. It is no wonder they rise against their taskmasters and oppressors-the men who have deceived, betrayed, and murdered them. We welcome their efforts with joy, and honor them as men whom Americans for all time will delight to honor. A little longer and
