There is a boud debt (no lien on the cemetery), yet unpaid, of about $25,000, for the costly granite entrance, erected since most of the lots were sold, and for other improvements, and towards which the lotholders contributed nothing, which debt it is desirable to have discharged. Owing to the rapid progress of the city westward, pipes have been laid for the water on Woodland street, and enrying, street paving, and foot paving must soon follow, the charges for which would be liens on the cemetery, and on two thousand feet front would swell to a large amount.
