 Characterize during the solution of the solution drawn up in line of battle, about one mile and a half south of the town ; every precaution was taken to prevent the enemy from surprising us. The scouts coming in reported him in force some seven or eight miles in our front. All were expectant, but the night passed without anything unusual occurring. Yesterday morning, all hands were busy building barricades, and digging entrenchments. The 75th New York supported one-half of Miller's battery, on the Ohambersburg turnpike; and the one New York, the other half, on the Walnut Bottom road. By noon the rifle-pits were O. K., the guns well protected, the hospital arrangements made, men in line of battle, ammunition served out, guns loaded, and the General commanding, and Aid Evans, on the field. The enemy was reported within one mile and a half, and every body was expectant; but the ene-my did not show himself, and night came, and the battle we all expected failed to come off. Night came, and every man was in his place. The rifle-pits are being enlarged, and the earthworks are being strengthened. Some of the men are sleeping soundly, while others are sitting around chatting; 9 o'clock came, when all at once, on our left fianl is heard one, two, three, four musket shots, followed immediately by the command, "Fall in, boys! not a word!" and in a very few minutes every man was on his way to Harrieburg. We cannot but admire the skilful manner in which General Knipe has managed his command. Which General hunge has managed in commanded He certainly evinces great coolness, and keeps his own counsel; and has succeeded in delaying the advance of the enemy, and has retired, whenever necessary, in an able and orderly manner. Confronted with a force infinitely superior to his own, he has offered him battle, and only retired when he thought his own time had come We passed through, and left Carlisle, last evening, about 10 o'clock, leaving many of the inhabitants in a dreadful state of trepidation, and all apprehensive for the future, which loomed up so darkly before them. The night was very dark, and the heavy clouds, which had been threatening, soon poured down their contents, and officers and men were all soon drenched to the skin. We reached this place about midnight, and the men "roughed" it as best they could. We are indebted to Mr. David Strohm for the hospitalities of his house extended to us; and we can assure the gentleman that his delicious ham, and the privilege of sleeping in his parlor, will not

The Man for Pennsylvania. To the Editor of The Press: Sin: The rebels have entered the State unopposed, have penetrated one of our richest valleys, have cap-tured several important towns, and are apparently on their march to Harrisburg, our capital. The noble men who have gone to Harrisburg to defend it, and thereby protect our own city, are ready to do their duty, and under General Couch are being prepared to meet the foe. But we need some one to superim-tend the whole military operations of the whole State. We need a 'man of genius, of bravery, of fearless independence, who cannot be influenced by friend or foe, one who can outwit the rebels and their wily leaders. Such a man is Major General Benjā-min Franklin Butler, and I trust that Secretary Staton and Governor Ourtin will at once give Ge-neral Butler this position. Under God's bleasing, I believe that he will be able to rout the whole, rebel force, in less than thirty days. He has genius of the right sort, courage that makes him respected, patri-otism that cannot be doubted, and antecedents that commend him to every class of people. Give us General Butler, and the people will have new en-thusiasm. I am, sir, very respectfully yours. laiaam. I am, sir, very respectfully yours, ALIQUIS.

to the country which they are still proud to claim, and to the other country which has become their home.
 The Orleans princes have won honors which borrow little lustre from hereditary rank. Personal bravery of course we should all have expected from them. Louis Philippe, although no warrior in his latter days, showed the courage of a gallant soldler when he stood by the side of Doumouriez, and evinced a fortitude and self-command in vicisatilude and struggle, indicating a higher kind of bravery still. Philippe galite-Philippe of the Palais Royal-odious as his career had made him, almost redeemed some part of, its odium by the serenity with which he met his terrible doom. The Prince de Joinville, the Duc d'Aumale have shown that they possess the family characteristic. But some of the Orleans princes have of late added honors which were not traditional to their name by fighting in the cause. of human liberty. It is of the Youth who has use been married that a historian of the Lombardy campaign of 1859 tells an interesting anecdote.
 A French officer of high rank received on one of the battle fields a message from the Sardinian army. He was struck by the accent of the young officer who bore it, and asked the latter if he was not a Frenchman. They reply was in the affirmative. "Then why," was the natural question, "are you serving under the King of Sardinis and not under the Euger of the Drue de Charters-rossed the ocean to fight under the baner of the Great Republic in the cause of negro emanoipation! If war be the business of princes at all, we know of no wars in the cause of the Prince the under the baner of the Great Republic in the cause of the Tranking. "If wars the the prince de Joinville and his two nephews-the Count for the sance of the Tranking." If wars the the business of princes at all, we know of no wars in the cause of negro emancipation! If war be the business of princes, the under the abort of the emancipation of the slawe." INTERARY.

LITERARY. M. Alexander Dumas, the well-known French novelist, is about to undertake the laborious task of publishing a metrical version of "Komeo and Juliet." His knowledge of the English language is understood to be very limited; but this does not seem to intimidate this adventurous and prolific author.

1 WENTY-FOURTH WARD MILITARY OR-GANIZATION.-On Saturday afternoon Judge Alli-son, of the Court of Common Pleas, made a tour through the Twenty-fourth ward, for the purpose of promoting enlistment. The organization of a full company by Monday morning asserted his success. The idea has octurred to many that the appointment throughout the wards of committees for like pur-poses, or to inquire for those willing to be enrolled, would be a most excellent idea. This idea cannot be too warmly encouraged, or too thoroughly car-ried out.

W. C. Moore, to be attached to Colonel Newkumet's regiment, now at Harrisburg. The armory, where recruits will be accepted, is at Broad and Race streets. A few more active young men only are required to fill up the company. Captain Moore is a sterling officer, and could, no doubt, as readily attach a regi-ment to his standard as a company.

Semi-weekly Review of the Philadelphia June 30-Evening. June 30-Evening. The exciting news from Harrisburg has operated un-favorably on business generally, and there is very little doing, most of our business men having formed them-selves into companies to be called on to repel the invader. The Flour market is quiet at former rates. Wheat, Corn and Oats are unchanged. Coal is in demand. but holders are holding off for higher prices. Cotton is very firm and held higher. Sugar is firm, but there is very little doing. Seeds are dull. Wool is quiet at former rates.

FLOUR. —The demand, both for export and home use. Is limited. Justice to Col. Thomas' Regiment. To the Editor of The Press: SIR: I see in to-day's Press that your correspond-ent has committed a slight error in his report of the fight and retreat at Wrightsville. It is said that the troops which were guarding the Northern Central railroad retreated to the Columbia bridge on the ap-proach of the enemy, and all crossed the river except Colonel Frick's regiment, which remained at Wrightsville to guard the bridge. Those brave men of Col. William B. Thomas' regiment—Compa-nies H, B, and F—remained upon the ground in face of the enemy till all the other troops had left the field. When they took up their retreat the bridge on the Wrightsville side was on fire, which cut off the retreat of a part or portion of Companies H and F, who made their escape by crossing the Susquehanar river in boars, and reported to their companies this morning. In another part of the Rebel is published a procla-mation from Gov. Isham G. Harris, in which he calls for 6,000 troops for six months from Tennessee, under the provisions of the act of the rebel Con-gress, to provide for local and special service; the force to be composed of men over forty years of age, or such as are not liable to conscription. MANGENER, Tenn., June 28.—The Chattanooga Rebel contains the following despatch ; JACKSON, Miss., June 24.—Twenty Yankees cap-tured a freight train at Bush Haven to day and burned it. Are in high spirits and march spiendidly. REBEL ACCOUNTS. MANCHESTER, June 28.—The Chattanooga Rebel gives the following account of the fight on Wedness-day: From jassengers who came down in the after-noon train, yesterday, we learn that on Wednesday seven brigades, of the army of General Rosecrans, attacked the brigades of General Bates and Liddell, holding Hooyer's and, Liberty Gaps. Our men fought the enemy until their ammunition was ex-hausted, when they fell back. The movements indicate a general advance of the enemy's forces; which may result in a pitched bai-tie. Among the killed in Bates' brigade was Major Claybrook, and General Liddell lost some estimable officers. The Robel, in an exultant editorial on the situa-tion, says: "At no time within the past two years has the horizon of the Confederate States uprisen in such spiendor as now, when, from Vicksburg, Virgi-nia; and Middle Tennessee, the harbinger of days of peace seems to burst with harmonious luster from the long night of war. To drive General Grant out of Mississippi, 'invest the Y ankee capital from Maryland, invade Pennylvania, and defeat Rose-crans, are the present objects." "The Robel thinks that the prospects were never better for a consummation of these legitimate and possible contingencies, and says: "As we advance into the North the troubled spirits of Democracy must be told that our object is peace, and when our independence is recognized we will lay down our arms. Mr. Vallandigham will tell them so, but let our Government and our generals, valuen we march over the border, proclaim, that it is recorded 'Ari-
