Opposite Independence Hall, that time honored edifice was saluted. This procession was composed of about one hundred colored men marching in open order. They were dressed in black frock costs and white pants and white gloves. Each estried a banner setting forth the wonderful vitues of H. T. Helmbold's Extract of Buchu. The body called themeelves by the appropriate name of the "Good Samaritan Guards," and were commanded by the following officers: Daptain, Wm. J. Fuller; First Lieutenant, T. J. Jackson; Second Lieutenant, Spencer Perry; Third Lieutenant, S. Leai; Sergenats, C. Fockman, T. Oox, S. Davis, E. States; Corporals, Poter Pelty and (L. Davis. Mr. Helmbold certainly deserves credit for his enterprise, simply desiring to bring to general notice, in a novel and pleasant style, the efficiency of his Buohu, feeling assured that one trial will make a healthy friend. The band consisted of twenty men, the procession one hundred. There were fifty business banners, handsomely pairted, and set in goid and rosewood frames. Besides these there were eight others, containing the following unique motos: The great American Remedies. DIED. Year. Tons. As the parade passed over the streets, it was re-ceived with wonder, and everybody desired to know what were the virtues of Buchu. Some thought it was a new general called into the field, others who knew of its power to cure many of the "ills that fiesh is heir to," had heard of Buchu before. Those who desire to know all about it may call on Mr. Helmbold, and he will inform them. The appearance of the parade on the streets awakened the virtuous indignation of some indi-viduals whose old-fogy, do-nothing principles form a striking contrast with the enterprise of Mr. H. Complaint was made at the Mayor's office that a riot was likely to occur. Misstatements and gross exaggerations were made to the Mayor as to the character of the procession, and he issued an order to disperse the party. The order was carried into effect. Mr. Heimbold had gone to the expense of nearly $1,000, after contributing more than this to the cause of the Union. On the afternoon of the Fourth, Mr. Heimbold BOARDING. PROPOSALS.
