U. S. GRANT.-In the torchlight procession in honor of the fall of Vicksburg, there was one transparency with an inscription with quite a play of words upon the name of the hero, U. S. Grant; some of the titles were as follows: Unconditional Surrender Grant. Undaunted Soldier Grant. Unshackle Slave Grant. Uncommon Smart Grant. Unabated Siege Grant. Unusually Stylish Grant. This latter sobriquel probably needs some explana-tion. It undoubtedly refers to his new uniform, ade by Chas. Stokes & Co., under the Continental, in which he was arrayed on that jubilant Fourth. THE DRAFT.-Among the most interesting local literature of the day are the lists of conscripts that are drawn and published daily. All who live in the wards drawn run eagerly over the names published, and they feel greatly elated when they discover that they have not drawn prizes. Next in immediate interest to the lists of the names of the drafted-and almost equal to them in importan some the notices of the elegant garments for Gentlemen and Youths, that are made at the Brown Stone Clothing Hall of Rockbill & Wilson, Nos. 603 and 605 Chestnut street, above Sixth.
