The Abolitionists and the War. LETTER FROM WENDELL PHILLIPS. [From the Liberator.] Drak Sire: You ask me how we, who have hitherto been disunionists, now join in supporting the Union.

I answer:

We refused to take office and swear to support the Constitution because we could not promise to do what we thought sin—return slaves to their masters, for instance, as required by the Constitution.

Further than that, our effort to break the Union was only a means to an end. Our object was the abolition of slavery.

No man can foresee the future, or certainly tell even the immediate, much less the final, results of any measure. We must act on probabilities, and use those rightful means within our reach which seem most likely to end an evil perfectly, in the shortest time, and with the least harm. On this principle, in the old times of peace, we labored to break the Union as the best and quickest way to end slavery. Let me remind you that we never unifervalued union—never had any objection to union—but only to a Union on pro-slavery conditions, one that supported and strengthened slavery.

The disunion we sought was one which should be begun by the North on principle, from conscientious objection to upholding slavery. Such a division of the Union would have given us a nation in the North, united on high principle, able to defend itself, rigid against granting any pro-slavery advantage to its Southern neighbor; and the vicinity and example of such a North would have co-operated with the essential weakness of all slaveholding Governments in finally abolishing slavery at the South. Such disunion must have been brought about by a public opinion throughout the North adverse to alavery, and would have guarantied one for the uture. The agitation for such disunion, based on the idea that slavery is a sin, to be immediately repudiated at every cost, was the more direct and efficient way of educating the public to a stern antislavery principle. You see, therefore, that the abolition of slavery was our object, disunion our weapon; and our method of reaching it was to convert the nation, and create a strong anti-DEAR SIR: You ask me how we, who have hitherto been disunionists, now join in supporting public opinion. We sought such disunion for the slave's sake, well knowing, all the time, how much of what his toil had fairly earned disunion would sacrifice, but con-vinced that, as things then stood, it was the quickest and shortest way to free him. We knew also that our plan would leave the slave to struggle up to freedom against a thousand obstacles, alone and un-aided, vexed and hampered by a reluctant master; but that disadvantage was inevitable, and seemed no ufficient reason why we should forego the only nethod which promised him any speedy and certain method which promised him any speedy and certain relief.

We held that, for such reasons, the rights of the slave and the sin (for anti-clavery men) of upholding the Constitution, the North had the right of revolution, the right to break the Union; and that such division would sooner end slavery than continuing under a Constitution which forbade the North, during peace, to interfere with the slave system of the Southern States.

War came. The South began a war on the nation. To accept disunion then, one not begun by an anti-slavery North, but forced on a reluctant and half-converted North, though it would have killed slavery in the end, would have lost the slave his share in the nation he helped to found, and would have left the slave obstructed in his path to freedom by great obstacles, unpitied, unaided, vexed, and hampered by an emblitered master. Such disunion, too, would probably have helped to prolong slavery, seeing that such a North would have been, willing to grant its pro-slavery neighbor many advantages, the recapture of slaves, etc., and that the South, in this secession, planned to found a military despotism, would have been doubly able to protect and prolong the hold of the master on his slave. The conflict of two such nationalities would have entailed perpetualwar. On the contrary, the first current of south dred gave the nation the constitutional right to abolish slavery wherever its flag floats, showed that such a measure would inevitably be necessary, and that the Union must probably cease, or rest on the equal liberty of all races.

In these circumstances, the Abolitionists, who were not peace men, and had never asserted the sinfulness of war, perceived that the war itself would produce an overwhelming national opinion adverse to slavery sooner than any other ageony. The manifestation war must make of the nature and designs of the Slave Power would inevitably than any other means could, and his presence in the samy would be the first step to civil equality.

We saw that the preservation of th elief.
We held that, for such reasons, the rights of the ree generations.

4. It insures peace throughout North America.

At the present time, therefore, the preservation of the Union gives us all these benefits we have aimed to and some we never expected to secure by our old at, and some we never expected to secure by our old plan.

Perhaps all these benefits might have been gained better and cheaper in other ways. But God disposes, the choice is not left with us; we must enter at the door He opens. We had hoped that it would be, and labored that it should be, one of peace, but to Him it has reemed otherwise, and we submit.

We can easily see that war may, perhaps, be the only path to emancipation for a century to come. Peace, on which we had counted, has one danger. The constant sight of successful iniquity is as likely to dull the conscience as to waken it. We could not be certain that in the struggle between right and interest, the triumph might not be for a long while on the wrong side. No one could be sure that our Union, spite of the anti-slavery enterprise, would not have sunk, for many years, into a strong, rich, corrupt, pro-slavery nation, greedy of territory, callous to right, and trampling a victim race under its money-seeking feet. The sharp sword of war kills or cures at once; and as God has linked success with justice, we must be either whipped into a people hating slavery as their conqueror, or we must be successful with justice for our ally—the negro our acknowledged equal and brother.

We see, nevertheless, the use of our Disunion Agitation. If we did not fully convert the community by our cry, "Liberty and justice are better than Union," we so far leavened their minds and wakened their consciences that when the war came, the hour found them ready to accept the issue. When the question was put—the old Union with slavery, or a new one without it—the people have been found far more ready than any man had supposed to answer, Give us, at any cost, Union and freedom, pledge of peace and permanence.

In a word, the slave's cause led us to disunion, when the danger of the call water and the call water. ound far more ready than any man had supposed to answer, Give us, at any cost, Union and freedom, pledge of peace and permanence.

In a word, the slave's cause led us to disunion, when disunion seemed the only way within our reach to free him. Now we cling to the Union for the same reason. We can uphold it without dishonor—snd it has become the strongest weapon in the slave's behalf—the shortest path to his liberty. The terms of the Constitution may still, for a while, shut us out of office, but that is temporary. The spirit of the Union is liberty to all races and every individual. Without that it must die.

The Union whose life we strive to protect is not one settled, at peace, with a million slaves in its Border States. But it is a nation in the throes of its birth, in its transition and forming state, with the right to free every slave in its limits, willing to free every such slave and obliged to do so, if it continues to exist. While this necessity rests on it, while it agonizes to do its duty, we feel that our place is at its side. If, betrayed by its leaders, it ever settles down into any, the least, systematic toleration of slavery, it will find us as before, its foes.

You may say the results we expect from this war are not absolutely certain to follow. True. No man can be absolutely sure of the correctness of his judgment; certainly, not in a matter of such complexity as this. Where all stateamen have proved udgment; certainly, not in a matter of such com-plexity as this, where all statesmen have proved laise prophets. But we must act on the wisest udgment we can form. Doubtless, the war may judgment we can form. Doubtless, the war may cease, and, by the treason and trick of politicians, leave slavery alive. But I am as sure as I can be of anything that, a hundred years hence, history, looking back on our-era, will record that slavery received its death-blow from this rebellion undertaken in its behalf; and if, by any means, our struggle ends in a division of the Union, still every day the war lasts strikes off a year from the possible duration of slavery under any Government formed at the South. Yours,

JULY 21, 1863. Fashions for August. From Le Monde Elegant.]

The present season, both in London and Paris, is one of the most brilliant that we have had for many years. A long series of parties, fives, flower-shows, morning concerts, &c., have been attended by a perfect galaxy of rank and fashion; and in these and other fashionable promenades the eye is charmed by a succession of costumes, each seeming to surpass the other in elegance and taste, and in the production of which our best artistes des modes are, and have been, busily engaged. a succession of costumes, each seeming to surpass the other in elegance and taste, and in the production of which our best artistes des modes are, and have been, busily engaged.

For dresses, the most elegant and fashionable materials are moires, in various rich colors, such as Napoleon blue, Cofe au luit, &c., silks, the skirts of which are usually a good deal trimmed, and French muslins, which, this season, are very handsome in design and color; the bodies are made either high, with point in front, or halt-high, and either of the square Watteau form, or with lapels turned back.

We present our readers with a selection of the most elegant of these toileles.

Low dress of rich violet silk; at the bottom is a broad hand of white silk with narrow quilling of black silk at each edge, and on the white silk are run several rows of narrow black velvet. The body is plain, closing with small black and white buttons. The sleeve is three quarter length, shaped to the elbow, the bottom trimmed to correspond with the skirt.

Dress of peal gray silk, the skirt very long, is of great width at the bottom, being gored; at each side the front breadth are pockets, with a pointed ornament at the opening, the point trimmed with narrow black velvet and quilling of violet silk. High Andalusian body, opening with small revers and collar, edged with narrow velvet and quilling of violet silk. The Andalusian jacket is open at the seams to the waist, the top of the opening finished by a violet button. Three-quarter, shaped sleeve, with pointed cuff and equilette, trimmed to correspond with revers.

A beautiful evening or party dress of white tarlatane, the skirt with narrow flounces edged with black lace and a narrow satin ribbon, couleur de rose, in the hem; above the flounces the skirt is partly covered by barbes of ribbon which descend from the waist, the broad, pointed ends trimmed with harkit; a marguerite on each shoulder.

Dress of silver gray silk, the body opening èn demi cœuir, with lapel and colar, trimmed with narrow fringe. roses. Short bouilton sleeve half covered by a fall of lace.

Among the various styles of mantles, &c., for pomenade costume, the most stylish are the casaque, which very slightly defines the waist at the back; it ihas two rows of buttons, and is trimmed round by a quilling of black silk; the collar and lapel are of white silk, with three rows of narrow velvet run on. The wide sleeves are shaped at the elbow and have a broad cuff with double rivers of white silk, the rivers separated by a band on which are three buttons; the cuff is edged by a black quilling.

The short, loose paletois are generally of the same material as the dress, and are, of course, trimmed to correspond with the skirt. Their appearance, when made in foulard, mohair, or piqué, is very elegant. For half mourning, a dress and paletot of black silk, ornamented with a rich design in braid, is very stylish.

For flower shows and out-door files, the most ap-and home costume. Some have a point at the back, others with postillion jacket.

Sleeves are generally of three-quarter length, and either of the pagods form or shaped at the elbow.

Hats are of Leghorn and white straw or chip; they are mostly trimmed with flowers, feathers, and black lace. PERSONAL.-Mrs. Effic Titlow, of Middleton, Maryland, has been sojourning at the residence of Provost Marshal Stretch, Eighteenth ward, for several days past, during which time many of the first families of that section of the city have paid their respects to her. At the time the rebels passed through Middleton, on their second raid into Penn they are mostly trimmed with flowers, feathers, and black lace.

Among the new style of caps, headdresses, etc., we have seen for the present season, the following are a few of the handsomest:

The butterfly cap is a very pretty article; it is made of a very full fall of lace, the same as that of which the whole cap is composed—viz: white and black Brussels dot. In the middle of the crown, from top to bottom, is a narrow band of white-edged velvet trimming, making the crown look like the spread-out wings of the insect from which the cap takes its name. The front of the cap is the ordinary style for old ladies. It is trimmed with rows of narrow black lace, and velvet trimming such as that described on the crown.

Cap of white tille, spotted with black, full border of black and white blonde, with large rose in the centre. their respects to set. At the time the reverse pro-through Middleton, on their second raid into Penn-sylvania, she seized an American flag, and wrap-ping it about her, stood on the second story porch of her residence, in full view of the armed raiders, and bravely, contemptuously, and patriotically defied them. This lady was untiring in her attention on the sick and wounded soldiers of the Union army after the battle of Gettysburg. Accidents.-Jacob Low, aged 56 years, the driver of a potato wagon, was run over by a coal eart, in the vicinity of Front and Union streets, on Sarurday afternoon, by which his right leg was broken. He was removed to the Fennsylvania broken. He was removed to the Pennsylvania Hospital.

Thomas Pauch, an employee in the navy yard, was admitted into the same institution, having had one of his feet badly mashed by a piece of timber islling on it while he was at work.

Michael Keely was also taken to the hospital. He had thrust his arm through a pane of glass at a public house near Lombard and Sixth streets. The flesh was badly lacerated, and several yeins severed. of black and white blonde, with large rose in the centre.

A cap of white Brussels dot, and made in a single piece. A large round of lace gathered at the edge, and inclosed in a ribbon riche in front, trimmed with narrow white lace and ribbon, white or colored, acording to the taste of the wearer. The entire cap looks like a full lace crown or net.

Talle cap with cerise riche and dark roses, surrounded with black lace.

Cap of Maltese lace, with bows of scarlet velvet. Although Jenny Lind is older, by several years, than when she first startled the musical world with her marvellous singing, she seems to have lost none of her power. The elder Fetis, whose opinions are ever formed hastily, speaks of her recent pernever formed hastly, speaks of her recent performances in Germany in these glowing terms:

"To say that she imitates the flute or the violin would be to insult her; but she has for each intention of the composer a variety of accents, of emission, and of management of the voice which you man of management of the voice which you have to add that these constructs of the simply hasten to add that these constructs of the demi-voice, these audacious flights, these can be added to the same that these things become when other songstreages—I speak of the best among them—attempt to indulge in these excursions! I tremble when I think of it! How many hissing blackbirds, how many American mocking-birds, have we for one Swedish nightingale! How many Pattis for a single Jenny Lind!" Yet London is not only well satisfied but still almost enraptured over Adelina Patti. It seems as though it would never tire of her. Says a competent authority: "When we assert that Mile Adelina Patti has proved a worthy successor of Malibrau and Grisi, we think we are paying her the greatest possible compliment." She is engaged for a series of concerts at Wisebaden, Manheim, and Frankfort, in the month of August.

A half-way liker of Berlioz's straining effects, which he calls music, talks of him in this interesting way:
"It is not easy to express a liking for Berlioz's ormances in Germany in these glowing terms: THE NATIONAL FINANCES.-Jay Cooke, THE NATIONAL FINANCES.—Jay COOKe, subscription agent, reports the sale of $750,000 five-twenties on Saturday, by the various agencies. Deliveries of honds are being made to July 25. The absence of large numbers of active business men, and the extreme hear, have a tendency to prevent large sales, though the average for the month will be over one million dollars daily. PRESENTATION OF A SWORD.—The mem-FREEENTATION OF A SWORD,—The mem-bers of Company H, 10th New Jersey Regiment, presented their captain, John Cunningham, with a handsome.sword, a short time before the regiment moved. The presentation speech was made by Cor-poral Young, who was responded to by the captain. The affair passed off pleasantly. COMPLIMENTARY -On Friday night offipers of the Blue Reserves Regiment were serenaded by the members of Company C, after which a collis-tion was indulged in, when the compliments of the season were tendered one to the other. way:
"It is not easy to express a liking for Berlioz's "It is not easy to express a liking for Berlioz's muse, so attangely does it oscillate between the extreme of raving eccentricity and of colossal butentirely inconsequential magnificence. His genius belongs to a sort of musical deluge, and what you find in it is interesting as a phenomenon of Nature, like the megatherium or the ornithoryncus paradoxus. It is impossible to say why he has so much tail or so little fin, and one can readily believe that in a moment of excitement he could climb a tree or dive to the bottom of old ocean with equal facility. But that he has genius, is demonstrated by the fact that a number of respectable notorieties have been engaged for several years in stealing it."

The noblest music in Antwerp is rained down from the famous spire of the Cathedral, where eighty bells have, for two hundred years or more, chimed, from their home amid the stone lace-work of the tower, over the roofs of the quaint, clean old city. Once a year—in the month of February—the city authorities select the music, and during 1863 the chinces play, at every hour, a selection from Verdi's "Lombard," at the half-hour strains from Gound's "Faust," while shorter passages mark the quarter hours, and even each five minutes is remembered in a few slivery tones. Last year it was "Fille du Regiment" and "Si j'etais roi." THE POLICE. [Before Mr. Recorder Eneu. 1 [Before Mr. Recorder Encu.]

The accused was committed in default of $2,000 bail to answer at the present term of the court. Independence Square. Independence Square.

The Superintendent of Independence Square has called upon us to say that he has always made the most attenuous exertions to keep people of doubtful reputation from remaining in the square. His account stands in this ratio: that for one person whose deportment may offend moral feelings, when his back may be momentarily turned, he has ejected at least a dozen from the enclosure. As there are not so many recruiting soldiers about the square as formerly, the attractions therefore being less, the general character has improved. It is needless to disguise a fact, and that is, some of the females who find time to loiter about camp grounds and public squares used as rendezvous for soldiers, have acted in such a manner as to deeply crimson the fair cheek of modesty. The Capture of John Morgan. THE STATE OF OHIO, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, COLUMBUS, July 30. Nathaniel Merion, Esq., Warden of the Ohio Penilentiary:

You have been advised by a formidable and destructive raid through our State of a band of desperate men under the lead of the notorious John Morgan; also, of their capture by the military forces of the Federal Government, aided, however, materially by the militia forces of our State.

Upon consultation with Maj. Gen. A. E. Burnside, commander in-chief of this military department, I learn from him that he has not, subject to his command, a secure place in which to keep the principal officers of said band. I have, therefore, tendered to the Federal Government the use of our penitentiary, as a place of safe-keeping for them until other provisions can be made.

You will therefore please receive from the officers of the United States Government the said John Morgan and thirty others, Confederate officers, captured with him, a list of whose names is herewith handed you, and safely and securely keep them within the walls of the penitentiary until other pro-Nathaniel Merion, Esq., Warden of the Ohio Penilen-[Before Mr. Alderman Devlin ] [Before Mr. Alderman Devlin.]
Alleged Pocket-picking,
A young man, hitherto the possessor of a good character, employed at a public house near Seventeenth and Market streets, was arraigned on the charge of picking the pocket of a soldier from Chester county. Governor and Commander-in Chief. The Sibley Indian Expedition—Rapid Pursuit of the Sioux.

The St. Paul Press of the 4th instant says: suit of the Sioux.

The St. Paul Press of the 4th instant says:

"General Sibley writes, under date of July 19th, that he has arrived within thirty-five miles of Devil's Lake without finding traces of Indians, other than small scouting parties.

"Half-breed hunters report that a few days previously-a Sioux camp of six hundred lodges had divided into three parties, Little Crow's adherents forming one, and had gone in different directions.

"General Sibley leaves his heavy transportation behind, at Camp Atchison, under a suitable detachment, and presses on rapidly with the remainder of his command, and twenty-five days' rations. His force consists of twenty-three hundred men, well equipped.

"General Sibley has thus far found no scarcity of water or grass, except at isolated points, and has thus far lost very few animals."

The Press gives also the following account of further Indian outrages:

"We received, last night, a letter from Quartermaster Bond, at Glencoe, giving the particulars of another horrible Indian outrage in that vicinity, on Sunday. A German, named Emmory, was brought that atternoon into Glencoe, wounded and faint from loss of blood. He had been shot in the shoulder by an arrow, at the house of a German family, named Widewitch, four miles north of Glencoe—had run, fell by the way, was picked up and brought to Glencoe. He reported the Widewitch family murdered. The citizens armed themselves and hastened to the spot. They found the family still alive, but the woman had been shot through the high, the shoulder and elbow. They were brought to town and placed under surgical care. The man had been shot in the doorway, the woman through the window.

"The Indians, three in number, fied at a false alarm, after committing some other outrages, and disappeared in the woods. Fires, as of haystacks, are raging in the Big Woods. The whole country is greatly alarmed." CLEARED. Steamship Saxon, Matthews, Boston, H Winsor. Bark David Lapsley, Bishop, Port Royal, Com H Brig David Lapsiev, Bishop, For Royal, com H. Adams.

THE HEATED TERM.—The past week was remarkable. It may be recorded in the calendar of time as the "heated term." During the last eleven days in July, the vane on the State House steeple obstinately refused to point in any other direction than south, southeast, and southwest. At one period, lasting an hour, a cooling zephyr turned the vane westward, but the southerly heat soon resumed its power. Since the present month set in, the wind, what little there was, has been pretty much from the south, and for the last week the temperature gradually increased in height, until the mercury was almost ready to burst out of the top of the thermometer, in the imagination, of course, of people generally.

The following record of the temperature, since the last instant, we obtain from Mr. Dunn, the attentive superintendent of the Merchants' Exchange. The thermometer is placed on a window frame at the north of the building. It is subject to the "draft," and entirely "exempt" from direct contact with the rays of the sun. It is thought by the most scientific men that such a position is the best, in order to obtain a fair estimate of the temperature. The following is the record:

—James Young, otherwise known as John Diamond, a young man who had a puglistic prize fight a short time since in the lower part of the city, was shot on Friday on board of a transport in the lock at St. George, in the Chesapeake and Delaware canal. He had gone as a substitute. From all that we can learn of the affair, it seems that the unfortunate young man suddenly made his appearance on deck, having crept through a hole that had been cut in the bulkhead. He was accosted by a lieutenant in command, who shot him. The guard, hearing the report, instantly turned, and seeing Young in the act of retreating, fired, and shot him in the head. He died almost instantly. The body was taken to Chesapeake City, where it was temporarily interred by some of the inhabitants. Word was sent to Philadelphia of the occurrence, and on Saturday afternoon the body was brought to Philadelphia, where it was decently buried by the relatives and friends. WILLIAM H. YEATON & CO.,

— A CARD FR DM MR. BENSON.—Interested parties have circulated a report that changes in the bars, &c., on the coast at Atlantic City, have destroyed the bathing there. This statement is without foundation in trath. There have been changes, it is true; but in the case of the Surf Hose, particularly, they have had the effect of improving the bathing, and of lavesning the distance between the Honse and the Sea. The Surf now rolls one hundred and fifty yards nearer to my bathing houses than it did a year ago, and the bathing here was never better, eafer, or more convenient than it is at present.

AT 439 CHESTNUT STREET.
TO MY PATRONS, FRIENDS, AND THE PUBLIC GENERALLY.
On SATURDAY, August let. I open my new establishment, the spacious Store and Vaults of No. 439 CHESTNUT Street, for your approval and approbation, where I trust I shall merit a continuance of the liberal patronage I have hitherto always received from your hands.
In view of a misunderstanding that I am told exists in the minds of many in regard to the sudden termination of my business on the S E corner of Third and Chestnut streets it is hoped the following brief facts will explain: On the night of June 23d, during my absence from the city, I was forcibly disposeessed by my reputed landlord, and my stock placed in the streets. As I was justly in poseession, I have sought redress for the outrage in the law courts of Philadelphia.

Respectfully yours,

JACOB C. NEAPIR, JOHN P. LEVY, BEACH and PALMER streets, FIRE! FIRE! FIRE! M. O. Saaler. Esc., Agent of May 30, 1803.

DEAR SIR: During the night of May 19, 1803. our Greery and Poynsion Store, at North Second and Willew Stress, took fire at about 2 o'clock A. M., and as the store was a two-story wood building it burnt rapidly, and before the fire-enginee could act upon the fire, our whole stock of goods, including much combustible material, and amounting to over $2.000. were wholly destroyed. We had one of your No. 11 Chilled from Safes, which was in the hottest part of the fire, and it came out of the fire not in the least injured, except the melting of of the name, plate gad paint. The contents inside were not affected in the least, and we consider the Safe inst as good a protection against fire now as before, and shall use it hereafter with increased confidence. The look works as perfectly as before the fire.

Attention to the above certificate is particularly requested, as it is the first trial of LILLIE'S SAFES in an accidental fire in Philadelphia.

I would say to all parties who want a Fire and Burgiar-proof Safe that LILLIE'S WROUGHT AND GHILLED IR'N SAFES are much the cheapest and the only real Fire and Burgiar-proof Safes now made; and to those who want simply a Fire-proof, I would say that LILLIE'S WROUGHT IRON SAFEs is fully equal in all respects to any of the most-approved makers, and it sold at fully one-third less price.

I also am receiving daily in exchange for Lillie's Wrought and Chilled Iron Safes other Safes, and keep constantly on hand a general assortment of HEREING'S. EVANS & WATSON'S, and other makers, many of them almost new, which I offer at, and even below, auction prices.
